

AUTHOR’S NOTE

This sixth edition of the A to Z of almost Everything has been exhaustively and painstakingly updated and rationalised to accommodate new, and for the expansion of existing, material. No sections have been omitted although I have taken heed of the feedback from the general public and trimmed areas that might not necessarily be as helpful as I originally imagined. To that end I have removed my duplicate sorts of data throughout the book and more specifically the very obscure capitals from my gazetteer. This has enabled me to introduce a plethora of new facts across every section.

For this edition every section through Abbreviations, Art, Astronomy, Britain, Cinema, Famous People, Literature, Music, Nature, Politics, Science, Sport, and Transport has been revised and added to as new terms become en vogue, young artists flourish, planetary moons continue to be discovered, films win awards and chemical elements previously unnamed are now given nomenclature - albeit temporary in some cases

The Current Affairs section again covers three years, rather than the usual two, and the sporting record inevitably highlights the magnificent London Games of 2012 as does the sports section itself.

The Geography section is always a major undertaking and two countries, Libya and Burma (Myanmar) have new flags and of course I have introduced the flag of South Sudan.

My cut-off point for new information is usually the December of the previous year of publication but I have endeavoured to maintain records right up to going to press in October 2013 so you will notice many of the lists are updated to 2013 unless the event takes place after this date.

The general revision of the book is the most extensive yet and although no information has been lost I have tweaked the sections and adjusted the format to cram in as much useful information as possible and consequently the book has a rather different, perhaps fresher look.

I hope you will be edified and entertained when dipping in to the book.

As always I have done my utmost to achieve 100 per cent accuracy, but if I have fallen short or you would like to suggest new topics or discuss existing ones, then please write to me via my website.

INTRODUCTION TO THE FIRST EDITION BY MAGNUS MAGNUSSON KBE

Trevor Montague is a Masterminder. That is to say, in 1995 he became one of the 1,231 bravehearts who appeared on the television Mastermind during its twenty-five-year run. But Trevor Montague is much more than that: he is that not-quite-so-rare-now animal, a quiz addict.

Trevor is also a begetter of quiz-teams. There is an unofficial Mastermind mafia which meets every month in the Grape Street wine bar in London, and from its regulars Trevor puts together formidable scratch teams of veteran Masterminders to take part in all and any quiz challenges. Trevor is also the question-setter of the fledgling British Quiz Championship which is a part of the annual Mind Sports Olympiad at London's Olympia.

That in itself is a sign of the immense and growing popularity of quizzes of all kinds on television, on radio, in pubs, in the Civil Service, and now even on the Internet. And it has given rise to Trevor's most ambitious project yet – An A–Z of Almost Everything: a massive factfile of information calculated to be of value to anyone and everyone interested in quizzes.

But how does one define 'General Knowledge' as opposed to 'Specialised Knowledge'? Indeed, when does 'Specialised Knowledge' become 'General Knowledge'? With the staggering growth of pub quiz-teams and television game-shows over recent years, the reservoir of what used to be considered 'General Knowledge' has expanded out of all recognition. Over the twenty-five years of Mastermind, for instance, questions which would once have come into the specialised category became demoted to the General Knowledge sets. I tried to make that very point, as subtly as possible, in the last round of the last Final of the last Mastermind series (in Kirkwall Cathedral, Orkney, in 1997): the last question echoed the very first question I had asked, in the University of Liverpool back in 1972:

Q: During the Spanish Civil War, which town in the Basque country was destroyed by German bombers, an event which was commemorated in a painting by Picasso?

A: Guernica

When that question was first asked in 1972, it was in a set of specialised questions on 'The Visual Arts'; in 1997 it was in a General Knowledge set.

So, what exactly makes up an A–Z of Everything? For Trevor, everything is grist to his insatiable mill. He has produced a monster factfile on an astonishing array of subjects from abbreviations to zodiac, embracing Americanisms, animal adjectives, assassination attempts, Carry On films, dubbed singing voices, famous dogs, gestation periods, London postal areas, middle names, nursery rhymes, obituaries, pub names, quantum theory, Schrödinger's cat, sculptors, trains, Visigoth rulers and zip codes.

I can think of few subjects which have been omitted, except perhaps for some of the classic Mastermind offerings which never made it to the screen: 'orthopaedic bone cement in total hip-replacement'; 'self-service petrol stations from 1963–68'; 'perfect squares from 992–9801'; and 'motorway routes to anywhere in mainland Britain from Letchworth'.

To put together this weighty tome, Trevor called upon his network of friends and colleagues in the Mastermind Club – that remarkable association of survivors of the Black Chair. The Club membership represents an astonishing reservoir of knowledge which its owners are always ready to impart to others. Many is the time I found myself marooned in a hotel without reference books and phoned friends in the Club to check on some vital detail which I needed for an occasion in the next morning.

The quiz cognoscenti who will avidly devour this book may well start off feeling superior ('I know that, of course!'), but I am pretty sure that even they will find much to intrigue them in this shrine of serendipity.

ARCHITECTURE

Famous Architects

Aalto, Alvar (1898–1976) Finnish architect and designer whose work included the Hall of Residence, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Finlandia Concert Hall, Helsinki and Nordic Centre in Reykjavik. He also invented bent plywood furniture in 1932.

Abercrombie, (Sir) Patrick (1879–1957) English architect and pioneer of town planning in Britain, brother of the poet Lascelles Abercrombie. His major work was the replanning of London (County of London Plan, 1943, and Greater London Plan, 1944).

Adam, Robert (1728–92) Scottish architect and interior designer, leader of the British Neo-Classical revival. Famous works include the interiors of Harewood House, Luton Hoo, Syon House and Osterley Park. He worked with his brother James Adam, on the Adelphi near Charing Cross, largely rebuilt in 1936.

Alsop, Will (1947–) Northampton-born architect with practices in London, Beijing, Singapore, Toronto and Shanghai. Alsop's book SuperCity was particularly controversial, suggesting a futuristic conurbation stretching along the M62 corridor from Liverpool to Hull. Alsop's design of Peckham Library won the Stirling Prize in 2000 and the Sharp Centre for Design in Toronto won him the RIBA Worldwide Award in 2004. More recent designs include an arts gallery The Public, West Bromwich and Stratford Docklands Light Railway Station.

Archer, Thomas (1668–1743) Along with Vanbrugh and Hawksmoor, the third member of the great triumvirate of English Baroque architects. The north elevation at Chatsworth with its pilastered bow front is his best-known remaining work. Born in Tamworth, Archer's work was chiefly in ecclesiastical architecture. He designed the church of St Paul's, Deptford (1712–30), the church of St John's, Westminster (1714–28) and Birmingham Cathedral (1709–15).

Baker, (Sir) Benjamin (1840–1907) Civil engineer and designer knighted for his work on designing the Forth Rail Bridge (1883–90). Baker worked in partnership with Sir John Fowler and their collaboration is probably most famous for the London Underground system, completed in 1890.

Barry, (Sir) Charles (1795–1860) British architect of the Neo-Gothic Houses of Parliament (1840–60), which were completed after his death by his son Edward Middleton Barry. Other works included the church of St Peter, Brighton; Travellers' Club, Pall Mall; the Reform Club, London; King Edward's School, Birmingham, and the Manchester Athenaeum. His fifth son Sir John Wolfe-Barry (1836–1918) was engineer of Tower Bridge and Barry Docks.

Bramante, Donato (1444–1514) Italian High Renaissance architect, born near Urbano. Designed the new Basilica of St Peter's as well as the Belvedere courtyard, the Tempietto di S Pietro in Montorio and the Palazzo Caprini.

Brown, Lancelot (1716–83) English landscape-gardener and architect, nicknamed 'Capability' due to his stock reply to clients that their gardens had 'excellent capabilities'. Works include the gardens at Blenheim, Kew, Stowe, and Warwick Castle.

Brunel, Isambard Kingdom (1806–59) English engineer and inventor, born in Portsmouth, son of Sir Marc Isambard Brunel. His numerous works include the original Thames Tunnel, Clifton and Hungerford Suspension Bridges, and the Saltash Bridge over the Tamar. His ship designs include the Great Western (1838), the Great Britain (1845) and the Great Eastern, in collaboration with John Scott Russell.

Cockerell, Charles Robert (1788–1863) English architect, son of Samuel Pepys Cockerell. He designed the Taylorian Institute at Oxford, Fitzwilliam Museum at Cambridge, and Ashmolean Museum, Oxford.

Foster, Norman (Lord Foster of Thames Bank) (1935–) British architect of the high-tech school. His best-known buildings include the Willis Faber office, Ipswich (1975), the Sainsbury Centre for the visual arts, Norwich (1978), the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, Hong Kong (1986), the Stansted Airport Terminal Building (1991), the American Air Museum, Duxford, Cambridgeshire (1998), the Millennium Footbridge, London (1999), 30 St Mary Axe (Swiss Reinsurers building aka The Gherkin), London (2004), the Millau Viaduct, France (2004 – the tallest bridge in the world), the Palace of Peace and Reconciliation, Astana, Kazakhstan (2006), the new Wembley Stadium, Terminal 3 of the Beijing Capital International Airport, and the Willis Building (all completed in 2007). Lord Foster, who was knighted in 1990 and appointed to the Order of Merit in 1997, also designed the National Police Memorial in The Mall, London (2005).

Fowler, (Sir) John (1817–98) Civil engineer and designer who worked in partnership with Benjamin Baker on the Forth Rail Bridge (1883–90) and the London Underground system (1890). He was made a baronet in 1890.

Fuller, Richard Buckminster (1895–1983) American architect who invented the Geodesic Dome. Examples of his works are at the Union Tank Car Repair Shop, Louisiana (1958), and the US Pavilion, Montreal Exhibition (1967).

Gaudí, Antonio (1852–1926) Spanish architect, noted for his flamboyant style. His work on the Church of the Holy Family in Barcelona begun in 1883 was unfinished at his death.

Gehry, Frank (1929–) Born Frank Owen Goldberg, in Toronto, Canada. Architect who moved to California when he was 17 and became a naturalised American citizen. Known for his curvaceous free-form sculptural style, often encompassing titanium sheathing for his buildings. His best-known buildings include the Frederick Weisman Museum of Art, University of Minnesota (1990), the Dancing House, Prague (aka Fred and Ginger) the Nationale-Nederlanden building (in conjunction with Croatian-Czech architect Vlado Milunić), the Guggenheim Museum, Bilbao, Spain (1997), the Walt Disney Concert Hall, Los Angeles (2003) and the Jay Pritzker Pavilion in Millennium Park, Chicago (2004). Known for his recurrent fish theme in his buildings and also his jewellery and furniture designs. Gehry was portrayed in an episode of The Simpsons.

Gibbs, James (1682–1754) Scottish Neo-Classical architect whose works include St Martin-in-the-Fields, London (1722), and the Radcliffe Camera, Oxford (1737).

Grimshaw, Sir Nicholas (1939–) Baron Grimshaw of Peterloo is noted for several modernist buildings including the railway terminal at London's Waterloo station (1993), the Eden Project, Cornwall (2001), the National Space Centre, Leicester (2001), the Thermae Bath Spa, Bath (2006) and the London School of Economics New Academic Building (2008). In 2004, he was elected President of the Royal Academy.

Hadid, Zaha (1950–) British architect born in Baghdad, Iraq. Became the first woman to win the $100,000 Pritzker Architecture Prize, in 2004. Her projects to date include the Vitra Fire Station (1994) and the LFone pavilion (1999), in Weil am Rhein, Germany, the Mind Zone at the Millennium Dome, London (1999), a ski jump in Innsbruck, Austria (2002), the Contemporary Arts Centre, Cincinnati (2003), the Maggie's Centre at the Victoria Hospital, Kirkcaldy, Scotland (2006), the London Aquatics Centre (2011) and the Riverside Museum, Glasgow (2011). She won the Stirling Prize in 2010, for the Maxxi in Rome, and in 2011 for the Evelyn Grace Academy, a Z-shapes school in Brixton. Appointed DBE in 2012.

Hawksmoor, Nicholas (1661–1736) English Baroque architect born in Nottingham. He designed many London churches including St George's, Bloomsbury, and Christ Church, Spitalfields. Assisted Vanbrugh at Blenheim Palace and Castle Howard and was clerk to Wren.

Jones, Inigo (1573–1652) English architect, born in London. The founder of Classical English architecture whose innovations include the introduction of the proscenium arch and movable scenery to the English stage. In 1616 he designed the Queen's House at Greenwich. Other commissions included the rebuilding of the Banqueting Hall at Whitehall, the nave and transepts and a large Corinthian portico of old St Paul's, Marlborough Chapel, the Double-Cube room at Wilton, and possibly the York Water Gate. Jones also laid out Covent Garden and Lincoln's Inn Fields.

Kent, William (1684–1748) Born in Yorkshire. After studying painting in Rome became a leading light in the introduction of the Palladian style of architecture into Britain. He designed many public buildings in London, including the Royal Mews in Trafalgar Square, the Treasury buildings and the Horse Guards block in Whitehall (1745). An example of his gardens is at Stowe House in Buckinghamshire and his artistry is visible in the Gothic screens at Westminster Hall and Gloucester Cathedral. He also designed the interiors of Burlington House and Chiswick House in London.

Lasdun, (Sir) Denys Louis (1914–2001) English architect whose works include the Royal College of Physicians, London; University of East Anglia, Norwich; National Theatre, London; and the European Investment Bank in Luxembourg.

Le Corbusier (1887–1965) Pseudonym of Charles Édouard Jeanneret, Swiss-born French architect, famous for his proclamation that the house is a habitable machine to be designed to functional criteria. His works include the Palace of the Nations, Geneva; and Cité Radieuse, Marseilles; as well as the town plan for Chandigarh, India.

Lutyens, (Sir) Edwin Landseer (1869–1944) English architect whose designs ranged from the picturesque of his early country houses, including Marsh Court, Stockbridge, and the restoration of Lindisfarne Castle, which owed much to the Arts and Crafts movement, to those in the Renaissance style such as Heathcote, Ilkley and Salutation, Sandwich. He finally evolved a classical style exhibited in the Cenotaph, Whitehall, which reached its height in his design – never built – for Liverpool Roman Catholic Cathedral. Other works include the Viceroy's House, New Delhi, and the British Embassy in Washington.

Mackintosh, Charles Rennie (1868–1928) Scottish architect, designer, and water colourist. Outstanding exponent of the Art Nouveau style in Scotland. Born in Glasgow, the son of a police superintendent, he married Margaret Mackintosh in 1900. His output included the Glasgow School of Art, Cranston tearooms, and houses such as Hill House in Helensburgh. By the end of World War I he had given up architecture for a career in water colours, mainly in France.

Mies Van Der Rohe, Ludwig (1886–1969) German-born American architect, born in Aachen. A pioneer of glass skyscrapers and high-rise flats, he also designed tubular-steel furniture, particularly the 'Barcelona Chair'. Became professor of architecture at the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago and designed two glass apartment towers on Lake Shore Drive, and the Seagram Building in New York. He also designed the Washington DC Public Library and two art galleries in Berlin.

Nash, John (1752–1835) British architect who designed Regent's Park and its terraces, Regent Street and Marble Arch. He also recreated Buckingham Palace from old Buckingham House and rebuilt Brighton Pavilion in oriental style. Trafalgar Square and St James's Park were also laid out by Nash.

Paxton, (Sir) Joseph (1801–65) British architect and garden superintendent to the Duke of Devonshire. By far his most famous work was the design of the Great Exhibition Building of 1851, the Crystal Palace, the first example of a prefabricated industrialised building on a large scale.

Pei, Ieoh Ming (1917–) Known as I. M. Pei. Chinese-born American architect whose works include the John Hancock Tower, Boston; the Mile High Center, Denver, the glass pyramid at the Louvre, the Museum of Islamic Art, Doha, Qatar and the Macao Science Center .

Piano, Renzo (1937–) Born in Genoa, Italy, and graduated from the University of Milan in 1964. The Italian designer and lecturer is best-known for his partnership with Richard Rogers (1970–78) during which time they designed the Pompidou Centre in Paris. He received the Pritzker Prize in 1998 and has designed buildings in Italy, France, the United States, Germany, Japan, and notably Dakar, Senegal. His most recent high-profile project is the Shard (aka the London Bridge Tower). Standing 309.6 metres (1,016 ft) high, the Shard is the tallest completed building in the European Union, and the second-tallest free-standing structure in the UK, after the 330-metre (1,083 ft) concrete tower at the Emley Moor transmitting station.

Pugin, Augustus Welby Northmore (1812–52) British architect and leader of the Gothic revival movement, a fine example of his style being the church of St Giles in Cheadle, Staffordshire. Pugin was employed by Sir Charles Barry to work on the Houses of Parliament and although controversy surrounds his precise input he certainly designed its Gothic interiors and the clocktower in which Big Ben hangs.

Rogers, Richard (Lord Rogers of Riverside) (1933–) Florence-born British architect whose works include the Pompidou Centre in Paris (1977), the Lloyd's building, London (1986) the Channel 4 Headquarters, London (1994), the European Court of Human Rights, Strasbourg (1995), the Millennium Dome (1999), Terminal 4 at Barajas Airport, Madrid (2005) and the National Assembly for Wales (2006). He was created a life peer in 1996. Founder member with Norman Foster and their wives of 'Team 4'. He has been chosen as the architect of Tower 3 of the new World Trade Center in New York. Pioneer of 'Bowellism' whereby internal features such as lifts and pipes were made visible on the outside of the structures in order to maximize space to appreciate his exhibitions. Married to Ruth Rogers, chef and co-owner of The River Café restaurant in west London.

Saarinen, Eero (1910–61) Finnish-born American architect whose works include the American Embassy in London and Dulles Airport near Washington DC.

Scott, (Sir) George Gilbert (1811–78) English architect, born in Gawcott, Bucks. His works include the Albert Memorial, St Pancras station, and the Episcopal Cathedral in Edinburgh.

Scott, (Sir) Giles Gilbert (1880–1960) English architect, grandson of Sir George Gilbert Scott. Won a competition in 1903 for the design of the Anglican Cathedral in Liverpool (consecrated 1924). Other works include the new Bodleian Library at Oxford and the new Cambridge University Library. He also planned the new Waterloo Bridge and was responsible for the rebuilding of the House of Commons after World War II.

Shaw, Norman (1831–1912) English architect born in Edinburgh. Worked with his partner William Eden Nesfield (1835–88) in many styles ranging from Gothic Revival to Neo-Baroque, but became an acknowledged leader in the trend away from the Victorian style back to traditional Georgian design, leading to the English Domestic Revival. His major buildings include the Old Swan House, Chelsea (1876), New Scotland Yard (1888), the Gaiety Theatre, Aldwych (1902, now demolished), and Piccadilly Hotel (1905). He also designed the garden suburb at Bedford Park, London.

Smirke, (Sir) Robert (1781–1867) English architect, son of Robert Smirke (1752–1845) the painter and book illustrator. His works in London include Covent Garden Theatre (destroyed), British Museum, King's College and the Royal College of Physicians (now Canada House).

Soane, (Sir) John (1753–1837) English architect, born near Reading, the son of a mason. His works included the Bank of England, the Dulwich Picture Gallery and his own house in Lincoln's Inn Fields, London which he bequeathed to the nation.

Spence, (Sir) Basil Urwin (1907–76) Scottish architect, born in India. His works include the conversions at Queen's College, Cambridge; the pavilions for the Festival of Britain and the British Embassy in Rome. His best-known work is his prize design for the new Coventry Cathedral (1951).

Sullivan, Louis (1856–1924) Architect born in Boston, Massachusetts but studied in Paris. Won the New Exposition building contract (1886) with Dankmar Adler (1844–1900). Sullivan was an early pioneer of the skyscraper: e.g. the Wainwright building in St Louis (1891). His experimental, functional skeleton constructions of skyscrapers and office blocks, particularly the Stock Exchange, Chicago, earned him the title 'Father of Modernism'.

Tange, Kenzo (1913–2005) Japanese architect who designed the National Gymnasium for the Tokyo Olympics and the city plan for the new Nigerian capital of Abuja (completed 1986).

Telford, Thomas (1757–1834) Began life as a stonemason but appointed as surveyor of public works for Shropshire in 1786. Telford is famous for his road-building and bridge-building, particularly those over the River Severn, but he also built the Caledonian Canal (1803–22).

Utzon, Jørn (1918–2008) Danish architect born in Copenhagen. Came to prominence after winning a competition to design Sydney Opera House in 1956. The building, completed between 1957 and 1973, is one of the most famous landmarks of the 20th century. Other works include the Municipal Theatre in Zurich (1964) and the Kuwait Parliamentary Building (1983). His awards include the gold medal of the Royal Institute of British Architects (1978), the Alvar Aalto medal (1982), the Fritz Schumacher prize (1988) and the Pritzker Prize (2003).

Vanbrugh, (Sir) John (1664–1726) English playwright and Baroque architect, born in London, the son of a tradesman. Educated in France and commissioned into Lord Huntingdon's regiment, he suffered imprisonment in the Bastille as a suspected spy. His major architectural work was Blenheim Palace at Woodstock, Oxfordshire, which was so disliked by the Duchess of Marlborough that she refused to pay him for some time.

Wilkins, William (1778–1839) Son of an architect, he was educated at Cambridge and established a reputation as an enthusiastic Greek revivalist with the publication of his Antiquities of Magna Graecia. In London he built St George's Hospital at Hyde Park Corner (1827–8) and the National Gallery in Trafalgar Square (1832).

Wren, Christopher (1632–1723) Wren was educated at Westminster School and Wadham College, Oxford, and became a fellow of All Souls, Oxford. He became professor of astronomy at Gresham College, London, 1657, before returning to Oxford to take up a similar position. The chapel at Pembroke College, Cambridge, 1663, was the first design of Wren's to be built and later that year he began designs for Sheldonian Theatre at Oxford. Following the Great Fire he designed over 50 London churches including St Paul's (1675–1710). Other works included the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford, Chelsea Hospital, Greenwich Observatory, parts of Hampton Court Palace, Royal Exchange, and parts of the Royal Naval College, Greenwich. Wren was a founder of the Royal Society, was knighted in 1673, and became MP for Plympton in 1685, Windsor in 1689, and finally, Weymouth in 1701.

Wright, Frank Lloyd (1867–1959) American architect, born in Richland Center, Wisconsin. Studied civil engineering at Wisconsin University, but the collapse of a newly-built wing of the Wisconsin State Capitol caused him to apply engineering principles to architecture. After setting up in practice in Chicago he became known for low-built prairie-style bungalows like Robie House. His best-known public buildings include the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo (1916–20), the 'Falling Water' weekend retreat at Mill Run in Pennsylvania (1936), the Johnson Wax office block in Racine, Wisconsin (1936), Florida Southern College (1940) and the Guggenheim Museum of Art in New York (1959), in which the exhibits line the walls of a continuous spiral ramp.

Wyatt, James (1746–1813) Born in Staffordshire, he closely followed the style of Robert Adam in his early days, so much so that Adam accused him of plagiarism. Wyatt won a competition to redesign the Pantheon in Oxford Street (1772) and his reputation was made. Fonthill Abbey in Wiltshire displays the extravagant Gothic Revival country house he built for William Thomas Beckford.

Zumthor, Peter (1943–) Swiss architect, winner of the 2009 Pritzker Prize, best known for the design of the Vals Spa hotel complex in Graubünden, Switzerland (1996) and the Kunsthaus Bregenz (art museum) in Austria (1997).

Pritzker Architecture Prize

The most prestigious award in the world of architecture is the Pritzker Architecture Prize, often referred to as 'architecture's Nobel'. Inaugurated in 1979 by the wealthy Pritzker family of Chicago through their Hyatt Foundation, and awarded each year to a living architect for lifetime achievement. The presentation ceremonies move around the world each year, paying homage to the architecture of other eras and also to works of previous winners. The bronze medallion awarded to each Laureate is based on the designs of Chicago architect Louis H Sullivan, widely acknowledged as the father of the skyscraper. On one side is the name of the prize and the winner's name and on the other the words 'firmness, commodity and delight'. These are the three conditions for good architecture referred to by Henry Wotton, England's first ambassador to Venice, in his 1624 treatise, The Elements of Architecture, which was a translation of Marcus Vitruvius' work, Ten Books of Architecture, dedicated to the Roman Emperor Augustus. The panel of judges (usually between six and ten) consists of internationally respected architects and design experts.

ART

There are a number of points to be considered with reference to the following section. The history of art is a complex subject and although it is traditional to fix a label on artists and their works, in fact not only is it often impossible to identify a painter with any one group, it is also just as precarious to attach one term to the whole oeuvre of an artist. Even the historical styles overlap in many instances. The problem is that painters do not like to be pigeonholed, as styles and moods change and very often one style or school may become defunct or develop into something else. In researching this section I have also found that the nationalities of artists, especially those of the Low Countries, are open to interpretation, dependent not only on place of birth or naturalisation but also on style. I have endeavoured to qualify any contentious entries so as to give a more complete picture of the nature of the artist and his or her work. A problem when listing artworks is that not only are particular subjects covered as 'stock' pieces by numerous artists (such as The Adoration of the Magi) but also many individual artists often paint more than one version of a particular work – for example, Cézanne painted several versions of The Card Players and Millet painted several versions of The Sower. The final observation I have to offer in this web of intrigue is that when I came to list paintings in alphabetical order it occurred to me that many have alternative titles. For instance Vermeer's The Kitchen-Maid is listed in reputable sources with the alternative titles of The Milkmaid, The Maid with a Milk Jug, The Cook, The Maid-Servant Pouring Milk and The Servant Pouring Milk.

Famous Artists and Sculptors (selected work at end of each entry)

- Abbate, Niccolo dell' (c1512–71) Italian Mannerist landscapist. Rape of Proserpine.

West, Benjamin (1738–1820) American Neo-classical painter, in England from 1763. Founding member of the Royal Academy and its President in 1792. Court painter to George III of England. The Death of General Wolfe; The Apotheosis of Lord Nelson; Mrs Worrall as Hebe.

Westmacott, (Sir) Richard (1775–1856) Leading Neo-classical sculptor of public monuments and statues. After studying in Italy he returned to London and became a favourite sculptor of the Committee of Taste. His most accomplished monument was a public subscription commission commemorating Charles James Fox, in Westminster Abbey. His bronze monuments include the Achilles at Hyde Park Corner, Park Lane.

Weyden, Rogier van der (c1399–1464) Netherlandish painter of portraits and altarpieces, noted for his technical brilliance and emotional intensity. Lamentation (Pietà) over the dead Christ; Antoine de Bourgogne; Deposition; Bladelin Altarpiece; St Luke Painting the Virgin.

Whistler, James Abbott McNeill (1834–1903) American painter who lived in London and Paris. The critic John Ruskin's vitriolic criticism of his contributions to the Grosvenor Gallery exhibition of 1877, accusing him of 'flinging a pot of paint in the public's face', provoked the famous lawsuit in which Whistler was awarded a farthing's damages. Famous for his evening scenes, called nocturnes, such as the well-known impression of Battersea Bridge in the Tate Gallery, London. Whistler often dressed as the typical stereotype of an artist. Arrangement in Grey and Black, No. I: The Artist's Mother; Arrangement in Grey and Black, No. 2: Thomas Carlyle; Nocturne in Black and Gold: The Falling Rocket; Nocturne in Blue and Gold: Old Battersea Bridge; Miss Cicely Alexander: Harmony in Grey and Green; Symphony in Grey and Green: The Ocean; Symphony in White No. 1: The White Girl.

Whiteread, Rachel (1963–) London-born sculptor and the first woman to win the Turner Prize. She is probably best known for House (1993), a large concrete cast of the inside of a Victorian house. In the autumn of 2005 her work Embankment was installed at the Tate Modern's Turbine Hall as part of the annual Unilever Series. It consists of 14,000 translucent, white polyethylene boxes stacked in a variety of ways.

Painting Movements and Terms

Abstract Art Non-representational forms, relying on line, form and colour, rather than realistic depiction. Originally formulated by Kandinsky c1912, the art form was embraced by all media, including sculpture. The early years of English Abstract art are represented in the Jim Ede collection at Kettle's Yard, Cambridge, which includes a large collection by Henri Gaudier-Brzeska and works by Nicholson and Brancusi.

Abstract Expressionism American painting movement developed in the 1940s from Surrealism, in which the idea is to make painting a spontaneous act, devoid of premeditation. Jackson Pollock and Willem de Kooning are the foremost exponents of Action Painting (or Tachisme, as it is called in France), using riotous swirls and splatters of colour. Rothko, Motherwell and Gorky were also Abstract Expressionists.

Academic Painting Traditional and figurative painting, often representing the work of a school or academy.

Action Painting see Abstract Expressionism.

Alla Prima Describes the technique, general since the 19th century but considered freakish and slapdash before then, of completing the picture surface in one session in full colour and with such opacity that neither any previous drawing nor underpainting (if in existence) modifies the final effect. The French term is 'Au Premier Coup'.

Altarpiece Decorated screen or panel placed behind an altar. The number of panels is indicated by the words diptych (2), triptych (3) or polyptych (many).

Armory Show, 1913 This exhibition introduced New York to modern European painting and sculpture, including the work of Marcel Duchamp.

Arts and Crafts English aesthetic movement that grew out of disenchantment at the mass-produced and trite decorative arts that followed the Industrial Revolution. By 1861, the social reformer, poet and designer William Morris had co-founded a firm of interior decorators dedicated to recapturing the essence and quality of medieval craftsmanship. Together with artists Edward Burne-Jones and Ford Madox Brown, and architect Philip Webb, Morris set out to produce hand-crafted jewellery, wallpaper, textiles, furniture and books. Many of Morris's wallpaper and furniture designs continue to be popular today.

Art Brut (Raw Art) Term coined by Jean Dubuffet, referring to spontaneous and untrained artworks, often by criminals or the mentally ill.

Art Nouveau (New Art) Art and design style developed at the end of the 19th century, incorporating angular or sinuous vegetable forms into furniture and architecture. The style had its roots in the Arts and Crafts Movement and was popular all over Europe and North America. Samuel Bing coined the term when he opened his Paris gallery under the name L'Art Nouveau in 1895, although in Germany it was known as 'Jugendstil', in Italy as 'Stile Floreale' or 'Stile Liberty', in Spain as 'Modernismo' and in Austria as 'Sezession'. Leading exponents included René Lalique (glassware), Louis Comfort Tiffany (lamps and jewellery), Alphonse Mucha (graphic design), Alfred Gilbert (sculpture), Charles Rennie Mackintosh (interiors, buildings, furniture), Victor Horta and Hector Guimard (architecture), and Klimt, Beardsley, Jan Toorop and Ferdinand Hodler (art).

Ashcan School Painting group preoccupied with depicting the low-life of New York in the early 20th century. George Wesley Bellows and his master, Robert Henri, were leading exponents.

Attribution An artwork is 'attributed' to an artist when its provenance has not been proven.

Au Premier Coup see Alla Prima.

Automatism The method of producing a painting spontaneously and without conscious control. Used by Surrealists such as Miró and Abstract Expressionists such as Pollock.

Avant-garde Literally 'Vanguard'. In the forefront of artistic development, often with a conscious rejection of traditional methods or prior art forms.

Barbizon School Mid-19th-century French school of landscape painting based in the village of Barbizon, near Fontainebleau. Members included Théodore Rousseau, Narcisse Diaz, Daubigny and Millet. As the precursors of Impressionism they painted en plein air observing light.

Baroque European style of art and architecture following the High Renaissance and Mannerism, c1600–1740. It was a particularly Catholic style, popular in Italy, France and Spain in churches and public buildings, and encouraged as an integral part of the Counter-Reformation to appeal to the emotions and the senses of a still largely illiterate population. It was also eminently suitable for dramatising the idea of the divine right of kingship, and was fostered by many monarchs, such as Louis XIV of France. Exponents included the sculptor Bernini and the painters Rubens and da Cortona.

Bauhaus School of modern art and design originally based in Weimar, founded and headed by the architect Walter Gropius in 1919. Its policy was to explore the avant-garde and to reforge the link between art and design and industry, which the Arts and Crafts Movement had largely surrendered. The Bauhaus moved to Dessau in 1925, and then to Berlin, where it was closed by the Nazis in 1933. The new Bauhaus was set up by László Moholy-Nagy in Chicago in 1937.

Blaue Reiter, Der (Blue Rider) German Expressionist group that exhibited in Munich in 1911 and 1912. Among its members was the Russian émigré Kandinsky, who developed one of the earliest forms of abstract painting, and Franz Marc. It was an early titlework of Kandinsky's which provided the name. Other key members were Georges Braque, Robert Delaunay, André Derain, Paul Klee, August Macke, Henri Rousseau and Maurice de Vlaminck. Representative works are at the Kunsthalle, Bielefeld, Germany.

Bloomsbury Group British group of the 1920s and 1930s, influenced by French Post-Impressionism and later developments. Members included Vanessa Bell, Roger Fry and Duncan Grant. Roger Fry staged the first Post-Impressionist exhibition in London in 1910.

Brücke, Die (The Bridge) Among the earliest of the German Expressionist groups, Die Brücke was founded in Dresden in 1905. Founding members were Fritz Bleyl, Erich Heckel, Ernst Ludwig Kirchner and Karl Schmidt-Rottluff. Later members were Emil Nolde, Max Pechstein and Otto Mueller. The group disbanded in 1913.

Cabinet Picture Small easel picture, usually not more than about 3 or 4 feet across, and often much less. The minor Dutch masters were the principal painters of this type of furniture picture at its best.

Camera Obscura Mechanical means of securing accuracy in drawing, particularly of topographical detail. Invented in the 16th century and consisting of an arrangement of lenses and mirrors in a darkened tent or box. The view seen through the lens is reflected through the mirrors on to a sheet of paper, so that all the observer has to do is to trace round the edges. Canaletto is known to have used the device in making studies for his 'Vedute' (views). Camera Lucida is a more sophisticated optical instrument incorporating a prism.

Camden Town Group British group formed in 1911 and influenced by the Post-Impressionists. Members included Sickert, Gore, Augustus John, Harold Gilman, Charles Ginner, Lucien Pissaro and Robert Bevan.

Capriccio A picture in which real scenes, forms and figures are rearranged to suit a particular composition.

Caravaggisti Those artists heavily influenced by the style of Caravaggio, particularly in his use of chiaroscuro – contrasting light and dark. A strong Dutch Caravaggist school in the 17th century included van Honthorst, Terborch and Dirk van Baburen.

Cartoon Originally a full-size preparatory drawing of an intended artwork (painting, fresco or tapestry).

Chiaroscuro (Italian, light and dark) Defined contrast of light and dark most particularly in candle-lit scenes. Term used to describe works by Rembrandt and Caravaggio.

Classicism The imitation of Classical art, i.e. the style of Ancient Greece or Rome. An ordered style based on the harmony of perspective and composition, devised in the early Renaissance period by Filippo Brunelleschi. Classicism influenced thinking in the Renaissance period, leading to the philosophies of Platonism and Humanism, and the stories of Homer and other ancients provided a host of popular subjects which were applied to portraits, history subjects (Titian, Jacques-Louis David) and landscape (Poussin, Claude) into the 18th century. The Stoicism of ancient Rome provided the inspiration for the Neo-classical reaction to the Rococo style in the 1780s. In the 19th century the more mundane details of life in ancient Greece or Rome became the vehicle for finely executed decorative works by Leighton, Alma-Tadema and Albert Moore.

CoBrA Painting group that drew members from Copenhagen, Brussels and Amsterdam, including Appel and Jorn; founded in 1948. Their style incorporated violent figurative forms with Action Painting. Collections are in the Stedelijk Museum, Amsterdam, the Stedelijk Van Abbe-Museum, Eindhoven, and the Museum voor Schone Kunsten, Ghent.

Collage Picture built up wholly or partly from pieces of paper, cloth or other material stuck on to the canvas or other ground. The word comes from the French coller (to stick). The device was much used by the early Cubists and by the Dadaists, such as Kurt Schwitters. In his last years Matisse used pieces of coloured paper as a complete substitute for painting.

Colorfield Painting American offshoot of Abstract Expressionism and Minimalism, exploring monochromes or restricted contrasts in paint. The original of this idea was Malevich's Black Square of 1913. Rothko and Klein were typical exponents.

Constructivism Russian abstract sculptural and architectural movement from 1917 to 1921, founded by Vladimir Tatlin and developed by Naum Gabo and Antoine Pevsner, whose interest centred on movement in space and a reflection of the modern age.

Counterproof Mirror-image reproduction made by damping an original drawing or engraving, laying a damp sheet of clean paper on it, and then running both through a press. It is sometimes done by an artist in order to bring a fresh eye to his/her work by seeing it in reverse, but it is also the commonest method of faking 'original' drawings. Such fakes are obviously easily detectable because of the reversal. An offset is the same as a counterproof but has a wider meaning, for example in printing.

Cubism In 1907 Picasso and Braque began what was perhaps the first major development in painting away from figurative art. They were influenced by African tribal masks and by Cézanne, who looked at the world in terms of subtle coloured planes. This was the basis of Facet Cubism (1907–9). Analytical Cubism (1910–12) further fragmented basic shapes from all angles, and Synthetic Cubism (1913–14) totally recreated new objects. Delaunay (see Orphism), Léger and Gris were prominent Cubists. Although, as a particular style of art, Cubism developed into other things, it changed forever the way objects, and even the human form, were looked at.

Dada Formulated as an anarchic form of Expressionism during World War I in Zurich, 1916, possibly by the poet Tristan Tzara. The main centres of Dada in Germany were in Berlin, Hanover and Cologne. Its purpose was to discomfit and enrage the viewer. One of its major exponents was Kurt Schwitters, whose Elterwater Merz is in the Hatton Gallery at the University of Newcastle upon Tyne. Other exponents included Man Ray, Jean Arp, Duchamp, Ernst, Hannah Hoch and Picabia. Dada eventually developed into Surrealism.

Euston Road School Originally known as the Fitzroy Street School, this was a London-based school of painting and drawing, 1937–9, established by Victor Pasmore, Claude Rogers and William Coldstream. It aimed to counteract the tendencies of Surrealism and abstract art by returning to more figurative and natural forms of expression. Exponents included Vanessa Bell, Eric Gill, Duncan Grant, Augustus John, Kenneth Martin, John Nash and Fred Uhlman.

Expressionism Early 20th-century painting movement that expressed highly charged emotions and thoughts through colour, violence, distortion and exaggeration. The German Expressionist groups were among the first so to characterise their work, which itself developed further into Dada and Abstract Expressionism.

Fauves (Wild Beasts) An initially derogatory label applied by the critics of artists such as Derain, Matisse, Rouault and Vlaminck when their work was exhibited in one room at the Paris Salon d'Automne of 1905. The distortion and flat patterns, along with the intensity of the colour, created a furore, and the Fauves were born. Matisse came to be regarded as their leader, although the movement itself had fallen apart by 1908 as a number of its members defected to Cubism.

Fête champêtre Typical Rococo scene of lovers in an ideal setting, as epitomised by Lancret and Fragonard.

Fête galante Pastoral masquerade in dreamlike setting, as painted by Lancret and Watteau.

Figurative Art Artworks that contain recognisable objects.

Found Object (objet trouvé) A Dadaist and Surrealist technique of taking any given object and displaying it as an art form, as in Bicycle Wheel.

Fresco Wall-painting using water-based paints on damp plaster, particularly in European churches and ancient Greek and Egyptian temples. Giotto was one of the masters of fresco painting.

Futurism Italian art movement developed in Venice c1909–15, embracing the machine and new technology. Balla, Carrà, Umberto Boccioni and Gino Severini were its leading exponents. The term was born in Paris, in an article in Le Figaro by the poet Filippo Marinetti (1876–1944). Although Futurism is sometimes used to mean any art more recent than 1900, as a discrete aesthetic movement it died early in World War I.

Genre Type of subject painting or, more particularly, paintings of everyday life in a naturalistic style, reported without idealisation. Extremely popular in 17th-century Holland.

German Expressionism Much of German Expressionism grew out of a painterly reaction to modernity, but most particularly to the horrors of World War I. Die Brücke was one of the first Expressionist groups, and the movement also embraced Der Blaue Reiter and Dada. Representative artists include Ernst Barlach, Beckmann, Grosz, Kirchner and Nolde.

German Romantic Painting Early 19th-century forerunner of the English Pre-Raphaelite school. Artists were inspired by the collection of 14th and 15th century painting at the home of Bernhard August von Lindenau, now the Staatliches Lindenau-Museum, Altenburg. Friedrich, Philip Otto Runge and the Nazarenes are typical exponents.

Gothic A generic term first used in the Renaissance period to describe the style of the 11th to 15th centuries. It was initially a critical term implying barbarism because the style made no reference to Classical precedents. In the 19th century medieval architecture and painting 'pre-Raphael' became the inspiration for a Victorian resurgence, led by the critic John Ruskin and the architect-designer A.W. Pugin, which produced 'Gothic' fantasies far removed from the original inspiration. William Morris, whilst also taking the medieval Gothic period for inspiration, went back to basics and developed the culture of craftsmanship and simple forms.

Grisaille A painting done in tones of grey to define shadows or modelling. Often used in trompe l'oeil.

Happening An art form developed from the 1960s in which an artist participates in an action that encompasses the whole purpose of the piece, and once over is gone. Similar to Performance Art. Largely developed by Joseph Beuys.

High Victorian Art The British art of the 1870s until the turn of the century, epitomised by the languid classical beauties of Albert Moore, Leighton and Alma-Tadema – fabulously painted, very beautiful and often low on meaning. Fine collections are in the Lady Lever Art Gallery, Port Sunlight; Birmingham Museum and Art Gallery; and the Tate Gallery, London, as well as at Leighton's House in Holland Park Road, London.

History Painting After portraiture, the painting of uplifting scenes from history, the Bible or allegory was the highest form of art according to Reynolds. It was also used very effectively for propaganda purposes by the Neo-Classical painters such as Jacques-Louis David. (See his Death of Marat.)

Hudson River School 19th-century American landscape painting school, highly Romantic in feeling and glorifying the wonders of nature. The name is properly applied to the period after 1825 when leading exponent Thomas Cole, painter of The Voyage of Life, settled in New York. Other members include Albert Bierstadt, Asher B. Osmond and Frederick Church.

Impasto Word used to describe the thickness of the paint applied to a canvas or panel. When the paint is so heavily applied that it stands up in lumps, with the tracks of the brush clearly evident, it is said to be 'heavily' impasted.

Impressionism Essentially the painting of light and its effects on nature and objects. Developed in France in the late 19th century and influential all over Europe. Monet's Impression: Sunrise (Musée Marmottan, Paris) of 1872 was the work that suggested the name of the movement. Other leading protagonists included Cézanne, Degas, Morisot, Pissarro, Renoir and Sisley. The Impressionist exhibitions were held between 1874 and 1886. Seurat and Paul Signac took Impressionism a stage further with Pointillism.

International Gothic Late 14th-century form of Gothic which spread throughout Europe. Leading exponents were Gentile da Fabriano and Pisanello.

Kinetic Art Art that relies on real or apparent movement.

Kitchen Sink School Term coined by art critic David Sylvester in 1954, referring to a group of British social realist painters popular in mid-1950s who focused their work on the unglamorous. Members: John Bratby, Derrick Greaves, Edward Middleditch, Leslie Duxbury and Jack Smith.

Land Art, Earth Art Arrangements of earth mounds or natural elements in situ, often in rural areas. Developed in the USA from the 1960s as a reaction to materialistic Pop Art. Richard Long is a leading exponent. Grizedale Forest in Cumbria is one of the foremost sculpture parks here, specialising in sculpture within natural settings.

Maestà (Majesty) A term used to describe a painting of the Virgin and Child enthroned, with saints or angels.

Mannerism The style that succeeded the High Renaissance, c1520–1600, exemplified by exaggerated figure drawing. Bronzino, El Greco, Michelangelo, Parmigianino and Pontorno were all Mannerists.

Metaphysical School Surrealist art group formed in Ferrara in 1917 by Giorgio de Chirico and Carlo Carrà, which survived until 1920.

Minimalism American art movement in painting and sculpture, essentially paring ideas down to bare essentials. Exponents include Carl André and Richard Serra.

Mobile A form of sculpture invented in 1932 by Alexander Calder, and named by Marcel Duchamp. Usually a mobile consists of a number of shapes cut from wood, cardboard, plastic or metal, connected by wires or rods and suspended so that a gentle touch will cause the whole to revolve and produce transforming 3D patterns of planes, solids and colours, and sometimes sounds.

Modern Art Accepted as the course of art in the 20th century from Impressionism up to the present day, embracing all major artistic developments including Cubism, Expressionism, Surrealism, Abstract Art, Pop Art, Minimalism and Performance Art. Excellent British public collections are in the Tate Galleries in London, Liverpool and St Ives; and the Scottish National Gallery of Modern Art in Edinburgh.

Nabis (Prophets) French anti-Impressionist art group inspired by Paul Gauguin's use of outline and flat colour which exhibited from 1892 to 1899. Members included Pierre Bonnard, Maurice Denis, Paul Sérusier and Edouard Vuillard.

Nazarenes Group of early 19th-century German and Austrian Romantic religious painters, founded by Friedrich Overbeck and Franz Pforr.

Neo-classicism Often described as the art of the French Revolution, it was a late 18th-century reaction to the fussiness of the Rococo, embracing noble simplicity and stoic grandeur. Jacques-Louis David was its leading exponent in painting, and Antonio Canova in sculpture.

Neo-Expressionism Refers to an International art movement of the late 1970s and 1980s involving revival of expressionist concerns

Neo-Impressionism A pre-Cubist movement which examined Impressionism from a scientific standpoint rather than an aesthetic one. An offshoot of Neo-Impressionism was Pointillism.

Neo-Plasticism Name used by Mondrian & van Doesburg for their style of pure abstract art, first used in De Stijl magazine in 1917.

Neo-Romanticism British art movement existing before WW2, reviving the interest in the Romantic landscapes of Blake and Samuel Palmer

Neue Sachlichkeit An inter-war German brutal realism art style represented by Dix, Grosz and Christian Schad. The literal meaning is 'New Objectivity'. Name coined by G.F. Artlaub.

Newlyn School Group of British painters based in the fishing village near Penzance, Cornwall, and dedicated to Plein air, following the lead in France. The school was founded by Stanhope Forbes (1857-1947) and his wife Elizabeth (1857–1912). Other members included Walter Langley (1852–1922) and Laura Knight (née Johnson) and her husband Harold.

New English Art Club British art group founded in 1886, which included George Clausen, Stanhope Forbes, Sargent, Steer and Edward Stott's work. The Club is well represented in the collection at Cartwright Hall, Bradford.

Norwich School A group of early 19th-century landscape painters led by John Cotman and John Crome.

Novecento Italiano Italian art movement of the 1920s which encouraged a return to the renaissance art.

Novembergruppe Formed in Berlin 1918 and advocating art for the masses. Led by Max Pechstein and César Klein.

Omega Workshops Co-operative workshop-cum-showroom at 33 Fitzroy Square, London, founded by critic Roger Fry in 1913, for the production of painted furniture, textiles, artefacts and decorative commissions. Vanessa Bell and Duncan Grant produced designs for Omega.

Op Art (short for Optical Art) is a style of painting which manipulates overall patterns, using repeated shapes or undulating lines which give an optical illusion of movement and often dazzles the beholder. Victor Vasarely (1908–97) is often considered a precursor of the op art movement with his black and white geometrical paintings but the movement became established in the early 1960s by Bridget Riley when she began to use colour in her optical paintings. The term became popularised following the 1965 New York City exhibition 'The Responsive Eye' at the Museum of Modern Art.

Perspective Quasi-mathematical system for the representation of three-dimensional objects in spatial recession on a two-dimensional surface, i.e. for the creation of an independent pictorial space as a microcosm of nature. The basic assumption of all perspective systems is that parallel lines never meet, but they appear to do so; and that, further, all parallel lines going in any one direction meet at a single point on the horizon, known as a vanishing point.

Pietà (Pity) Painting or sculpture showing the dead Christ cradled in the lap of the Virgin Mary.

Plein air 19th- and 20th-century landscape painting carried out in the open air, depicting nature and light as realistically as possible, as opposed to the deliberate Classicism of Old Masters such as Claude Lorrain and Poussin. Plein airists included the Barbizon School, the Impressionists, the Pre-Raphaelites, Millais, Ford Madox Brown and William Holman Hunt.

Pointillism Also known as 'Divisionism'. Seurat developed the Neo-Impressionist technique of using tiny dots of colour to build up form and subject; most notably used in his Sunday Afternoon on the Island of the Grand Jatte.

Pop Art American-formulated art form embracing painting, graphic design and sculpture, and preoccupied with modern technology, materialism and advertising. Exponents included Warhol, Blake, Johns, Robert Rauschenberg, Hamilton, Hockney, Lichtenstein and Claes Oldenburg.

Post-Impressionism Roger Fry of the Bloomsbury Group coined the term when he staged the 'Manet and the Post-Impressionists' Exhibition in London in 1910. They were artists whose chief feature in common was that they had rejected naturalism in various ways, through form, colour and subject, and included Cézanne, Denis, Gauguin, van Gogh, Picasso, Rouault, Seurat, Paul Sérusier, and Vlaminck.

Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood The dream of a new generation to return art to its original purity of form and colour by preferring truth to nature to the stylised ideals of the Royal Academy and the ground rules laid down by its first president, Reynolds. The group was formed in London in 1848 by the painters Dante Gabriel Rossetti, William Holman Hunt, Millais and James Collinson, the art critics William Michael Rossetti and Frederick Stephens, and the sculptor Thomas Woolner. The group itself was shortlived, as its members were following separate artistic paths by 1853, but its impact on contemporary Victorian art was far more long-lasting. Pre-Raphaelitism strongly influenced Ford Madox Brown, Burne-Jones, Augustus Egg, Frith, Hubert Herkomer, Watts, among others, and formed the basis of High Victorian Art. It was also a foundation stone of the Arts and Crafts Movement, led by William Morris, and the English Art Nouveau of Charles Rennie Mackintosh and the Glasgow School, Scottish painters of the late 19th century. The style also opened the way for a new class of art collectors in the form of major industrialists based in the north, important contemporary art galleries such as the Grosvenor Gallery, and satire in the form of Gilbert and Sullivan's Patience and the cartoons in Punch. Subject matter varies from the willowy and lush allegorical beauties of Rossetti and Burne-Jones to the real-life and religious subjects of Holman Hunt and Ford Madox Brown. Major collections of Pre-Raphaelite art are in the Tate Gallery, London; Walker Art Gallery, Liverpool; Lady Lever Art Gallery, Port Sunlight; Birmingham Museum and Art Gallery, and Manchester City Art Gallery.

Primitive Term applied to pre-Renaissance art and provincial or naive art by untrained artists often ignoring perspective (see Alfred Wallis).

Provenance The documented history – and hence authenticity – of an artwork: who created it, who owned it, etc.

Rayonism Combination of Cubism, Futurism and Orphism developed by Russian artists Mikhail Larionov and Natalia Goncharova in 1911.

Ready-Made Term coined by Duchamp for his found objects, such as the urinal he exhibited at the 1913 Armory Show, signed 'R. Mutt'.

Realism Term applied to the realistic painting of artists such as Courbet, using a precision of detail and natural colour without idealisation.

Renaissance The 'rebirth' of art and ideas in Italy after the Dark Ages and Gothic art, starting in the 14th century. It had repercussions around the European world on artistic expression, intellectual discussion, religious thought and scientific experiment. It was inspired by the rediscovery of the Classicism of the ancient civilisations of Rome and Greece in Italy and the rise of humanism. The Early Renaissance period, up to c1500, includes the artists Giotto, Duccio and Uccello, and the first experiments in art with perspective and painterly modelling. The High Renaissance saw the development of architecture, sculpture and painting by men such as Michelangelo, Leonardo, Raphael and Titian, leading to Mannerism and the late Renaissance of Correggio, Veronese and the sculptor Benvenuto Cellini. Dürer was responsible for introducing new ideas into Germany, and Holbein the Younger into England. France embraced Renaissance ideals following the rise of Italian influence after the marriage of Catherine de' Medici to the future Henri II in 1533.

Rococo 18th-century French decorative style, epitomised by the paintings of Rigaud, Boucher, Fragonard and Watteau. It illustrated the dream world in which the nobility wished to live, of sunlit fêtes galantes, garden swings, cherry-picking and whimsical shepherdesses. The French Revolution forced them to face an unpleasant reality. Rococo also influenced painters, architects and sculptors in Austria, Germany and Italy.

Romanticism The early 19th-century reaction to the cold formality of Neo-classicism, the style introduced a new depth of colour, expression and passion into painting not seen since Titian, particularly in the works of Delacroix and Géricault. Stylistically different Romanticists were William Blake, Constable, Friedrich, Fuseli, Turner, the Nazarenes and the Pre-Raphaelites.

Sacra conversazione A painting of the Virgin and Child, often with saints or family in an informal setting, first depicted by Fra Angelico in the 15th-century. The term literally means 'Holy Conversation'.

Slade School of Art London art school, founded 1871, that in the 1890s and under the professorship in 1918–30 of Henry Tonks produced some of the most important painters of British 20th-century art. Slade teachers and graduates included David Bomberg, Mark Gertler, Harold Gilman, Spencer Gore, Duncan Grant, Augustus John, Gwen John, Wyndham Lewis, Ambrose McEvoy, Paul Nash, C.R.W. Nevinson, Ben Nicholson, William Orpen, William Rothenstein, Matthew Smith, Stanley Spencer and Edward Wadsworth.

Socialist Realism A realistic if stylised art form officially sponsored and sanctioned for propaganda purposes in the Soviet Union, where it was first defined in 1932, and later in China and Cuba.

Stijl, De ('The style') Dutch 20th-century art movement which embraced painting, sculpture, graphic design, interior design and architecture. Exponents include Mondrian, van Doesburg, Bart van der Leek and the architects Rietveld and Jacobus Oud. De Stijl architecture includes the Zonnestraal Sanatorium by Johannes Duiker, and Rietveld's Schröder house at Utrecht.

Suprematism Malevich produced his first non-representational Suprematist painting in 1913, Black Square, exploring elementary forms and restricted contrasts of colour which in turn influenced Expressionism, Abstract Art and Colorfield Painting.

Surrealism Term coined in 1922 by the poet André Breton to describe the real and unreal world of waking and dreaming as depicted by the artist. Breton chose term from earlier description of a Chagall work by Guillaume Apollinaire. Developed from Dada and influenced by Sigmund Freud's ideas. Exponents included de Chirico, Dali, Duchamp, Ernst, Klee, Magritte, Miró, Man Ray and Tanguy.

Symbolism Late figurative style of painting, associated with the Art Nouveau period. Jan Toorop, Johan Thorn Prikker, Munch, Arnold Böcklin, Redon, Puvis de Chavannes, Rouault and Moreau were all exponents.

Tachisme Term often used synonymously with Abstract Expressionism, but it strictly refers to a French movement of the 1950s which consisted of paintings composed of large blobs of colour.

Tempera Although this term actually means any kind of binder which will serve to ‘temper’ powder colour and make it workable, in practice it is confined to egg tempera (using the yolk of the egg), which was until the late 15th century the commonest technique of painting easel pictures.

Tenebrism Sombrely atmospheric painting particularly as seen in the works of those early 17th-century painters, mostly Neapolitan and Spanish, who were much influenced by Caravaggio. The term literally means ‘Dark colouring’.

Trompe l’oeil Illusionistic painting effect, such as painting a ceiling to look as if it is open to the sky. The term literally means ‘Deceive the eye’.

Veduta (View) Detailed topographical painting of an existing place. Leading ‘Vedutisti’ were Guardi and Canaletto.

Vernissage The practice – once common, now discontinued – by which painters would enter an exhibition after the pictures had been hung but before it was open to the public, so that they could varnish and also retouch their pictures. Turner would often submit his pictures incomplete and take advantage of Vernissage (Varnishing Day). Nowadays the custom is merely to invite favoured patrons to see the pictures before the public are allowed in.

Vorticism Brief English movement from 1914 with similar influences to Futurism, led by Percy Wyndham Lewis.

Watercolour The English landscapists were particularly strong in their use of watercolour, especially the artists of the Norwich School, William Blake, Girtin, Bonington and Turner. Dante Gabriel Rossetti brought a new jewel-like richness to watercolour painting in the 1850s, which raised the medium from insipidity.

Young British Artists Movement having its foundation in the exhibition ‘Freeze’, organised while he was a student at Goldsmiths College, London, in 1988 by Damien Hirst, who became the most celebrated of the YBAs. Goldsmiths, which numbered Michael Craig-Martin among its teachers, encouraged new forms of creativity. Leading artists have preserved dead animals (Hirst), presented her own bed (Tracey Emin) and made sculpture from women’s tights (Sarah Lucas). Artists include: Fiona Banner, Christine Borland, Mark Wallinger, Rachel Whiteread.

Abstract Expressionism
The Medici family are depicted as the Magi
Jean de Dinteville, French ambassador to the court of Henry VIII and Georges de Selve, bishop of Lavaur are believed to be the two ambassadors depicted amid the scientific instruments and skull.
Sculpted by Antony Gormley and situated on the site of an old coal mine next to the A1 at Eighton Banks, Gateshead, Tyne and Wear. The 20m (65ft) high figure in steel with a copper mixture has a wingspan of 54m (175ft), a weight of 200 tonnes (100 tonnes for the body and 50 tonnes per wing), and cost £800,000 to construct, largely funded by National Lottery donations. As the surface oxidises to form a patina the sculpture has become a rich brown colour
Aka The Arnolfini Wedding. Portrait of a black-robed Giovanni di Nicolao Arnolfini and his green-frocked wife (not pregnant just over-elaborate material) with their dog.
Refers to a decorative style of the 1920s and 1930s
The Hermitage in St Petersburg
Sir William Nicholson (1872–1949) and James Pryde (1866–1941), still-life and poster painters
Pieter the Elder spelt the name with an 'H' until 1559 and his children resorted back to original spelling
Millais' grandson, the future Admiral William James Destroyed by Churchill's wife
Modern bronzes are made either in sand moulds or by the 'cire perdue' (lost wax) method, which consists of a model smaller than the mould, the space between being filled with wax and vent pipes inserted. The molten bronze is poured in the top and takes the place of the wax which has been melted out
Black convex glass used by artists to reflect the landscape in miniature and, in doing so, to merge details and reduce the strength of colour so that the artist is presented with a broad picture of the scene
Objects such as newspaper, string or cloth which are pasted onto paper or canvas. Picasso's Still Life with Chair Caning may have been the first example of collage
Named from the town in Modena where he was born
Art museum in Somerset House, on the Strand - houses the art collection of the Courtauld Institute of Art, a self-governing college of the University of London.
Pictor Celerimus (swiftest of painters) is how Cranach is described on his tombstone
Les Demoiselles d'Avignon by Picasso
Henri Rousseau (hence his byname 'Le Douanier')
In a nightclub in Zurich (Cabaret Voltaire) 1916
Stolen in 1961 but later found
Tom Keating faked Samuel Palmer paintings; Hans van Meegeren faked Vermeers
Technique employed by Surrealists such as Max Ernst, which involves placing a piece of paper over an object and rubbing the paper with chalk or charcoal Popular name of Vladimir Tretchikoff's 'Chinese Girl' one of the best-selling art prints ever. The original painting was sold to British jeweller Laurence Graff for £982,050 in March 2013.
Willy Lott's farm
James Montgomery Flagg
Term used to describe types of printing such as etching and engraving whereby the design is incised as opposed to relief printing, such as wood cutting, where the raised portion creates the design
Caravaggio in 1606 forced to flee Rome after killing a man in fit of temper Sculpture by Rodin depicting Francesca da Rimini (aka Francesca da Polenta - 1255-85) immortalised in Dante's Inferno, and Paolo Malatesta locked in an amorous embrace after reading the story of Lancelot and Guinevere.
Sir Peter Paul Rubens
James Whistler, for Ruskin's attack on his Falling Rocket (won the case but received only one farthing)
Now attributed to Duccio Di Buoninsegna: formerly thought to be a work of Cimabue (Vasari's attribution)
Refers to a type of painting which combines a realistic technique with fanciful designs, as in the paintings of René Magritte and other surrealists. In its strict sense it refers to German realist art of the 1920s
The title refers to a satyr in Greek mythology who was flayed alive by the god Apollo. The PVC membrane has a fleshy quality and the dark red colour suggests something 'of the physical, of the earthly, of the bodily'. Marsyas confounds spatial perception, immersing the viewer in a monochromatic field of colour. It is impossible to view the entire sculpture from any one position. The sculpture comprises three steel rings joined together by a single span. The flute-shaped structure is 500ft long and 10 storeys high, filling the entire space of the Tate Modern's Turbine Hall
Form of collage but refers specifically to the use of components which are complete in themselves
Richard Dadd (1817–86) English literary painter later confined in an asylum
Marcus Harvey painted this controversial painting on display at the 'Sensations' exhibition of 1997
Modigliani
Tintoretto's Paradiso in the Doge's Palace, Venice (30ft by 74ft)
David Hockney's Bigger Trees Near Warter is made up of 50 canvases totalling 40ft by 15ft
A European painter of skill who worked before the 19th century
Rubens (Massacre of the Innocents) £49.5m ($76.6m) in 2002 at Sotheby's, London.

Orphism	Term coined by poet Apollinaire in 1912 to distinguish the fragmented use of colour from the Cubist approach
Painting: highest price at auction	Edvard Munch's The Scream (1895) sold at Sotheby's in New York City on 2 May 2012. The masterpiece is one of four versions created by Munch and the only one that is privately owned. The painting sold for $119,922,500.
Patina	Term used to describe the beautiful greenish surface alteration on a bust or statue caused by age
Pears Soap Advertisement	Bubbles by Sir John Everett Millais

Pop Art: term coined by	The critic Lawrence Alloway
Post-Painterly Abstraction	Term coined by the critic Clement Greenberg in 1964 to refer to non-objective artists who were not members of the Abstract Expressionist movement
Primary Colours	The colours from which all other colours are made up i.e. Blue, Yellow and Red
Purism	Term coined in 1918 by Amédée Ozenfant in 'Après le Cubisme' which rejected decorative qualities of Cubism
Putto	A plump naked boy used as a decorative addition to painting and sculpture, especially in the Baroque
Quattrocento	The 15th century, especially with reference to Renaissance Italian Art (literally four hundred, i.e. short for 14 hundred)
Renoir's Nude Sitter	Renoir's maid, Gabrielle, would often sit as nude model for his paintings
Rheumatism Sufferer	In later life Renoir was forced to paint with the brush tied to his fingers
Rokeby Venus (Velázquez)	Slashed by suffragette in the National Gallery
Saturday Evening Post	Norman Rockwell was famous for the covers
Sculpture: highest price at auction	A life-sized bronze by Alberto Giacometti, L'Homme qui marche (Walking Man I) sold for $104,327,006 (£65,001,250) at Sotheby's in London (Feb 2010).
Scumbling	Term used to describe the effect when an opaque colour is applied over another colour but allows the original colour to show through
Secondary Colours	Aka Complementary Colours; produced when two primary colours are mixed together, i.e. Green, Orange & Violet
Sensation	Charles Saatchi's controversial 1997 exhibition at the Royal Academy which includes such items as Damien Hirst's Tiger Shark , Bisected Pig & Thousand Years ; Marcus Harvey's Myra , and Tracey Emin's Everyone I have ever slept with
Stole Mona Lisa 1914	Vincenzo Perugia (sentenced to one year, 15 days imprisonment)
Stolen from National Gallery	The Scream (stolen in 1994 but returned 2 months later)
Tempest, The (Kokoschka)	Depicts the artist and Alma Mahler resting in a huge cockleshell in the midst of a raging sea
Thousand Years	Damien Hirst's rotting cow head in a smear of blood, beset by flies
Turner Prize winners	Sponsored by Channel 4 and awarded to a British artist under 50. Inaugurated in 1984, the prize is worth £20,000 to the winner and is awarded at a ceremony at Tate Britain where an exhibition of the short-listed artists is on display for several months before the prize is announced. The full list of winners is Malcolm Morley (1984), Howard Hodgkin (1985), Gilbert and George (1986), Richard Deacon (1987), Tony Cragg (1988), Richard Long (1989), Prize suspended (1990), Anish Kapoor (1991), Grenville Davey (1992), Rachel Whiteread (1993), Antony Gormley (1994), Damien Hirst (1995), Douglas Gordon (1996), Gillian Wearing (1997), Chris Ofili (1998), Steve McQueen (1999), Wolfgang Tillmans (2000), Martin Creed (2001), Keith Tyson (2002), Grayson Perry (2003), Jeremy Deller (2004), Simon Starling (2005), Tomma Abts (2006), Mark Wallinger (2007), Mark Leckey (2008), Richard Wright (2009), Susan Philipsz (2010), Martin Boyce (2011), Elizabeth Price (2012).
Van Gogh: only painting sold	Red Vineyard was the only painting he sold in his lifetime

NB: In 2006 the International Astronomical Union voted on a new definition for a planet. Pluto was subsequently relegated to the status of dwarf planet and is now considered as a prototype for a new category of trans-Neptunian objects. There are now only eight planets recognised by the IAU, while solar system objects classified as dwarf planets are: Ceres, Pluto Haumea, Eris and Makemake. Planets, according to the IAU definition, must be in orbit around the sun, be almost spherical, and must have cleared the neighbourhood around their orbits. Small Solar System Body (SSSB) is the new term used to describe objects in the solar system that are neither planets nor dwarf planets. The term encompasses all the classical asteroids, with the exception of Ceres; all trans-Neptunian objects (TNOs), with the exception of the aforementioned dwarf planets; all comets; and the remaining minor planets (i.e. the centaurs and Trojans).

Astronomers Royal

John Flamsteed	1675–1719	Sir Frank Dyson	1910–1933	Until 1972 the title of Astronomer Royal was given to the director of Greenwich Observatory. It is now an honorary title for an outstanding astronomer, who receives a stipend of approx £100 per year.
Edmund Halley	1720–1742	Sir Harold Jones	1933–1955

Astronomy and Space: Selected Data

Albedo Reflecting power of a planet or other non-luminous body

American in Space: 1st Alan Shepard in Freedom 7 (5 May 1961); duration of flight 15 minutes 28 seconds

American to Orbit the Earth: 1st John Glenn in Friendship 7 (20 Feb 1962); for 3 orbits, duration of flight 4 hrs 55 mins 23 secs

Animals in Space Laika (meaning 'barker' in Russian) the dog was the first animal in space aboard Sputnik 2 (3 November 1957). The first monkey in space was Gordo aboard the US Army rocket Jupiter AM-13 (13 December 1958). Both animals died during re-entry.

Ap helion Furthest distance of a planet from the Sun

Apogee Furthest point of the Moon from the Earth

Apollo 13: Crew James Lovell, Jack Swigert and Fred Haise. The service module exploded 55 hrs into the mission to the Moon, but the lunar module was used to reach home safely on 17 Apr 1970

Appleton Layer Highest region of the Ionosphere, extending from a height of about 150 to about 1,000 kilometres. It contains the highest proportion of free electrons and is the most useful region for long-range radio transmission. The layer is also called the F-region

Artificial Satellite: 1st Sputnik 1, launched by Soviet Union on 4 October 1957. Sputnik was an 83.6 kg metal sphere, transmitting signals for three weeks before failing batteries caused it to fall to Earth on 4 January 1958

Asteroid Another name for a minor planet. Eros, discovered in 1898, comes closer to the Earth (every 37 years) than anything except the Moon. The first asteroid to be discovered, Ceres, is also the largest and is now classified as a dwarf planet. All others are classified as Small Solar System Bodies, a term introduced by the IAU in 2006. The majority of asteroids have elliptical orbits in the Asteroid Belt; some have moons or are found in pairs known as binary systems.

Asteroid: brightest Vesta

Asteroid: largest 1. Ceres 2. Pallas 3. Vesta 4. Hygeia

Asteroid Belt The 4,000-plus minor planets (asteroids) that orbit the Sun between Mars and Jupiter

Astrolabe Ancient device for measuring heights of celestial bodies

Astronomical Unit Mean distance between the Earth and the Sun: 149,598,500 km

Baily's Beads Brilliant points seen around the Moon just before and after a total solar eclipse

Big Bang Theory First advanced by Georges Lemaître: idea that the universe began, 15-17 billion years ago, as a point of superdense matter that exploded and has been expanding ever since

Black Hole Region of immense gravitational pull around a massive collapsed star from which not even light can escape

Bolide A brilliant exploding meteor

Brightest Stars in the celestial sphere 1. Sirius 2. Canopus 3. Alpha Centauri 4. Arcturus 5. Vega. It is traditional to omit our own sun from this list although it is easily the brightest object in the sky.

Cassini-Huygens Probe Launched from Cape Canaveral, Florida, October 1997, to seek out the moons of Saturn. The probe flew by the moon Phoebe on 11 June 2004. Several new moons were discovered, giving a total of 37

Cassini's Division Dark gap between rings A and B of Saturn discovered by Gian Domenico Cassini, among others

Celestial Sphere Imaginary sphere surrounding the Earth on which all heavenly bodies appear to move, and whose centre is the same as that of the Earth's globe

Challenger US space shuttle exploded 72 seconds after lift-off on 28 Jan 1986, killing all 7 crew members, including schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe

Chinaman in Space: 1st Lt Col Yang Liwei (October 2003)

Coldest Planet Pluto

Comet: Shortest known orbital period Encke's Comet, 3.3 years

Comet: meaning From the Latin 'Coma', which means hair

Constellations 31 in Northern and 52 in Southern hemisphere, with 5 'floaters' overlapping. Largest: Hydra. Smallest: Crux Australis

Corona Outermost part of the Sun's atmosphere visible with the naked eye only during a total solar eclipse

Cosmogony Study of the origin and evolution of the universe

Cosmology Study of the universe considered as a whole

Declination Angular distance of celestial body north or south of celestial equator, corresponding to latitude on the Earth

Doppler Effect Apparent change in wavelength of the light from a luminous body in motion relative to the observer

D-region Lowest layer of the Ionosphere. Extends from a height of about 60 to about 90 kilometres, contains a low concentration of free electrons, and reflects low-frequency radio waves

Earth: mean distance from Sun 150 million kms (93 million miles)

Ecliptic Apparent yearly path of the Sun among the stars

Ephemeris Table showing the predicted positions of a celestial body such as a planet, comet or asteroid

Equinox Equinoxes are two points at which the ecliptic cuts the celestial equator; vernal equinox 21 Mar, autumnal 22 Sep

Eris Largest known dwarf planet and the ninth-largest body known to orbit the Sun. It is approximately 2,500 km (1,554 miles) in diameter and has 27 per cent greater mass than Pluto. It was identified in 2005 by Mike Brown and Chad Trujillo at the Palomar Observatory in San Diego, California. Dysnomia, also discovered in 2005 by Mike Brown, is the only known moon of Eris.

European Space Agency Created 1975 by merger of European Space Research Organisation and European Launcher Development Organisation. Members are Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the UK. Canada being non-European is deemed a co-operating state. Head Office is at 8–10 Rue Mario Nikis, 75738 Paris, France

Exosphere Outermost part of a planet's atmosphere

Expanding Universe Observation made by Edwin Hubble in 1929 that the universe appears to be expanding; this confirms the Big Bang Theory

Flocculi Patches on the Sun's surface: bright (calcium) and dark (hydrogen)

Galaxies Systems made up of stars, nebulae and interstellar matter, forming star families held together by their own gravitational pull and separate from other such galaxies

Gibbous Phase Phase of the Moon or planet when between half and full

Golf Shot on the Moon Alan Shepard made the first-ever golf shot on the moon on 6 February 1971, using a six-iron head attached to the handle of a rock sample collector

Great Red Spot Enormous red feature in the atmosphere of Jupiter, visible since the 17th century

Haumea Located beyond Neptune's orbit, Haumea is a dwarf planet discovered by Mike Brown in 2004. It has two moons, Hi'iaka and Namaka.

Heaviside Layer Region of the Ionosphere, extending from a height of 90 to about 150 kilometres. It reflects radio waves of medium wavelength. This layer is also called the E-region or Kennelly-Heaviside layer

Hertzsprung-Russell Diagram Diagram in which stars are plotted according to their spectral types and their absolute magnitudes

Hottest Planet Venus

Hubble Space Telescope Placed in the Earth's orbit by the space shuttle Discovery (24 April 1990)

Inferior Planets Mercury and Venus: closer to the Sun than the Earth is

Inner Planets The 4 planets that orbit the Sun within the Asteroid Belt; i.e. Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars

Ionosphere Region of the Earth's atmosphere lying above the Stratosphere

Jupiter Galileo discovered satellites Callisto, Europa, Ganymede and Io. Atmosphere: hydrogen, ammonia and methane. Temperature can be as low as -200° C. Probes: Pioneer 10 and 11 (1973/4); Voyager 1 and 2 (1979); Galileo (1995); Ulysses (1992 and 2004); Cassini (2000); New Horizons (2007). Galileo (1995) remains the only spacecraft to orbit Jupiter, the other probes merely conducting flyby missions. Although there are 50 named moons there are at least 17 additional minor moons awaiting nomenclature

Kuiper Belt Region of the solar system beyond the orbit of Neptune and named after astronomer Gerard Kuiper (1905–73). The Kuiper Belt is home to the dwarf planets – Pluto, Makemake and Haumea

Largest Planet Jupiter

Light Year Distance travelled by light in a year: 9.4607 million million km. Light travels at 186,000 mps (7½ times round the Earth)

Local Group Group of more than two dozen galaxies, including our own galaxy. Largest member is the Andromeda Galaxy, M.31

Lunar Eclipse Passage of the Moon through the shadow cast by the Earth

Magnitude Measurement unit for the brightness of a star or planet

Mariner 9 US space probe to Mars in 1971

Mars Atmosphere nearest to our own, but there is no water on Mars. Also known as the 'Red Planet', it is the site of Olympus Mons, the highest known mountain in the solar system, and of Valles Marineris, the largest canyon. Probes: Mariner 4, 6, 7, 8, 9 (1965–71); and 1 and 2 landed 1976; Pathfinder landed 1997

Mercury Atmosphere: non-existent – burnt off by closeness to Sun. Probe: Mariner 10 (1974 & 1975)

Mesosphere Region of the Earth's atmosphere between the Stratosphere and the Thermosphere, sometimes called the D-region and characterised by a rapid decrease in temperature with height

Messier, Charles (1730–1817) French astronomer nicknamed the 'comet ferret' who compiled the first catalogue of galaxies, nebulae, and star clusters. The 103 items on his list were assigned 'Messier' numbers. Although these were replaced by New General Catalogue (NGC) numbers from 1888.

Meteor Particle or small rock moving around Sun and destroyed when entering atmosphere

Meteorite Larger object that reaches the ground without being destroyed

Metonic Cycle 19-year cycle (6940 days), observed by the fifth century BC Greek astronomer Meton of Athens, used as the basis for various civilisation's calendar systems. Aka Enneadecaeteris

Milky Way The galaxy of which our Sun is a member. It contains approx 100,000m stars, of which 5,776 are visible to the naked eye

Mir Advanced space station launched by the Soviet Union in 1986

Moon Mean distance from Earth: 384,000 km (239,900 miles). Diameter: 3,476 km (2,160 miles). Revolves around the Earth from west to east. First soft landing by Soviet Luna 9, launched on 31 Jan 1966, landed 3 Feb. First manned flight around the Moon: Apollo 8 in Dec 1968. First manned landing and walk: Apollo 11 on 20 Jul 1969. Last man on the Moon was Eugene Cernan in Apollo 17 on 11 Dec 1972

Moon Walks 12 men, all American, have walked on the surface of the Moon, Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin (Apollo 11), Charles Conrad Jr and Alan Bean (Apollo 12), Alan Shepard and Edgar Mitchell (Apollo 14), David Scott and James Irwin (Apollo 15), John Young and Charles Duke (Apollo 16), Eugene Cernan and Harrison Schmitt (Apollo 17)

Moon's Rotation Rotates about its own axis in 29½ days, which is about the same time it takes to orbit the Earth. Hence the same face of the Moon is always presented to the Earth

Nadir Point on the celestial sphere directly below the observer, diametrically opposite the zenith

Nearest Planet to Earth Venus

Nearest Star to Earth Sun

Nearest Stars to Sun 1. Proxima Centauri (4.26 light years) 2. Alpha Centauri (4.34) 3. Barnard's Star (5.88)

Nebula Cloud of gas and dust in space

Neptune Discovered by JG Galle in 1846. Atmosphere: hydrogen, helium, methane, ammonia. First suggested name was 'Janus'. Probe: Voyager 2 (1989). To date 13 moons have been discovered

Neutron Star Remnant of a star that once exploded as a supernova

Nova Star that suddenly flares up to many times its normal brilliancy and then fades back to obscurity

Occultation The obscuring of one celestial body by another

Oldest person in space John Glenn, aged 77, on 29 Oct 1998 (aboard space shuttle Challenger - returned on 6 November)

Oort Cloud Hypothesised spherical cloud of comets thought to lie beyond the Kuiper Belt, its outer extent defining the gravitational boundary of our solar system

Ophiuchus Often called the 13th constellation of the Zodiac

Orbit of the Earth: 1st Yuri Gagarin (12 April 1961). 1st American, John Glenn in Mercury Friendship 7 (20 February 1962).

Orrery Model showing the Sun and the orbiting planets, capable of being moved mechanically to scale

Outer Planets The 4 planets that orbit the Sun beyond the Asteroid belt; i.e. Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune

Ozone Layer Located in the Stratosphere approx 19-30 km above the surface of the Earth. Ozone is created when energetic solar radiation strikes molecules of oxygen and causes the oxygen atoms to split apart. These atoms can then reform with O² molecules to form ozone (O³) – a process known as photolysis. Ozone absorbs most of the incoming solar UV radiation which can be harmful to life on Earth

Parsec Unit used to measure astronomic distances: 3.26 light years

Perigee Position of the Moon in its orbit when closest to the Earth

Perihelion Position in orbit of a planet when closest to the Sun

Photosphere The bright surface of the Sun

Planet Large body orbiting a star - name means 'Wanderer' in Greek

Pluto Atmosphere: tenuous. Discovered by Clyde Tombaugh 1930; named by Venetia Burney, it is currently thought to have 5 moons

Polaris Also called the Pole Star, it is 680 light years from the Earth

Quadrant Ancient astronomical instrument used for measuring the apparent positions of celestial bodies

Rings of Saturn Discs composed of ice and rock orbiting Saturn. Major subdivisions of the rings include the Roche Division and the Maxwell, Colombo, Bond and Dawes Gaps.

Rotating Backwards Venus (east to west)

Saturn Mean distance from the Sun: 1,427 million km (891 million miles). Atmosphere: mostly hydrogen and helium, some methane and ammonia. Christiaan Huygens discovered the rings in 1655. Cassini discovered 4 of the satellites. The satellite Phoebe revolves in the opposite direction to the others. Probes: Voyager 1 and 2, 1980–81; Cassini-Huygens, 1997–present. Saturn is now thought to have 62 moons, 53 named and 9 awaiting nomenclature

Second Space Flight Virgil 'Gus' Grissom, the second American in space aboard Liberty Bell 7 (21 July 1961), became the first person to make two space flights aboard Gemini 3 (23 March 1965)

Sirius Also called the 'Dog Star', it is 8.7 light years from the Earth

Solar Cycle Discovered by H. Schwabe in 1826. He found that there is an 11-year solar cycle of sunspot activity

Solar Eclipse Blotting out of the Sun by the Moon, so that the Moon is directly between the Earth and the Sun

Solar Flares Brilliant eruptions of hydrogen in Sun's atmosphere

Solar Wind Flow of ionised hydrogen and helium from the Sun

Solstices When Sun is at its maximum declination of 23 1/2 degrees

Space Flight: 1st Yuri Gagarin in Vostok 1 (12 Apr 1961); duration of flight 1 hr 48 mins. 2nd, Alan Shepard in Freedom 7 (5 May 1961), the first American in space

Space Flight: 1st Briton Helen Sharman (18 May 1991)

Space Station: 1st Salyut 1, launched on 19 April 1971 from Baikonur (orbited for 179.93 days). First US – Skylab in May 1973

Space Walk: 1st American Ed White (June 1965 from Gemini IV)

Space Walk: 1st US Woman Dr Kathryn Sullivan (1984 Challenger)

Space Walk: 1st Briton Michael Foale

Space Walk: 1st Woman Svetlana Savitskaya (USSR) (17 Jul 1984)

Stratosphere Region of the Earth's atmosphere lying above the Troposphere and below the Ionosphere

Sun Distance from the Earth: 149,597,900 km on average. Diameter: 1,392,000 km. Light takes 8 minutes 14.2 seconds to reach the Earth. Most common elements in the sun 1. Hydrogen 2. Helium 3. Oxygen

Sunspot Region of lower temperature and therefore less brilliance, on the surface of the Sun

Superior Planets Those whose orbits lie outside the Earth's

Supernova Cataclysmic explosion of a massive star, which ends its career as a patch of expanding gas with a neutron star at its centre

Syzygy Position of the Moon in its orbit when new or full

Telescope: Largest Gran Telescopio Canarias, La Palma 10.4m lens

Troposphere Lowest part of Earth's atmosphere, reaching to 11km

Umbra Cone of shadow cast by Earth. Also darkest part of a sunspot

United Kingdom Space Agency Replaced the British National Space Centre in April 2010. HQ Polaris House, North Star Avenue, Swindon, Wiltshire, SN2 1SZ

Unmanned Moon Landing: 1st Lunik 2 (USSR) 1959. First US landing, Ranger 4 in 1962, although this was a crash-landing

Uranus Atmosphere: hydrogen and helium. Discovered by William Herschel 1781. Probe: Voyager 2 (1986). Currently there are 27 named moons, all named after characters from the works of William Shakespeare and Alexander Pope

Van Allen Radiation Belts Zones of charged particles around the Earth, held captive by the Earth's magnetic field

Venera Space Probes Russian series commencing with Venera 4 in 1967 to explore Venus, the first planetary probe

Venus Atmosphere is largely carbon dioxide. Probes: Russian Venera series (1962–71); US Mariners 2, 5, and 10; Magellan (1990). Aka Hesperus (evening star), Phosphorus (morning star)

Voyager Pair of US interplanetary probes launched to observe and transmit to Earth data about the outer planetary system. Voyager runs out of power around 2020. Voyager 1 was Launched on 5 Sep 1977, flew by Jupiter in March 1979, reached Saturn in Nov 1980, then flew out of the solar system. Voyager 2 was launched on 20 Aug 1977. It flew by Jupiter (Jul 1979), Saturn (Aug 1981), Uranus (Jan 1986) and Neptune (Aug 1989), then on into interstellar space

Walk in Space: 1st Alexei Leonov (18 Mar 1965)

Woman in Space: 1st Valentina Tereshkova (1963) 1st American woman, Sally Ride aboard the space shuttle Challenger (1983)

Youngest Man in Space Gherman Titov, aged 25yrs 10 months 25 days (6 August 1961)

Zenith Point on the celestial sphere directly above the observer

Zodiac Belt stretching around the sky 8 degrees to either side of ecliptic. The constellations Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpius, Sagittarius, Capricornus, Aquarius and Pisces lies within this belt, and so do the apparent paths of the Sun and all the planets except Pluto, which sometimes moves outside

BRITAIN

United Kingdom: Administration Centres

A restructure of the old County boundaries has been ongoing throughout the UK. Formerly there were 46 English County Councils, but this has been reduced to 27, all of which have the same Administrative Headquarters as before.

The other 19 Counties, along with parts of still existing Counties, have been restructured and are now known officially as Unitary Authorities. There are 92 such authorities at present, plus the 32 London Boroughs and the City of London Corporation.

A similar position exists in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Northern Ireland's six Counties have been rationalised across 26 districts (the same number as there are Counties of the Irish Republic), although at present only the traditional six Counties plus Belfast City and Londonderry City have Lord-Lieutenants.

CALENDAR

Wedding Anniversaries

1	Cotton / Paper	8	Bronze / Pottery	15	Crystal	50	Golden
2	Paper / Cotton	9	Pottery / Willow	20	China	55	Emerald
3	Leather	10	Tin	25	Silver	60	Diamond
4	Fruit / Flowers	11	Steel	30	Pearl	65	Blue Sapphire
5	Wood	12	Silk / Linen	35	Coral	70	Platinum
6	Sugar	13	Lace	40	Ruby	75	Gold or Diamond
7	Wool / Copper	14	Ivory	45	Sapphire

NB: Wedding anniversaries are an area of frustration for quiz players because there are slight variations to many of the gifts that are traditionally given on wedding anniversaries, and to complicate matters even more, some of the gifts have changed over the years: e.g. diamonds were traditionally given on a 75th wedding anniversary but after Queen Victoria celebrated her 'Diamond' Jubilee in 1897, this became the established gift for a 60th anniversary, and the 75th which was previously Diamond then became Gold, as opposed to 'Golden' for a 50th. A more common cause of frustration is the gift for a first anniversary. Cotton was traditionally given, as the 'binding' of two people who have tied the knot, but as in the case of so many infrequently used customs it has become traditional to think of a first anniversary as a paper one, after the certificate of marriage. Neither is right or wrong, as they have never been observed for any reason other than a convenient question to ask in a quiz. In fairness, it would be better for quiz-setters to avoid the more controversial anniversaries – e.g. 1st, 2nd, 75th – or if insisting on using them, it would be advisable to phrase the question in the form 'If paper is a first anniversary, what is a second?'

English Quarter Days

Lady Day	25 March
Midsummer Day	24 June
Michaelmas	29 September
Christmas Day	25 December

NB: A useful mnemonic for remembering English Quarter Days is that three of the days end with the same number as letters in the month e.g. March has five letters so Lady Day is the 25th, June has four letters so Midsummer Day is 24th, September has nine letters so Michaelmas is 29th. Christmas Day should never be forgotten.

Scottish Quarter Days

Candlemas	28 February
Whitsuntide	28 May
Lammas	28 August
Martinmas	28 November

NB: Although the names of the four Scottish Quarter Days have remained the same, the dates changed in 1991. Candlemas used to be on 2 Feb, Lammas was 1 Aug and Martinmas was on 11 Nov. The date of Whitsuntide varied.

Birthstones

January	Garnet
February	Amethyst
March	Bloodstone or Aquamarine
April	Diamond
May	Emerald
June	Pearl, Agate Moonstone, or Alexandrite
July	Ruby or Cornelian
August	Sardonyx or Peridot
September	Sapphire or Chrysolite
October	Opal or Tourmaline
November	Topaz
December	Turquoise or Zircon

NB: Birthstones are also controversial, as once again some months have more than one stone. Attempts to introduce birthstones for each sign of the Zodiac have fallen largely out of use.

Chinese Years

Snake (serpent)	2001
Horse	2002
Sheep (ram)	2003
Monkey	2004
Rooster (cock)	2005
Dog	2006
Pig	2007
Rat	2008
Ox	2009
Tiger	2010
Rabbit	2011
Dragon	2012

NB: The calendar goes in 12-year cycles, so it continues Snake, 2013; Horse, 2014; and so on.

Watches at Sea

First Watch	8pm–midnight
Middle Watch	midnight–4am
Morning Watch	4am–8am
Forenoon Watch	8am–midday
Afternoon Watch	midday–4pm
First Dog Watch	4pm–6pm
Last Dog Watch	6pm–8pm

NB: A bell is rung every half-hour during a watch, which therefore ends on eight bells or four for a dog watch. The New Year is brought in with 16 bells. Incidentally 'Dog' is thought to be a corruption of 'dodge', which was introduced to enable easier rostering.

St Trinian's 2: The Legend of Fritton's Gold (2009) Much the same cast as the 2007 film although Everett's dual role is now of headmistress and Pirate Fritton, as the plot concerning a stolen ring begins 400 years ago and unearths the remarkable revelation that Pirate Fritton was in fact Shakespeare and a woman to boot! Miss Fritton's daughter, Annabelle, is now head girl although Kelly Jones returns to offer field advice. David Tennant plays Pomfrey, the main antagonist, and Sarah Harding has a more prominent role as Roxy (an independent girl with no allegiance to any of the school factions). The seventh film based on Ronald Searle's cartoons, the others being The Belles of St Trinian's (1954 – see entry), Blue Murder at St Trinian's (1957), The Pure Hell of St Trinian's (1960), The Great St Trinian's Train Robbery (1966 – see entry for the final film of the quartet), The Wildcats of St Trinian's (1980 – also directed by Frank Launder but different cast) and St Trinian's (2007), St Trinian's 2 is the first of the genre without the appearance of the iconic Flash Harry. Dir. Oliver Parker and Barnaby Thompson.

NB: This is an area where many fine sources of information will inevitably differ, depending on the definition given of 'first film'. To give an example of the inherent dangers in answering questions on screen debuts, we can look at the early career of Orson Welles.

The 1941 classic, Citizen Kane, is often considered to be Welles's first film performance; but whilst it was certainly his first feature film, he did in fact do various film work before this. His potential was first spotted in his home-made film of 1934, The Hearts of Age, a film short that never went on general release. The unreleased film Too Much Johnson (1938) was shown to private audiences, although it was eventually lost to the world in a fire at Welles's Spanish home.

If narration is considered a film role, then the 1940 film Swiss Family Robinson, starring Thomas Mitchell and Freddie Bartholomew, could also be regarded as his big screen debut.

The approach taken in listing these is to cite an actor's debut in a film on general release and to mention prior work underneath. Many jobbing screen actors start their careers making 'film shorts', often shown before a main feature, but these films are rarely listed in cinema catalogues and are only included here if they predate a debut in a full-length feature. 'Made for television' films are treated in a similar vein.

* The Oscars are awarded for films made the previous year – e.g. the 1997 Best Film Oscar was awarded to The English Patient, which was a 1996 film release. All of the above films were premiered in the year prior to the award unless the date is specifically given, since as on rare occasions a film has been released too late for consideration for a nomination, as in the case of Casablanca.

† Separate award for Comedy Director.

COMPUTERS

Common Terms

Artificial Intelligence A word coined in the USA in 1956 as the ultimate aim for electronic processing ability. Although great strides have been made towards a device that would simulate human thought processes, as yet, no such device exists and the term is used to describe advanced programs such as PROLOG which allows empirical evidence to guide future decisions.

ASCII American Standard Code for Information Interchange (computer code for representing alphanumeric characters).

Bebo Social networking website founded in January 2005 by Michael and Xochi Birch.

bit (binary digit) Smallest unit of data manageable by a computer.

bootstrap Technique for loading the first few program instructions into a computer main store to enable the rest of the program to be introduced from an input device.

busbar Group of electrical conductors maintained at low voltage, used for carrying data in binary form between the various parts of a computer or its peripherals.

byte Equivalent of eight bits (generally makes up a character of information). It is possible to have a six-bit byte.

computer: definition A machine that carries out a programmed sequence of instructions by translation of coded data. Digital computers use binary code which is represented by electrical current being turned off and on. Analogue computers use continuous variables as opposed to the discrete data of digital machines. A simple example of an analogue computer would be a set of scales.

computer generations The development of computers is sometimes viewed as falling into several phases or generations. First generation began with the ENIAC (electronic numerical integrator and calculator) modern computers designed by J. Presper Eckert and John W Mauchly, both of the University of Pennsylvania. Completed in 1946, this was first all-purpose, all-electronic digital computer. A special-purpose, all-electronic computing machine called Colossus had earlier been developed at Bletchley Park, in England, and was in operation by December 1943. The Colossus was designed (by the computer genius Alan Turing) to decipher codes generated by the German electromechanical enciphering devices known as Enigma machines. The successor to ENIAC was EDVAC (Electronic Discrete Variable Automatic Computer).

The 'second generation' of modern computers began in 1959, when machines employing semiconductor devices known as transistors became commercially available.

The 'third generation' of modern computers began in the late 1960s, when integrated circuits were imprinted on silicon chips. This permitted the construction of large 'mainframe' computers with much higher operating speeds.

The 'fourth generation' of modern computers began in the 1980s. This and subsequent generations have continued to develop very large-scale integration (VLSI) and have promoted the advancement of virtual reality (VR) and computer aided design (CAD).

The 'fifth generation' of modern computers is an ongoing general development of recent technological advances. Using recent engineering advances for example, computers are able to accept spoken word instructions (voice recognition) and imitate human reasoning. The ability to translate a foreign language is now commonplace.

Computer Programming languages (high-level)

ABAP Advanced Business Application Programming.

ADA Designed for dealing with real-time processing problems and used for military and other systems. It was named after Augusta Ada Byron, Lady Lovelace (assistant to Charles Babbage), and developed in the late 1970s by the US Defense Department.

AED Algol Extended for Design.

ALGOL ALGorithmic Orientated Language, principally used for scientific and mathematical problems (types: ALGOL 60 and ALGOL 68).

APL A Programming Language.

APT Automatically Programmed Tools.

ATLAS Abbreviated Test Language for Avionics Systems.

BCPL Basic Computer Programming Language.

BLISS Developed in 1970 by Wulf, Russell and Habermann. It was perhaps the best-known systems programming language before C.

BOO An object-oriented statically typed programming language developed in 2003.

C Introduced at Bell Laboratories in 1974 and originally developed for use in the UNIX operating system.

C Sharp Designed by Microsoft in 2001.

CHEY Chain Hypertext Emotion for You. Developed by Aleta Manske in late 1990.

COBOL Common Business-Oriented Language (developed in 1959).

COGO CO-ordinate GeOmetry.

COMAL COMmon ALgorithmic Language.

CORAL Computer On-line ReAL time.

FORTH Name derives from an intention to provide a language for fourth-generation computers. It uses a notation called reverse polish, in which an operator is always preceded by its arguments. FORTH is popularly used for writing video game programs.

FORTRAN FORMula TRANslation (Invented in 1956).

GPSS General Purpose Systems Simulation.

LISP LISt Processor (introduced in 1960). Its basic entity is an s-expression (symbolic expression) which is either an atomic symbol or a list structure.

LOGO A simple, interactive language which is compact enough to run on most microcomputers but also embodies powerful programming facilities. It is used extensively for teaching programming to children.

ML Meta Language.

PASCAL ALGOL-related language named after the scientist-philosopher Blaise Pascal (1623–62). Pascal is a teaching language developed in the late 1960s.

PERL Practical Extraction and Report Language.

PL/1 Programming Language 1, a multipurpose programming language designed for solving both business and scientific problems.

PL/M Programming Language for Micro Computers.

PROLOG PROgramming in LOGic. There the emphasis is on description rather than on action, eg to find the greater of two input numbers, one would describe what 'greater of' meant and then query it with the given numbers as data.

SAIL Stanford Artificial Intelligence Language.

SIMULA SIMulation LAnguage.

SNOBOL StrINg-Oriented symBolic Language, provides facilities for the manipulation of strings of characters by pattern-matching expressions. SNOBOL is particularly applicable for text editing, linguistics and the compiling and symbolic manipulation of algebraic expressions.

SQL Structured Query Language.

computer: makes and models: Commodore: Amiga and PET; Apple: Macintosh; Sinclair: Spectrum and ZX80 / 1; Packard Bell: Legend; DEC: Vax; IBM: PS/2; Acorn: BBC Micro; Digital: Equipment Corporation-PDP Series.

computer: mechanical pioneers Charles Babbage (1791–1871) designed computing machines that he called the 'Difference Engine' and 'Analytical Engine' in the 1820s and 30s. They were never built but the first practical programmed computer built by Georg Scheutz of Stockholm and exhibited at the Paris Exposition of 1855 was based on Babbage's Difference Engine. The mechanical adding machine developed by Blaise Pascal in 1642 which used a 10:1 gearing ratio to represent decimal columns, can be regarded as the ancestor of the computer.

computer programmer: first Ada Byron, Countess Lovelace, assistant to Charles Babbage (see computer mechanical pioneers), is generally recognised as the first 'computer programmer'. The first proposal for a computer language, however, was by German philosopher Gottfried Leibniz (1646–1716), who devised a system allowing logic statements to be dealt with mathematically, using the digit 0 for false and 1 for true.)

computer: types Micro, mini, mainframe (computers can also be categorised as digital and analog).

CPU Central Processing Unit; the electronic decision making device within a computer.

DTP Desktop Publishing; the production of high-quality printed matter using a desktop computer and a laser printer. Some examples of packages are Pagemaker and QuarkXpress, Adobe Illustrator, Microsoft Publisher, Corel Draw, GST and Serif.

exabyte one billion billion characters of information.

Facebook Social networking website founded in February 2004 by Mark Zuckerberg.

Friends Reunited Portfolio of social networking websites founded in 1999 by Steve and Julie Pankhurst.

gigabyte one billion characters of information.

GIGO Garbage In, Garbage Out. Computer user's proverb meaning if you use unreliable data you will get unreliable results.

Hardware The electronic and mechanical components of a computer are called the hardware; this includes the processing unit.

high-level language Computer programming language that is closer to human language or mathematical notation than to machine language.

home computer: first Apple-1; created by Steve Wozniak and Steve Jobs in 1977.

k Kilobyte (1,024 bytes).

Internet An international computer network linking computers from educational institutions, government agencies, and industry.

Lara Croft Heroine of the video game 'Tomb Raider'.

Laptops: first Became prevalent in 1987, although the first laptop machine with a full colour screen was developed in 1990.

Laser printer developed in 1987 using the principle of the Xerox copier.

LCD Liquid Crystal Display.

low-level language Computer-programming. language that is closer to machine language than to human language.

m Megabyte (1,024 kilobytes).

microprocessor: first Intel 4004.

modem Acronym for MOdulator DEModulator, a device used to enable computers to communicate with one another via telephone lines.

Moshi Monsters Website with more than 80 million registered users worldwide. Children choose from one of six virtual pet monsters (Divalo, Luvli, Katsuma, Poppet, Zommer and Furi) that they can create, name and nurture for navigation around Monstro City and take daily puzzle challenges to earn 'Rox' (virtual currency).

motherboard Printed circuit board through which all hardware and software devise send electronic to talk to each other.

MS-DOS MicroSoft Disc Operating System.

network Group of computers connected in order to share and exchange information.

nibble Equivalent of four bits.

OS Operating System: a program that controls the overall operation of a computer system, typically by performing such tasks as memory allocation, job scheduling and input/output control.

pixel Picture element: one of the number of very small dots that make up the picture on a visual display unit.

port Socket used to connect a computer to other devices.

punched card: inventor The American Dr Herman Hollerith (1860–1929) invented the punched-card system in 1890; his company, the Tabulating Machine Co. became IBM in 1924. Hollerith's device enabled a census to be taken in six weeks rather than the six years required by manual analysis. Mechanical punched cards had been suggested earlier by Charles Babbage; and the 'Jacquard Loom' of 1801 is an even earlier example of punched card principles but Hollerith patented the system and was the first to use electrical contacts.

RAM Random Access Memory; temporary storage space that is lost when the computer is switched off.

ROM Read-Only Memory; permanent storage device that holds data that cannot be altered by the user.

software the programs and operating information used by a computer.

spreadsheets: first The first spreadsheet program Visicalc was developed on the Apple-2 in 1979.

terabyte Approximately a thousand billion characters of information.

Turing Test Test for successful artificial intelligence that depends on a human not being able to tell that he or she is communicating with a computer. No computer has ever passed the Turing Test.

Twitter Online social networking service created in March 2006 by Jack Dorsey - its microblogging function enables its users to send and read text-based messages of up to 140 characters, known as "tweets".

VGA Video Graphics Array (Super VGA is the advanced array).

video games: 1st Pong (established in Italy in the early 1970s).

Video games: famous Super Mario Brothers by Nintendo, Sonic the Hedgehog by Sega, Donkey Kong by Atari, Tomb Raider by Eios, Duke Nukem by 3D Realms, The Sims by Maxis, Doom by Idoh and Temple Run by Imangi Studios - the controllable characters being explorers Guy Dangerous, Montana Smith and Karma Lee, escape artist Scarlett Fox, cop Barry Bones, conquistador Francisco Montoya and football star Zack Wonder. In Temple Run II the three chasing monkeys are replaced by one giant monkey Cuchanck. This version became the fastest app to hit 50 million downloads beating the record of Angry Birds by Rovio Entertainment – a game in which players launch birds at pigs stationed on or within various structures.

Wikipedia Founded in 2001 by Jimmy Wales and Larry Sanger.

Windows User-friendly operating system created by Microsoft.

World Wide Web A system of interlinked hypertext documents usually referred to as the 'Web'. The Web was created around 1990 by Englishman Sir Tim Berners-Lee working at CERN in Geneva. The Internet and the Web are not synonymous; the Internet is a collection of interconnected computer networks, linked by copper wires, cables and wireless connections. The Web is accessible via the Internet but is a collection of interconnected documents linked by hyperlinks and Uniform Resource Locators.

YouTube Video sharing website created in February 2005 by Steve Chen, Chad Hurley and Jawed Karim.

CURRENT AFFAIRS

Daily Record 2010

January

- 4 The Burj Khalifa Bin Zayid, formerly known as Burj Dubai, officially opened in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, and became the tallest man-made structure ever built, at 829.8 m (2,722 ft). Construction began on 21 September 2004, with the exterior completed on 1 October 2009.
- 6 Former Cabinet ministers, Geoff Hoon and Patricia Hewitt, published a joint letter highlighting deep divisions within the Labour Party just weeks before the General Election.
- 12 A massive 7.0-magnitude earthquake struck the Caribbean nation of Haiti, the western part of the island of Hispaniola, which is shared with the Dominican Republic. The quake's epicentre, near the town of Léogâne, was approximately 25 km (16 miles) west of Port-au-Prince, Haiti's capital. Haiti's worst quake in two centuries wrecked the presidential palace, UN HQ and other buildings, killing an estimated 316,000.
- 19 Kraft Foods took over Cadbury for an estimated £11.9 billion.
- 20 Blue Peter presenter Helen Skelton set out from Natua in Peru in a quest to row the entire length of the Amazon. (See entry 28 February).
- 28 Adam Crozier, the head of the Royal Mail, became chief executive of ITV.
- 29 Former Prime Minister Tony Blair gave evidence to the Chilcot inquiry into the Iraq War

February

- 1 Stephen Marshall, 38, the so-called Jigsaw Killer, was sentenced to life and ordered to serve a minimum of 36 years after changing his plea three weeks into his trial at St Albans Crown Court, Hertfordshire. Marshall stabbed a former work colleague to death and cut his body into pieces and also admitted that he had hacked up four other bodies.
- 3 The share price of Toyota dropped eight per cent on the US Stock Exchange as hundreds of thousands of cars were recalled globally following incidents of faulty brakes.
- 4 A report on MP's expenses was published by Sir Thomas Legg.
- 5 The Director of Public Prosecutions Keir Starmer QC announced that Labour MPs Elliot Morley, David Chaytor and Jim Devine, plus Conservative peer Lord Hanningfield had been charged under the Theft Act for irregularities in their expense claims. The four are set to appear before City of Westminster Magistrates Court on 11 March.
- 8 Metropolitan Police Commander Ali Dizaei was sentenced to four years, at Southwark Crown Court, for assaulting and falsely arresting Waad Al-Baghdadi. The controversial policeman, 47, was ordered to spend two years in prison and two years on licence.
- 11 Figures of library lending in Britain showed that Dame Jacqueline Wilson was the most popular library book author of the past decade and her best-known work, The Story of Tracy Beaker, about a troublesome 10-year-old in a children's home, was the most borrowed individual title during this period.
- 17 Dozens of students, including three British teenagers, were left floating on life rafts in the Atlantic for nearly two days after their boat sank off the coast of Brazil. Sarah Calascione, 19, Nicole Turner, 18, and Gabriella Haines, 16, were among 41 students and 23 crew aboard the SV Concordia, a 57-metre long Canadian sailing ship which capsized in bad weather off the coast of Rio de Janeiro.
- 21 Allegations of bullying against the Prime Minister Gordon Brown were made in a book serialisation in a Sunday newspaper.
- 28 Blue Peter presenter Helen Skelton arrived at Almerim, Brazil, in her kayak, having clocked up 2,010 miles on her solo journey in aid of Sport Relief. She became the first woman to paddle the length of the river. (See entry 20 January 2010).

March

- 1 Tory Party deputy chairman, Lord Ashcroft, revealed he was a 'non-dom' for UK tax purposes.
- 1 Mexican tycoon Carlos Slim Helu was named as the world's richest person with a fortune estimated at £37.5billion.
- 12 Television presenter Christine Bleakley became the first woman to water ski across the English Channel. The treacherous 22-mile crossing from Dover to Calais, took 100 minutes and raised hundreds of thousands of pounds for Sport Relief.
- 14 A Hungarian Vizsla named Yogi was named Best in Show at Crufts dog show at Birmingham's National Exhibition Centre.
- 21 A pastoral letter from the Pope to Irish Catholics apologising for child sex abuse scandals was read out during Mass throughout Ireland.

April

- 5 Gordon Brown announced a General Election would take place on May 6th
- 7 Camilla, Duchess of Cornwall, broke her left leg while hill-walking near Balmoral.
- 8 Presidents Obama and Medvedev signed a US-Russian Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty in Prague.
- 10 Poland's president Lech Kaczynski was among 96 passengers who died when the presidential plane crashed as it attempted to land at a Russian airport near Smolensk.
- 15 All airports in the UK were closed by the National Air Traffic Control Service (Nats) following the eruption of Eyjafjallajökull, an Icelandic volcano, which caused a vast cloud of volcanic ash to drift 1,000 miles south and hang between 20,000ft and 55,000ft. The first of three television debates between the leaders of the UK's three main political parties ahead of the country's May general election was broadcast live on ITV 1. Prime Minister and Labour Party leader Gordon Brown, Conservative Party leader David Cameron and Liberal Democrats leader Nick Clegg went head-to-head in the 90-minute live debate, the first time the UK has featured a US-style debate between the leaders of its main political parties.
- 20 Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced it is to sell off its film assets including the James Bond franchise and a stake in two Hobbit movies. The once thriving Hollywood studio was formed in 1916 by Samuel Goldwyn and has the official motto Ars Gratia Artis (Art for Art's Sake) although its unofficial motto of More Stars Than There Are In Heaven is perhaps better known. UK airports were given the all-clear to fly following six days of travel chaos causing tens of thousands of Brits to be stranded overseas and many others having to undergo horrendously long journeys via ship and ferry. An oil rig, Deepwater Horizon, exploded off the Louisiana coast killing eleven workers.
- 27 The Greek economy was hovering on disaster as its debt rating was decreased to BB+ (a 'junk' status) by financial research institution Standard & Poor, amidst fears of default by the Greek government.
- 28 Gordon Brown unwittingly made national news headlines while canvassing on the streets of Rochdale. Gillian Duffy, who had popped out for a loaf of bread, had a chance encounter with the Prime Minister and questioned him on the national debt, education and the party's immigration policy. Mr Brown replied politely but was caught on microphone labelling Mrs Duffy a "bigoted woman".
- 29 The massive oil spill pouring from a ruptured oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico reached the coast of Louisiana, threatening an environmental catastrophe in the region. An estimated 35 million gallons of crude oil has spewed from the Deepwater Horizon rig and it is expected to take months to control the leakage.

May

- 2 The IMF and EU agreed austerity measures with the Greek Government with a view to a bail-out package.
- 3 BP shares plummeted after it was announced they would be responsible for any damage caused by the oil slick in the Gulf of Mexico.
- 3 Goodluck Jonathan, 52, became Nigeria's first Christian president following the death of Umaru Yar'Adua, the Muslim president since 2007.
- 5 A Picasso painting, Nude, Green Leaves and Bust, fetched $106.5million (£70.6million) at Christie's in New York, making it the most expensive piece of art to sell at auction.
- 6 Nigel Farage, the former UK Independence Party leader, escaped with broken ribs and superficial injuries after a plane he was flying in crashed at Hinton-in-the-Hedges airfield, near Brackley, Northants when a Ukip banner was caught in the tail fin of the plane.

- Michael Edwards was convicted of fatally stabbing his "husband" John in what is thought to be the first murder in a British same-sex marriage.
- 7 Britain's electorate woke up to a hung parliament for the first time since 1974. The Conservative Party fell some 20 seats short of an overall majority with David Cameron announcing a meeting with Lib Dem leader Nick Clegg with a view to making a deal to govern while present incumbent Gordon Brown refused to resign until all possibilities were considered.
- 8 Mohamed Al-Fayed sold the world-famous Harrods store in Knightsbridge to Qatar Holdings for a sum of £1.5 billion.
- 11 Gordon Brown formally resigned his position as Prime Minister and David Cameron immediately took office after announcing Britain was to have a full coalition government with the Liberal Democrats. Nick Clegg immediately became deputy prime minister, the first Liberal in a Cabinet post since Sir Archibald Sinclair was Secretary of State for Air in Churchill's wartime government.
- 12 Two Britons and an Irish citizen were among the victims of a plane crash in Libya that killed 103 people. The plane operated by the Libyan carrier Afriqiyah Airlines had flown from Johannesburg and crashed short of the runway at Tripoli airport before disintegrating. Although 58 Dutch people perished aboard Airbus A330 flight 8U771, miraculously a 10-year-old Dutch boy was the sole survivor and is recovering from multiple leg fractures in a Tripoli hospital.
- 13 David Cameron's first Cabinet included four Lib-Dem MPs and Baroness Warsi, Britain's first female Muslim Cabinet minister.
- 17 On the day that Parliament reconvened after the General Election it was announced that outgoing Chief Secretary to the Treasury, Liam Byrne, left his successor, Lib-Dem MP David Laws, a note reading "I'm afraid there is no money. Kind regards and good luck!" Bonita Norris, 22, who only took up climbing last year, became the youngest British woman to conquer Mt Everest.
- 29 The new coalition Government suffered its first crisis with the resignation of David Laws just 17 days after his appointment as Chief Secretary to the Treasury. The Daily Telegraph disclosed that Laws had claimed up to £950 a month in parliamentary expenses for eight years to rent rooms in two London properties owned by his partner, James Lundie, a political lobbyist. MPs were banned from leasing accommodation from partners in 2006. Another Lib-Dem MP, Danny Alexander, 38, the former Scotland Secretary, replaced Laws. The Eurovision song Contest, in Oslo, was won by Germany, with Lena Meyer-Landrut scoring 246 points with her quirky song Satellite. The UK entrant That Sounds Good To Me, penned by Stock, Aitken and Waterman, and sung by Josh Dubovie, came last of the 25 finalists, scoring a paltry ten points.

June

- 2 Derrick Bird, a 52-year-old taxi driver who was under investigation for tax evasion, took his own life after embarking on a killing spree in the Whitehaven area of Cumbria which left 12 dead and several injured. Bird's brother David and the family solicitor Kevin Commons were among the victims.
- 4 Naoto Kan became Japanese Prime Minister.
- 10 A mammoth structure designed by the sculptor Anish Kapoor was officially unveiled on the windswept docks of Middlesbrough. Temenos, meaning sacred ground in Greek, at 164 feet, towers above Britain's most famous tall sculpture, the Angel of the North, Anthony Gormley's winged statue in Gateshead, about 40 miles down the road, which stands a mere 65 feet off the ground. Temenos consists of two steel rings pulling a delicate mesh of steel cables, which are suspended above the dockside, dominating the post-industrial landscape.
- 15 David Cameron issued an apology after the Saville Enquiry Report (set up in 1998), into the events of Bloody Sunday in Northern Ireland, was published.
- 22 Chancellor of the Exchequer George Osborne delivered an austerity budget in order to reduce the escalating UK budget deficit. The cuts, which will make every household in Britain worse off, includes increasing VAT to 20 per cent, Capital Gains Tax to 28 per cent for high earners, freezing Child Benefit for three years, reducing Housing Benefit and cutting Child Tax Credit for all earning more than £40,000.
- 23 President Barack Obama sacked General Stanley McChrystal, the US commander in Afghanistan, over anti-Government comments made in a Rolling Stone magazine interview. General David Petraeus immediately replaced McChrystal.
- 24 Julia Gillard became Australia's first female prime minister after Kevin Rudd stepped down rather than face a Labour party ballot he seemed sure to lose. Miss Gillard, 48, was born in Barry, South Wales, but emigrated to Australia with her family in 1966 as part of the post-war £10 assisted package scheme.
- 25 Henry Perkins, 19, became the first Briton to graduate from Russia's Bolshoi Ballet Academy.

July

- 3 A fugitive gunman, Raoul Moat, 37, who was set free from Durham Prison 48 hours earlier was on the loose after shooting his ex-girlfriend Samantha Stobbart, 22, and fatally wounding her new lover Chris Brown, 29. Moat also shot and blinded PC David Rathband, 42, and issued a warning that all members of the Northumberland constabulary were targets.
- 8 Peter Phillips, the Queen's eldest grandson, announced that his Canadian wife Autumn is pregnant with their first child, due in December.
- 10 Raoul Moat was pronounced dead at Newcastle General Hospital after shooting himself in the early hours of the morning in Rothbury, Northumberland.
- 12 Film director Roman Polanski who was arrested at Zurich Airport last September, on a 1978 US warrant for having sex with 13-year-old Samantha Geimer, walked free after the Swiss government announced he would not be extradited on child sex charges.
- The General Synod of the Church of England approved legislation to consecrate women bishops.
- 15 BP announced it had stemmed the flow of oil from the stricken Deepwater Horizon (see entry for 20 April)
- 19 Doctors at Queen Mary's Hospital in Sidcup were baffled after a black Nigerian couple, Ben and Angela Ihegboro, conceived a blue-eyed blonde baby girl, Nmachi, the name meaning "Beauty of God" in their native language. Neither Ben, 44, nor 35-year-old Angela have any mixed race family history.
- 20 Actress Lindsay Lohan began a 90-day prison sentence at the Century Regional Detention Facility in Lynwood, California, for violating terms of her 2007 drink-driving probation.
- 24 At least 18 people were killed when music fans at Germany's annual Love Parade stampeded inside a crowded underpass on the outskirts of Duisburg.
- 27 Jackie Cobell, 56, recorded the slowest-ever time to swim the Channel from Dover to Calais. The Tonbridge housewife took 28 hours and 44 minutes for the journey after losing her bearings and swimming an extra 40 miles.
- 28 Catalonia became the first mainland region of Spain to ban bullfighting.
- 30 A bike hire scheme designed to encourage thousands more cycle journeys in central London began today. More than 300 docking stations were set up in the capital to enable users to buy a key access via credit cards. The bikes are designed for short journeys and may be returned to any available station.
- 31 Chelsea Clinton, the daughter of the former President of the United States, married Marc Mezvinsky in New York. A British-led team of oarsmen smashed a 114-year world record for rowing across the north Atlantic from New York to the Scilly isles. The new record set by Leven Brown, Don Lennox, Ray Carroll and Livar Nysted, is 43 days, 21 hours, 26 minutes and 48 seconds.

August

- 1 A 53ft-tall life-size model of a dinosaur was assembled on a Portsmouth beach. The sculpture of an Ultrasaurus is 72ft long and took three months to build after its 10 pieces were shipped from Serbia to Southsea.
- 2 Ongoing floods in Pakistan were the worst for 80 years. The United Nations rated the disaster the greatest humanitarian crisis in recent history, the official death toll of 1,781 being only part of the story as millions struggled for food and shelter.
- 5 Thirty three miners were trapped more than 700 yards below the surface when their main access tunnel collapsed in the shaft at San Jose, Chile. (See entry 13 October 2010).
- 7 Thousands queued patiently at 10.00am this morning as doors opened at the new Apple Store in Covent Garden. The impressive store offers three floors of Macs, iPhones, iPad and iPods, along with an array of lifestyle accessories.
- 9 Ed Stafford, 34, a former army captain, became the first man known to have walked the length of the Amazon. Mr Stafford set off from the river's source in Peru on 2 April 2008.

- 23 Gareth Williams, an employee of GCHQ seconded to the Secret Intelligence Service (MI6), was found dead in suspicious circumstances at a Security Services safe house flat in Pimlico, London. Williams' decomposing remains were discovered locked in a sports bag after police gained entry into his top floor flat in Alderney Street, Pimlico.
- 31 President Obama announced the end of US combat operations in Iraq

September

- 1 The mystery stunt driver on the television show Top Gear was unmasked as former SAS soldier Ben Collins. The BBC lost a High Court action against the disclosure of the racing driver dubbed The Stig, after it was made known that Collins was to publish his autobiography, The Man In the White Suit, later this month.
- 2 Thousands of residents and holidaymakers were forced to leave the east coast of America as Hurricane Earl headed towards land, generating winds of up to 145mph.
- 3 Errors in the HM Revenue and Customs tax code system for the previous fiscal year were announced causing more than 10 million people to have been taxed too much or too little.
- 5 The Basque separatist group ETA announced a ceasefire.
- 7 Barclays announced Bob Diamond as its next chief executive.
- The xx won the £20,000 Mercury Prize for their debut album xx.
- 14 George Michael was given an eight-week sentence for crashing his car while under the influence of cannabis. He was also fined £1,250 at Highbury Corner Magistrates Court in London and given a five-year driving ban. The 47-year-old singer was arrested in July in Hampstead, north London after driving his Range Rover into a branch of photographic store Snappy Snaps.
- 16 Pope Benedict XV1 arrived at Edinburgh International Airport and was met by the Duke of Edinburgh before attending a reception at Holyroodhouse Palace. Pope Benedict's apostolic journey to the United Kingdom will culminate on 19 September with the beatification of Venerable Cardinal John Henry Newman (1801-90).
- 25 Ed Milliband, 40, was elected Leader of the Labour Party with the support of 50.65% of the electoral college. In the final vote he beat his older brother David Milliband, 45, who gained 49.35% of the vote.
- 29 David Milliband quit front-line politics but pledged to support his brother from the back benches.

October

- 2 Actor David Birrell, 35, was hit in the face by a discharge from a gun at the Saturday matinee performance of Stephen Sondheim's Passion at the Donmar Warehouse, London. Mr Birrell, who plays Colonel Ricci, was hurt during a scene in which his character challenges another to a duel. He was taken to hospital where he was treated for a serious eye injury.
- 8 A kidnapped British aid worker, Dr Linda Nordgrove, was accidentally killed during a US rescue attempt in Afghanistan.
- 11 Lady Justice Hallett opened the inquest into the victims of the 7 July 2005 London Bombings.
- 12 The Man Booker Prize was won by Howard Jacobson for his tragi-comic novel The Finkler Question.
- 13 The thirty three miners trapped underground in a mine shaft in San Jose, Chile since 5 August, were lifted to safety.
- 17 Thousands of Australians travelled to Rome to witness the Pope canonise Mary MacKillop. Melbourne-born Mary, who died in 1909 aged 67, has been credited with curing two terminally ill women. She becomes Australia's first saint.
- 20 The Supreme Court ruled that German heiress Katrin Radmacher's prenuptial agreement with her former husband was binding, effectively forming a legal precedent in the UK.
- George Osborne announced that from 2013 the current system of grants and Civil List funding of the Royal Family will be replaced by an all-in-one payment called the Sovereign Support Grant, funded entirely from the Crown Estate.
- 22 The Royal Navy's newest and largest attack submarine HMS Astute ran aground in the Kyle of Lochalsh, off Skye.
- 23 Australian journalist Julian Assange, founder of whistleblowing website Wikileaks, defended the release of almost 400,000 classified US documents about the war in Iraq, stating the exercise was performed in an effort to reveal the truth about the conflict and how innocent Iraqi civilians were killed.
- 27 The French National Assembly increased the pension age from 60 to 62 despite weeks of strikes and demonstrations.
- 28 The Office of National Statistics announced that Oliver and Olivia were the most common names for baby boys and girls in 2009.

November

- 8 Tamara Mellon, the co-founder of Jimmy Choo shoes, was among 32 new 'business ambassadors' appointed by David Cameron.
- 9 A symphony lost for 200 years that "changed the course of musical history" when it was finally rediscovered was played for the first time in London today. The discovery of Étienne Méhul's 4th symphony by David Charlton, Emeritus Professor of Music at the University of London, in Paris in 1979 proved that he invented the 19th century romantic "cyclic" symphony two decades before his compatriot Hector Berlioz, who was previously considered to have pioneered the form in his celebrated Symphony Fantastique. The symphony was performed by the Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment at the Queen Elizabeth Hall at the Southbank Centre.
- 10 Student demonstrators brought violence to London's streets on a scale not seen since the poll tax riots of 20 years ago. More than 50,000 people brought Westminster to a standstill with a peaceful march past Parliament to protest against the proposal to increase tuition fees to up to £9,000 a year. The demonstration turned nasty when a crowd smashed its way into the Conservative Party's headquarters in Millbank. Cheered on by hundreds more outside, furniture was thrown through windows, the interior was trashed, a ceiling was pulled down and a fire extinguisher was thrown off the roof at police in the crowded courtyard below.
- 13 Burma's pro-democracy leader Aung San Suu Kyi was released from house arrest in Yangon (Rangoon). Her release came six days after Myan Mar (Burma) held its first elections in 20 years - they were won by the military but widely condemned as a sham. Ms Suu Kyi's National League for Democracy (NLD) won the election in 1990 but was never allowed to take power. She has been under house arrest or in prison almost continually ever since. World leaders have ceaselessly fought the Burmese regime in an effort to free Aung San Suu Kyi, who was the recipient of the Rafto Prize and the Sakharov Prize for Freedom of Thought in 1990 and the Nobel Peace Prize in 1991. In 1992 she was awarded the Jawaharlal Nehru Award for International Understanding by the Government of India and the International Simón Bolívar Prize from the Government of Venezuela.
- 14 Paul and Rachel Chandler, the retired Kent couple kidnapped from their yacht by Somali pirates 388 days ago, were released unharmed after a ransom was purportedly paid.
- 16 Prince William and Kate Middleton announced their engagement with plans to marry next spring.
- Ireland failed to agree the terms of an international bail-out as its deficit rose to almost a third of the size of its economy.
- 19 Lord Young of Graffham, David Cameron's enterprise advisor, resigned after he was criticised by the Prime Minister for claiming that most people had "never had it so good" during the recession.
- 21 Ireland was forced to accept the terms of an international bail-out from the European Union in a deal designed to save the euro. EU and IMF officials will prepare the details of the three-year assistance package.
- Tony Johnson, a retired Isle of Wight solicitor, and his mum Gene were named as the couple who found an ancient Chinese vase during a house clearance which eventually sold at auction for £53 million. The elaborate 18th century masterpiece was found in a house clearance in Pinner, North West London, after the death of Mrs Johnson's sister, Patricia Newman, whose husband Bill had been the owner. It had sat on a bookshelf for years propping up books.
- 23 The European Court of Human Rights ordered David Cameron to give prisoners the vote within six months after a jailed rapist, Robert Greens, successfully claimed his human rights had been infringed. The Government was ordered to pay Greens costs of £4,230 and to give all convicts the vote by May 2011.

December

- Susan Philipsz walked away with Britain's most prestigious art award, the £25,000 Turner Prize, at the Tate Britain ceremony. The winning work, Lowland, is the first sound installation to be awarded the major prize, and consists of the artist's own voice singing and chanting 16th century Scottish laments.
- 9
- Questions were raised about police handling of tuition fee protesters after a car carrying the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall was attacked on its way to the annual Royal Variety Show at the London Palladium. A window was smashed and paint thrown at the vehicle amid reports that the duchess was prodded with a stick.
- 10
- Chinese dissident, Liu Xiabo, who is serving an eleven-year prison sentence for subversion, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in Oslo.
- 21
- For the first time in 372 years, the winter equinox and a total lunar eclipse occurred on the same day. A lunar eclipse is when the moon passes behind the earth so that the earth blocks the sun's rays from striking the moon. This phenomenon, occurring only when the Sun, Earth, and Moon are aligned exactly, tends to give the moon a reddish hue as the Earth casts a shadow over it.
- 22
- Zara Phillips announced her engagement to rugby player Mike Tindall.
- 27
- Mikhail Khodorkovsky, the former oil oligarch currently nearing the end of an eight-year prison sentence, was found guilty of embezzlement and laundering of stolen funds in a Moscow court. Judge Victor Danilkin said the former chief executive of oil company Yukos, and Platon Lebedev, his business partner, were guilty of illegally obtaining $25 billion (£16.3 billion) in oil revenues from the now defunct company. Police arrested 30 people outside the courtroom where supporters of Mr Khodorkovsky chanted "freedom" and "down with Putin". Vladimir Putin, the Russian prime minister and former president, dismantled Yukos after Mr Khodorkovsky challenged powerful forces in Russia's establishment and many believe Putin is determined to keep Khodorkovsky locked up indeterminably.
- 28
- The Qingdao Haiwan Bridge in East China was completed. The world's longest sea bridge, stretching 26.4 miles and linking the main urban area of Qingdao city with Huangdao district, straddles the Jiaozhou Bay sea areas. The road bridge, which took four years and cost £5.5billion to build is almost three miles longer than the previous record-holder, the Lake Pontchartrain Causeway in Louisiana.

Sporting Record 2010

January

- 3
- Phil Taylor won his 15th darts world championship with a 7-3 victory over Aussie Simon Whitlock at Alexandra Palace, London.
- 5
- Flavio Briatore's life-time ban from Formula One, for allegedly ordering Nelson Piquet Jnr to crash during the 2008 Singapore GP, was lifted by a Paris court due to irregularities in the original decision. Renault's former technical director, Pat Symonds, who had been given a five-year ban, also had his suspension lifted.
- 7
- For the second time in the series, England tailender Graham Onions survived a tense final over to earn his team a draw in the third Test in Cape Town. England lead the series 1-0.
Britain's team of Jamie Baulch, Roger Black, Iwan Thomas and Mark Richardson were awarded the gold medal for the men's 4x400m relay 13 years after they finished 0.18sec behind the winning US team during the Athens World Athletics Championships in 1997; the American team including Antonio Pettigrew who later admitted to drug offences, being disqualified retrospectively.
- 8
- The African Cup of Nations football tournament was put in doubt following an attack on the Togo national team coach in Luanda that killed two members of the party and one Angolan. Togo immediately pulled out of the tournament.
- 9
- In her first tournament since her comeback, Justine Henin was narrowly beaten 6-3, 4-6, 7-6 in the final of the Brisbane International by her great Belgian rival Kim Clijsters.
- 10
- Martin Adams beat Dave Chisnall 7-5 to win the BDO World Darts Championship at Lakeside Country Club, Frimley Green, Surrey.
The African Cup of Nations football tournament began despite the attack on the Togo national team coach in Luanda that killed three people. In the opening match Mali came from four goals down with 11 minutes remaining to secure a 4-4 draw.
Arizona Cardinals gained a 51-45 victory over the Green Bay Packers; the highest-scoring postseason game in NFL history.

11 England beat Hungary 2-1 at Wembley in their first match since the World Cup debacle.

14 Hampshire scraped home in their first Twenty20 final at their home ground, the Rose Bowl, beating Somerset by losing fewer wickets in a tied match, both teams scoring 173 runs.

15 After a disappointing 7th in the 800m freestyle three days earlier Rebecca Adlington won gold in the 400m freestyle on the final day of the European Championships in Budapest. Since Hannah Miley's opening-day gold in the 400m medley the Great Britain team won five further gold medals including a one-two by Lizzie Simmonds and Gemma Spofforth in the 200m backstroke and another in the 100m backstroke where Gemma reversed the positions with Lizzie; success for Fran Halsall in the 100m freestyle and victory for Gemma Spofforth, Kate Haywood, Fran Halsall and Amy Smith in the women's 4x100m medley relay final. The British men had no victories.

Andy Murray beat Roger Federer 7-5, 7-5, in the final of the Toronto Masters.

Martin Kaymer of Germany won the US PGA after a three-hole play-off against American Bubba Watson. Watson's countryman Dustin Johnson would have also been in the play-off but was penalised two shots for grounding his club in a bunker on the 17th hole.

19 Mo Farah broke the British 5,000m record with a time of 12min 57.94sec at the Weltklasse meeting in Zurich.

21 Pakistan beat England by 4 wickets at the Brit Oval to reduce the deficit to 2-1 with a final match to play in the four-match series.

22 Kenyan David Rudisha broke the world 800m record at Berlin's ISATF meeting with a time of 1min 41.09sec.

Arjun Atwal became the first golfer born in India to win on the US PGA Tour by capturing the Wyndham Championship in Greensboro.

28 Warrington beat Leeds 30-6 in rugby league's Carnegie Challenge Cup final at Wembley.

Jonathan Trott and Stuart Broad shared a world record 332 runs for England's eighth wicket in the final Test at Lord's.

Kenya's David Rudisha broke the world 800m record for the second time in a week when he ran 1min 41.01sec at the Rieti GP in Italy.

29 On the day England beat Pakistan by an innings and 225 runs at Lord's, The News of the World exposed a multi-million pound cricket match-fixing ring which allegedly rigged the current Test match. Salman Butt, the captain of the Pakistan cricket team plus bowlers Mohammad Amir and Mohammad Asif, who are accused of delivering three blatant no-balls to order, have had their mobile phones seized by investigating police officers. Footage appears to show the players' fixer Mazhar Majeed taking £150,000 cash, and telling the newspaper reporters exactly when the no-balls would come.

Lewis Hamilton won the Belgian Formula One GP at Spa Francorchamps to maintain a three point lead over Mark Webber in the drivers' championship.

European Ryder Cup captain Colin Montgomerie named Edoardo Molinari, Padraig Harrington and Luke Donald as his three wild card picks controversially omitting Paul Casey and Justin Rose from his team.

September

- 1 The No10 seed, Victoria Azarenka, was taken to hospital after collapsing on court during her second-round US Open match against Gisela Dulko of Argentina. The Belarusian, 21, slumped to the ground while 1-5 and 15-30 down on the Grandstand court and, after receiving medical treatment, was taken off in a wheelchair with suspected concussion after injuring herself prior to the match.
- The three Pakistan cricketers at the centre of the match-fixing scandal have been banished from their national team's 16-man squad for the forthcoming matches against England.
- 3 England beat Bulgaria 4-0 at Wembley in the first of their Euro 2012 qualifiers. In other matches Ireland beat Armenia 1-0, Northern Ireland beat Slovenia 1-0, Scotland drew 0-0 with Lithuania and Wales lost 1-0 against Montenegro.
- 5 The Pakistan cricket team were under scrutiny during the first Twenty20 international match against England in Cardiff. England won a low-scoring game by 5 wickets.
- New Zealand beat England 13-10 to claim a fourth successive women's Rugby World Cup title at Twickenham.
- Caroline Powell became the fourth New Zealander to win the Land Rover Burghley Horse Trials after a foot-perfect showjumping round on the veteran Lenamore.
- Andy Murray was beaten in four sets by Swiss No 2 Stanislas Wawrinka in the 3rd round of the US Open in New York.
- 7 England beat Switzerland 3-1 in Basle in the second of their Euro 2012 qualifiers. In other matches Ireland beat Andorra 3-1 and Scotland beat Liechtenstein 2-1 with an injury time winner at Hampden Park.
- England beat Pakistan by 6 wickets in the second Twenty20 international match at the Swalec Stadium, Cardiff.
- US Ryder Cup captain Corey Pavin announced his four wild cards for his team to play against Europe as Zach Johnson, Stewart Cink, Rickie Fowler and Tiger Woods.
- 8 Scottish snooker player John Higgins was banned from the sport for six months and fined £75,000 after admitting bringing the game into disrepute although the match-fixing charges were withdrawn by World Snooker.
- 11 Arctic Cosmos, ridden by William Buick and trained by John Gosden, won the Doncaster St Leger.
- Belgian tennis star Kim Clijsters retained her US Open title, defeating Vera Zvonareva, the Russian who beat her in the Wimbledon quarter final earlier in the year, 6-2, 6-1 at Flushing Meadows.
- 12 Fernando Alonso won the Italian Formula One Grand Prix at Monza.
- 13 Rafael Nadal won the rain-delayed men's US Open title, defeating Novak Djokovic 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2 in the final at Flushing Meadows.
- 16 On the day that Andrew 'Freddie' Flintoff announced his retirement from cricket, Nottinghamshire won the County Championship by winning more games during the season than Somerset, who also finished on 214 points but won only six games to the champion's seven.
- 18 Ian Bell scored a century for Warwickshire during his side's three wicket victory over Somerset in the CB40 final at Lord's.
- 19 Italian cyclist Vincenzo Nibali won the Tour of Spain, 43 seconds ahead of Ezequiel Mosquera. Britain's Mark Cavendish won the green jersey for being the highest points scorer of the tour, emulating the feat of Malcolm Elliott in 1989, the only other British winner of a points jersey in a major tour although when Elliott won the jersey in Spain it was a blue one.
- 20 Snooker genius Ronnie O'Sullivan completed a controversial 147 maximum during the World Open in Glasgow. Leading 2-0 in the best-of-five opening round match O'Sullivan potted a red and a black before enquiring of the referee Jan Verhaas if there was a bonus for a maximum break. On being told there was no bonus Ronnie duly potted the remaining reds with blacks and after potting the colours to the pink then shook the hand of his opponent Mark King and was about to leave the auditorium with the break on 140 but the frame and match won. Verhaas then pleaded with Ronnie to pot the black for the satisfaction of the audience and a reluctant O'Sullivan promptly smashed the black into the pocket to loud cheers and an assured share of the high break prize of £4,000.
- 22 England beat Pakistan by 121 runs in the fifth and deciding one day international of the NatWest series at the Rose Bowl. Man-of-the-match was Eoin Morgan with an unbeaten 107 runs.
- 24 Cornish cyclist Vin Cox, 34, officially became the fastest person to ride around the world. Vin completed the 18,225-mile 163-day tour of the globe on August 1st - cycling 112 miles per day.
- 25 Tomas Gollob of Poland became World Speedway Champion following his win in the Italian GP in Terenzano.
- 26 Fernando Alonso won the Singapore Formula One Grand Prix.
- World snooker champion Neil Robertson beat Ronnie O'Sullivan 5-1 in the final of the World Open in Glasgow.
- American golfer Jim Furyk won the PGA Tour Championship and the £7.2m jackpot for also gaining victory in the FedEx Cup.
- Halifax beat Featherstone Rovers 23-22 with a dropped goal in "golden point" extra time in Rugby League's Championship Grand Finals day at the Halliwell Jones Stadium in Warrington.
- 29 Cyclist Emma Pooley of Great Britain won the world individual time-trial title in Geelong, Australia.

30 The UCI, cycling's world governing body, announced that Tour de France winner Alberto Contador tested positive for clenbuterol during this year's Tour.

October

- 1 Much of the first day of the Ryder Cup was washed out at Celtic Manor, Newport, and no points were scored by either the Americans or Europeans although all the fourballs were started.
- 2 USA led 6-4 at the end of the second day's play of the Ryder Cup although Europe were ahead in all six uncompleted matches. Wigan beat St Helens 22-10 in rugby league's Super League Grand Final at Old Trafford. Credit Swap, ridden by Jim Crowley and trained by Michael Wigham, won the Cambridgeshire at Newmarket. Workforce, ridden by Ryan Moore and trained by Sir Michael Stoute, won the Prix de l'arc de Triomphe at Longchamp. The Commonwealth Games opened in New Delhi, India.
- 4 Trailing 9½-6½ going into the delayed finale of the Ryder Cup, the Americans fought back superbly to take the match to the wire. Graeme McDowell of Northern Ireland held his nerve in the final singles match as Europe clung on to their overnight lead to beat United States 14½-13½ to regain the trophy.
- 5 Fran Halsall won the home nation's first gold medal of the Commonwealth Games with victory in the 50m butterfly representing England.
- 10 Sebastian Vettel came home triumphant ahead of his Red Bull teammate Mark Webber in the Japanese Grand Prix in Suzuka.
- 12 In European Championship qualifying matches England drew with Montenegro 0-0, Republic of Ireland drew with Slovakia 1-1, Northern Ireland drew with Faeroe Islands 1-1, Wales lost to Switzerland 1-4 and Scotland lost to Spain 2-3.
- 14 England were beaten for second place in the Commonwealth Games medals table by India at the very last opportunity as the 2010 Games in Delhi closed. Saina Nehwal's badminton victory handed India their 38th gold medal, one more than England's tally of 37, as English badminton players lost three finals. Australia topped the medals table, winning 74 gold medals. Scotland's nine golds placed them 10th, Northern Ireland's three boxing titles earned them 13th, and Wales finished 15th.
- 15 John W Henry, owner of the Boston Red Sox baseball team, and his New England Sports Ventures Group took over Liverpool FC with a £300million deal.
- 17 Andy Murray beat Roger Federer 6-3 6-2 to win the Shanghai Masters and claim his second title of the year.
- 18 LaShawn Merritt, the Olympic and world 400metres champion, was banned for 21 months after testing positive for testosterone three times between October 2009 and January 2010.
- 22 After a week of uncertainty Manchester United forward Wayne Rooney signed a new five-year contract.
- 23 British gymnasts gained three medals at the world championships in Rotterdam. Beth Tweddle won gold in the uneven bars, Louis Smith silver on the pommel horse and Dan Purvis bronze on the floor.
- 24 Fernando Alonso won the inaugural Korean Formula One GP in Yeongam. Italian golfer Matteo Manassero became the youngest winner on the European Tour with victory in the Castello Masters in Spain. Last year's British amateur champion – he was the youngest to lift that title too – at 17 years and 188 days, broke the previous record set by New Zealand's Danny Lee, who was 18 years and 113 days old when he won the 2008 Johnnie Walker Classic.
- 31 England's Lee Westwood became world number one for the first time, ending American Tiger Woods's 281-week reign at the top of the golf rankings.

November

- 6 Paul Hanagan became the first northern jockey since Steve Donaghue in 1923 to win the flat jockey's championship. In a gripping season finale Hanagan (191 winners) held off the late challenge of Richard Hughes (189) by riding two more winners. In a sensational Breeder's Cup meeting at Churchill Downs, Kentucky, Goldikova won her third consecutive Breeder's Cup Mile while wonder horse Zenyatta failed by a head to make it a perfect 20 wins from 20 starts in the Breeder's Cup Classic after her jockey Mike Smith trailed the field by 50 yards after only two furlongs of the race.
- 7 German Formula One ace Sebastian Vettel came home triumphant ahead of his teammate Mark Webber of Australia in the Brazilian Grand Prix at Interlagos, Sao Paulo. The result ensured the constructor's championship for the English-based Red Bull team although the driver's championship, led by Fernando Alonso, will not be decided until next week's final race. The Murray brothers, Andy and Jamie, won their first doubles title together with a 7-6, 5-7, 10-7 victory over Max Mirnyi of Belarus and India's Mahesh Bhupathi at the Valencia Open.
- 11 Ray Wilkins was sacked as Chelsea's assistant coach during half-time of a reserve match.
- 13 David Haye stopped Audley Harrison in the third round of their WBA title fight at the MEN Arena, Manchester. England beat Australia 35-18 in a Rugby Union International at Twickenham. Manny Pacquiao of the Philippines gained a one-sided points victory over Antonio Margarito of Mexico for the vacant WBC light-middleweight boxing title in Texas.
- 14 John Higgins made a triumphant return to professional snooker following his six-month ban for not reporting an illegal match-fixing approach, beating Shaun Murphy 4-2 in the final of the Euro Player's Tour Championship in Hamm. Sebastian Vettel beat Fernando Alonso by four points to become Formula One world champion in an exciting final race at the Yas Marina Circuit on Yas Island, on the outskirts of Abu Dhabi. Although Alonso topped the points table going into the race he could finish only seventh behind his German rival, who converted his pole position into a race win.
- 17 England were beaten 2-1 by France in a friendly international football match at Wembley.
- 27 Ronnie O'Sullivan was in unstoppable form as he thrashed Shaun Murphy 7-1 in the final of snooker's Premier League at Potters Leisure Resort in Hopton on Sea, Norfolk.
- 28 England enjoyed a record-breaking drawn first Test at the Gabba. Alastair Cook's second innings of 235 was the highest score at the Brisbane ground, beating Don Bradman's 226 for Australia v South Africa in 1931. Alastair Cook and Jonathan Trott's unbeaten stand of 329 was the highest in Australia by an England pair for any wicket, eclipsing the 98-year old record of 323 set by Jack Hobbs and Wilfred Rhodes at the MCG in 1912. Roger Federer beat Rafael Nadal 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 in the ATP World Finals at the O2 Arena. British golfer Ian Poulter lost £350,000 on the flip of a coin in a farcical finish to the £11million Dubai World Championship. His hopes of winning the European Tour's richest event disappeared when he dropped a ball on his marker and suffered a one-shot penalty. The ball flipped his "lucky" platinum coin over on the second hole of a sudden-death play-off with Robert Karlsson, who was left with two putts from four feet to clinch the £776,000 winner's cheque.

December

- 2 Russia won the bid to host the 2018 World Cup after England crashed out in the first round of voting despite an impressive presentation by the prime minister David Cameron, David Beckham and Prince William.
- 6 Serbia won the Davis Cup for the first time in their history, beating France, the nine time champions, 3-2 in the final.
- 7 England beat Australia by an innings & 71 runs in Brisbane to take a 1-0 lead in the Ashes series.
- 11 Amir Khan made a third successful defence of his WBA light-welterweight boxing title with a hard-fought points win over Marcos Maldana of Argentina, in Las Vegas.
- 12 John Higgins beat Mark Williams 10-9 in a pulsating final of the UK Snooker Championship at Telford. Williams led 9-5 but Higgins won the last five frames, requiring snookers in one of them, to gain an improbable victory. Europe defeated USA 11-8 in the annual Mosconi Cup pool competition at the York Hall, Bethnal Green.
- 13 Sam Allardyce was sacked as manager of Blackburn Rovers after refusing to have new signings imposed on him during the January transfer window.
- 19 Champion jump jockey AP McCoy, 36, was named as BBC Sports Personality of the Year. Australia beat England by 267 runs in the third Ashes Test at the WACA, Perth, to level the series at 1-1 with two matches left to play.

- 27
- Australian cricket captain Ricky Ponting was fined 40 per cent of his match fee (around £3,500), for arguing with umpire Aleem Dar over a not out decision for a caught behind appeal against Kevin Pietersen. Despite the controversy England ended the second day on 444-5 after bowling the Aussies out for 98.
- 29
- England beat Australia by an innings & 157 runs at the Melbourne Cricket Ground to take a 2-1 lead in the series and thereby retain the Ashes.

Daily Record 2011

January

- 1 Around 40 prisoners wearing balaclavas went on the rampage at Ford Prison, near Arundel, West Sussex, after being asked to provide breath tests. Inmates then set fire to accommodation and facility blocks, forcing prison warders to evacuate. Six accommodation blocks, a gymnasium, a mail room, a snooker room and a pool room including 10 newly-installed pool tables were all damaged, causing millions of pounds of damage. The disturbance started at midnight as the New Year beckoned and prisoners were finally brought under control by specially trained staff at 10pm.
- 4 VAT was increased by 2.5 per cent to its highest-ever level of 20 per cent.
- 7 David Chayter, the former Labour MP for Bury North, was jailed for 18 months for making false expenses claims to the House of Commons.

- President Zine El Abidine Ben Ali was forced to flee Tunisia after a general strike led to violent clashes.
- 17 Segways, the two-wheeled motorised vehicles once hailed as the future of transport, were banned from use on footpaths and pavements following the conviction of Phillip Coates for riding one on the pavement in his home town of Cudworth, Barnsley. Mr Coates was fined £75 plus costs. Segways can now only be used on private land as they do not comply with road traffic law.
- 18 Barclays Bank was fined £7.7m by the Financial Services Authority and ordered to pay £60m compensation to its customers for selling "low-risk" investments negligently.
- A Christian couple, Peter and Hazelmary Bull, lost a court battle over their refusal to allow a homosexual couple to share a room at their Chymorvah Private Hotel in Marazion, near Penzance. Judge Andrew Rutherford ordered the couple to pay £3,600 in damages to civil partners Steven Preddy and Martyn Hall.
- 19 Andy Coulson resigned as David Cameron's director of communications in the wake of the phone hacking scandal prevalent during his time as editor of the News of the World.
- 20 Shadow Chancellor Alan Johnson resigned amid claims his wife had an affair with a bodyguard.
- 22 Australian soldier Corporal Benjamin Roberts-Smith, 32, was awarded the Victoria Cross, for single-handedly overpowering Taliban machine-gunners attacking his platoon last June in Afghanistan. Cpl Roberts-Smith is the second person to have received the Victoria Cross for Australia, which was created in 1991 and is a separate award from the British VC.
- 24 Thirty five people killed by a suspected suicide bomber in the arrival's hall at Moscow's Domodedovo airport, included two Britons and Ukrainian dramatist and poet, Anna Yablonskaya, who was on her way to get a prize for her play The Pagans.
- 25 Hizbollah-backed billionaire Najib Mikati became Lebanon's prime minister two weeks after the pro-American Saad Hariri's government fell.
- Under Lebanon's constitution the president has to be Christian, the prime minister, Sunni and the speaker Shia.
- 26 Tommy Sheridan, former leader of the Scottish Socialist party, was jailed for 3 years after hearing he had brought "the walls of the temple crashing down" by repeatedly lying on oath about his adultery in order to win a £200,000 defamation case against the News of the World.

February

- 7 Britain's coalition Government scrapped anti-social behaviour orders, first implemented by Tony Blair in 1998. Asbos will be replaced by measures that will give the police power to ban troublemakers from town centres and street corners; offenders under penalty of having their assets seized if found in breach.
- 8 Seventy-one-year-old grandmother Ann Timson foiled an armed gem's raid in Northampton town centre by walloping thieves with her handbag causing one to be detained and the other five to abort their crime.
- 10 Former Labour MP for Barnsley Central, Eric Illsley, was jailed for a year at Southwark Crown Court for fiddling his parliamentary expenses. Illsley admitted falsely claiming more than £14,000 between 2005 and 2008. In the same court former Labour MP for Livingstone, Jim Devine, was found guilty of netting more than £8,000 in bogus expenses. Devine, 57, accused his ex-office manager Marion Kinley, 48, of stealing £5,000 of it but this was found to be untrue. He will be sentenced next month.
- 11 After 18 days of anti-government protests President Hosni Mubarak finally agreed to step down from office, handing power over to the Egyptian army. The announcement was made by Vice-President Omar Suleiman amid rejoicing in Tahrir Square in Cairo, the centre of more than two weeks of "people power" demonstrations. South African-born journalist Lara Logan, the CBS network's chief foreign affairs correspondent, was describing the jubilation in the aftermath of the resignation when a wild bunch of Egyptian youths attacked her as she was preparing to file a live report for CNN from the square.
- 15 Simon Cremer, a 46-year-old floor-fitting company boss, who paraded employee Mark Gilbert through the streets of Witham in Essex wearing a cardboard sign saying "THIEF. I Stole £845. Am on my way to the police station" in October 2008, was forced to pay Mr Gilbert £5,000 in compensation and £8,000 legal costs. Mr Gilbert's original theft was dealt with by the police with a caution.
- 17 The world's hottest chilli was produced in the Lincolnshire town of Grantham. Tests by Warwick University rate the new variety at 1,067,286 on the Scoville Scale which is used to measure the heat of peppers. The former record-holder, the Indian Bhut Jolokia, is rated 1,041,427. The Lincs variety, bred by Nick Woods and Matt Simpson, is named Infinity for its "never-ending" burn, which cannot be quelled by even the best antidote, milk.
- 21 The wave of people power against corrupt dictatorships in north Africa reached the streets of Libya as thousands demonstrated in Tripoli, amid claims that Muammar Gaddafi, the ruler for the past 41 years, ordered his airforce to bomb unarmed civilians.
- 22 Colonel Muammar Gaddafi made a defiant speech from a building destroyed by an American air raid in 1986 that killed his adopted daughter. In his 75 minute diatribe the Libyan leader threatened death sentences against all those who challenged his authority. An earthquake measuring 6.3 on the Richter scale devastated the city of Christchurch, New Zealand, causing 185 confirmed deaths.
- 24 Kate Middleton carried out her first official engagement, launching a new RNLI lifeboat, in Anglesey, North Wales.
- 26 After leading Fine Gael to victory in Ireland's 2011 General Election, Enda Kenny is all but assured of being elected Taoiseach when the 31st Dáil convenes on 9 March. The centre-right party trounced Fianna Fail, which has been the ruling party for the last fourteen years.
- 28 High Court judges Lord Justice Munby and Mr Justice Beatson remarked that there is no place in British law for Christian beliefs, when ruling on the case of a Christian couple, Eunice and Owen Johns, who were told that they could not be foster carers because of their view that homosexuality is wrong.

March

- 9 Enda Kenny is officially sworn in as Irish Taoiseach (prime minister).
- 10 The Dalai Lama announced his political retirement, from his exile capital of Dharamsala in northern India. Tenzin Gyatso, born in 1935, has held the position since 1950 and was recognised as the 14th incarnation in 1937.
- 11 An earthquake measured at 9.03 magnitude by the US Geological Survey, struck Japan at 2.46pm local time. The superquake triggered a tsunami that devastated Japan's Pacific coast with Sendai, 150 miles north of Tokyo, the worst affected area. Prime Minister Naoto Kan, immediately declared a state of emergency after an explosion at a nuclear plant in Fukushima, 100 miles north of Tokyo, created further problems with radiation levels increasing amid fears of a possible core meltdown unless cooling systems are repaired quickly. The official death toll was 15,883 although several thousand more were severely injured or missing.
- 14 Solicitor Hilary Thorpe, on behalf of her firm, Gaby Hardwicke of Eastbourne, made legal history by serving a summons via Facebook for the first time in Britain.
- 17 A United Nations Resolution, No 1773, was passed by the Security Council by 10 votes to nil, with 5 abstentions. The resolution established a no fly zone and authorisation of "any military or preventative measures" to protect Libyan civilians and civilian areas "while excluding a foreign occupation force of any form on any part of Libyan territory". The Security Council resolution was proposed by France, Lebanon, and the United Kingdom. Ten Security Council members voted in the affirmative (Bosnia and Herzegovina, Colombia, Gabon, Lebanon, Nigeria, Portugal, South Africa, and permanent members France, the United Kingdom, and the United States). Five (Brazil, Germany, and India, and permanent members China and Russia) abstained, with none opposed.
- 19 Forces from Britain, France, Canada and the United States launched Operation Ellamy, a series of bombing raids on Libyan airfields, tanks and air defence systems designed to stop Colonel Gaddafi deploying military equipment against his own people in a defiant act to remain in power. Military intervention began as French fighter jets flew reconnaissance flights over Libya and fired at a Libyan tank. The U.S. military designated its military operations as Operation Odyssey Dawn, and began by firing Tomahawk cruise missiles from U.S. Navy submarines at Libyan air defences.
- 20 A pair of the RAF's new F2 Typhoon Eurofighter fighter jets took off from southern Italy on their first patrols to enforce the UN-imposed no-fly zone over Libya.
- 23 Portugal's economy was in crisis after its parliament rejected an austerity package.
- 24 Sian O'Callaghan, 22, who had been missing for five days, was found murdered in a shallow grave near the White Horse of Uffington. Sian disappeared after partying with girl friends at the Suju club in Swindon High Street. A 47-year-old taxi driver Christopher Halliwell confessed to the murder and also to another in 2002. (see entry for 5 April 2011).
- Syria's president Bashar Al-Assad was the latest Middle Eastern autocrat to face the wrath of his people when more than 20,000 protesters marched through the city of Daraa. At least 37 anti-government protesters were killed by the president's security forces.
- Britain's worst sex attacker, Delroy Grant, was convicted of 29 offences of rape and burglary. The man known to police as the Night Stalker was finally caught in 2009, at least 17 years after he started terrorising south London residents, mostly pensioners.
- 25 The heart sign entered the Oxford English Dictionary as the first graphical symbol to signify a word in the reference work's 127-year history. Readers looking up the word "heart" will find the symbol listed as an entirely new usage, as a verb meaning "to love". Perhaps the most famous example, which is included in the latest edition of the dictionary, is the New York tourism advertising slogan: I [heart] NY. Its earliest recorded use is on a car bumper sticker printed in the US in 1984, which read: "I [heart] my dog's head."
- 26 Hundreds of thousands of protesters marched through London demonstrating against government spending cuts. Whilst Ed Miliband, the Labour Party leader, addressed a TUC rally of at least 250,000 peaceful protesters in Hyde Park an apparently co-ordinated attack began on shops and police in Oxford Street as a mob tried to storm into shops, including Topshop, BHS, and John Lewis. Department store Fortnum and Mason was occupied by 200 "anti-cuts" protesters who smashed windows and knocked over displays. The Ritz hotel in Piccadilly was attacked with dustbins and a "Trojan horse" was set on fire in Oxford Circus.
- 30 Moussa Muhammad Koussa, who headed the Libyan intelligence agency from 1994 until being promoted to Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Libyan government in March 2009, resigned his position from the Gaddafi regime and flew to England to be questioned by, amongst others, Scottish prosecutors seeking answers about the Lockerbie bombing, which killed 270 people in 1988. At the time, Koussa was a leading member of the Libyan Bureau for External Security (the Mathaba) which was suspected to be responsible.

April

- 1 The cost of prescriptions in England rose by 20p to £7.40 per item. The other three UK countries all have free prescriptions.
- 4 United Nations and French helicopters fired missiles at the palace of Laurent Gbagbo, the former president of the Ivory Coast who has refused to relinquish power since being deposed last November. Soldiers loyal to Alassane Ouattara, the recognised president, gathered outside Abidjan ready to storm the city.

- 5 Human remains found at a second site by detectives investigating the murder of Sian O'Callaghan were identified by Wiltshire Police as those of Becky Godden, who would have been 29 yesterday, a Swindon girl who disappeared some eight or nine years ago. The remains were found during painstaking excavation work at a site at Baxter's Farm, Eastleach, around 17 miles from where Miss O'Callaghan's body was discovered. Becky had become "disconnected" from her family after developing a drug problem. (see entry for 24 March 2011).
- 6 Portugal became the third European Union country, after Greece and Ireland, to request an emergency bailout. Outgoing Portuguese Prime Minister Jose Socrates announced the request had become inevitable after lawmakers rejected a new package of austerity measures.
- 8 The News of the World admitted hacking into the phones of eight high profile people between 2004 and 2006. Tessa Jowell, the former Olympics minister, actress Sienna Miller, designer Kelly Hoppen, Miss Jowell's estranged husband David Mills, football pundit Andy Gray, former aide to Lord Prescott Joan Hammell, publicist Nicola Phillips and sports agent Sky Andrew, all stand to receive an apology and compensation from Rupert Murdoch's News International.
- 11 Laurent Gbagbo, the former president of the Ivory Coast, was captured by forces loyal to president-elect Allasane Ouattara after weeks of fighting.
- 13 Dee Caffari became the only woman to have sailed around the world non-stop three times when she finished the Barcelona World Race. The 38-year-old former PE teacher, from Titchfield, Hampshire, crossed the line off Barcelona, Spain, in sixth place, after spending nearly 103 days at sea in the two-handed 25,000-mile race along with her Spanish co-skipper Anna Corbella, 34, on board their 60ft boat GAES Centros Auditivos. Caffari has already successfully circumnavigated the globe twice solo, and now once double-handed.
- 16 University friends James Cooper, 25, and James Kouzaris, 24, were murdered in Newtown, a deprived part of the city of Sarasota, Florida. A 16-year-old boy, named by police as Shawn Tyson, was arrested and charged with two counts of murder.
- 19 Huddersfield-born Captain Lisa Head, 29, from 321 Explosive Ordnance Disposal, died in the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, in Birmingham, of wounds received in Helmand province. Captain Head was the first female officer to be killed in Afghanistan.
- 29 Prince William (b. 21 June 1982) and his long-term girlfriend Catherine Elizabeth 'Kate' Middleton (b. 9 January 1982) married at a service in Westminster Abbey watched by an estimated audience of two billion people around the world. The couple were formally declared married by the Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams, the spiritual leader of the Church of England. William's full title now becomes: His Royal Highness Prince William Arthur Philip Louis, Duke of Cambridge, Earl of Strathearn, Baron Carrickfergus, Royal Knight Companion of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, Master of Arts. Kate becomes Catherine, Duchess of Cambridge and also Countess of Strathearn and Baroness Carrickfergus. The Duchess of Cambridge's wedding dress was designed by Sarah Burton, who took over as creative director of the Alexander McQueen label in May 2010, following its founder's suicide in February of that year.

May

- 2 Osama bin Laden, leader of al-Qaeda and mastermind of the September 11th terrorist attacks, was killed during an American ground operation in Abbotabad, Pakistan.
- 5 More than two thirds of people voted to keep the first-past-the-post system in what was the first UK-wide referendum for 36 years. In the first major test of opinion since the general election voters also went to the polls in council elections, and in assembly and parliament elections in Wales and Scotland. On what has been dubbed "Super Thursday" the Liberal Democrats were severely punished losing almost half their councillors in town halls across the country, while the Conservatives exceeded expectations. Alex Salmond's Scottish National Party won enough seats to form a historic majority in the Scottish Parliament for the next five years, thereby creating a case for Scottish home rule. Engineer Vincent Tabak, the Dutch neighbour of Joanna Yeates, who was found strangled in a snowy lane on Christmas Day, pleaded guilty to manslaughter at the Old Bailey via video link from Long Lartin prison.
- 10 The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge began their honeymoon in the Seychelles.
- 12 Her Majesty the Queen's reign became the second-longest in British history, overtaking that of King George III. The Queen's 59 years and 110 days as monarch ranks behind Queen Victoria, who died in 1901 after 63 years and seven months on the throne.
- 13 Jennifer Mills-Westley, a 60-year-old grandmother of five from Norwich who had retired to the Spanish island of Tenerife in 2006 after working as a road safety officer at Norfolk County Council, was decapitated by 28-year-old unemployed Bulgarian Deyan Valentinov Deyanov in a supermarket in Los Cristianos. Deyanov, who has a history of mental illness, ran out into the street carrying the severed head shouting: "This is my treasure."
- The Azerbaijan duo Eldar Gasimov and Nigar Jamal (known as Ell and Nikki) won the Eurovision Song Contest with their entry, Running Scared. Jedward did best of the home countries placing eighth with 119 points for their energetic bouncy song, Lipstick. The UK entry, I Can, performed by Blue, placed 11th with 100 points.

January

- 4 Two men found guilty of the 1993 racist murder of Stephen Lawrence in south-east London were jailed for life. Gary Dobson will serve a minimum of 15 years and two months, and David Norris 14 years and three months. Dobson, 36, and Norris, 35, were the first members of "The Firm" to be convicted over the fatal attack on Mr Lawrence by a group of white youths near a bus stop in Eltham on 22 April 1993.
- 7 A £33bn high-speed rail network was given the go-ahead by the government, despite strong opposition. Phase one of HS2, between London and Birmingham, should be running by 2026, later extending to northern England. The first phase of HS2 will include a connection to mainland Europe via the Channel Tunnel. On completion the network will include a direct link to Heathrow.
- 9 Celebrity chef Antony Worrall Thompson, of Ready Steady Cook fame, publicly apologised for shoplifting cheese and wine at a Tesco store in Henley-on-Thames over the Christmas period. The 60-year-old chef was issued with a formal caution by Thames Valley Police.
- 10 Pop singer Bryan Ferry, 66, married Amanda Sheppard, 29, on a beach in the Caribbean.
- 13 Thirteen people were confirmed dead after a cruise ship carrying 4,234 people ran aground off the coast of Italy. There were scenes of confusion as the Costa Concordia hit a sandbar near the island of Giglio creating panic among the passengers and crew. The ship had sailed earlier in the day from Civitavecchia port near Rome for a Mediterranean cruise and was due to dock in Marseille after calling at ports in Sicily, Sardinia and Spain. The ship's Italian owner, a subsidiary of Carnival Cruise lines, issued a statement saying there appeared to be "significant human error" on the part of the captain, Francesco Schettino, "which resulted in these grave consequences." Authorities were holding Schettino for suspected manslaughter following allegations he abandoned the stricken liner before all the 3,200 passengers had escaped. According to the Italian navigation code, a captain who abandons a ship in danger can face up to 12 years in prison.

February

- 1 Fred Goodwin joined the ranks of Robert Mugabe and Nicolae Ceausescu when his knighthood was removed by order of the Queen. The step was taken on the advice of a secretive Whitehall body responsible for the integrity of the honours system. The Forfeiture Committee

- decided Mr Goodwin had brought the system into disrepute and his actions as Royal Bank of Scotland boss made it an exceptional case that merited him joining a shamed group of former dictators and criminals who have lost honours. The Cabinet Office said RBS's failure helped 'trigger the worst recession in the UK since the Second World War'. 'Fred Goodwin was the dominant decision maker at RBS at the time,' a statement added. 'The retention of a knighthood for services to banking could not be sustained.'
- 2 David Choe, a Korean-American graffiti artist who painted Facebook's offices, is set to become a multi-millionaire when the social network begins trading as a public company. Mr Choe, who first spray-painted the walls of Facebook HQ in 2005, accepted shares in payment for his work. Now the site is planning to float on the stock market, his share could be worth around $200m (£126m).
- 3 Energy Secretary Chris Huhne resigned following allegations by his ex-wife that she accepted speeding points on his behalf dating back to 2003. The Lib Dem MP and his ex-wife will face the charges of perverting the course of justice in court on March 2nd. Cezanne's The Card Players became the world's most expensive artwork smashing the previous record of £88.7m for a Jackson Pollock. The 1890's painting was bought by the oil-rich Qatari royal family, who already own Harrods and the London Olympic Village, for £158m.
- 4 Six people were arrested during a protest at the Syrian embassy in London following reports of more than 200 people being killed by shelling in the Syrian city of Homs.
- 12 At the 54th Annual Grammy Awards, held at the Staples Center in Los Angeles, British vocalist, Adele, tied Beyoncé's record for most wins by a female artist in one night by walking away with six awards: Album of the Year and Best Pop Vocal Album for "21"; Record of the Year, Best Short Form Music Video and Song of the Year for "Rolling in Deep"; and Best Pop Solo Performance for "Someone Like You".

April

- 2 Welsh rugby union player Gavin Henson was sacked by his club Cardiff Blues after a drunken incident resulting in a six months ban from Airline Flybe.
- 7 England retained their position as the number one team in Test cricket after beating Sri Lanka by eight wickets in Colombo and thus drawing the two-match series. Despite a ten-wicket haul for Graeme Swann the man-of-the-match was Kevin Pietersen with a magnificent first innings 151 scored at almost a run a ball in difficult conditions.
After victory for the men's and women's pursuit teams Britain won its third gold medal at the World Track Championships in Melbourne when Victoria Pendleton picked herself up after crashing in the semi-final to eventually win sprint gold. In a controversial competition Vicky beat hot favourite Anna Meares of Australia in the semi-final and Lithuania's Simona Krupcekaite in the final after both her opponents were penalised for rule infringements.
Cambridge beat Oxford in a bizarre and chaotic University Boat Race which featured an intruder in the River Thames, a broken oar and an ailing oarsman. With Oxford in front at the half-way mark, 35-year-old Trenton Oldfield, a protester against the elitism of the race, was almost hit by the Oxford oars and the race had to be restarted. With Oxford again in front at the start of the re-run a clash of oars between the eights resulted in an Oxford rower snapping an oar which effectively ended the race as a spectacle when umpire John Garrett allowed the race to continue, blaming Oxford for the accident. The drama continued after the line when Oxford rower, Dr Alexander Woods collapsed in distress causing the victory ceremony to be cancelled.
- 8 American Bubba Watson won the US Masters in a sudden-death play-off with South African Louis Oosthuizen.
Great Britain won three more gold medals at the World Track Championships through Ben Swift in the scratch race, Laura Trott in the women's omnium and Sir Chris Hoy in the keirin.
- 12 On the opening day of the Aintree Grand National meeting, Big Buck's, ridden by Ruby Walsh and trained by Paul Nicholls, won his 17th-consecutive hurdles race.
- 14 Neptune Collonges, ridden by Daryl Jacob and trained by Paul Nicholls, won the Grand National but the race was marred by the death of the Gold Cup winner Synchronised who unseated Tony McCoy at Becher's but had to be put down after breaking his leg five fences later. Katie Walsh, the 27-year-old sister of top male jockey Ruby Walsh and daughter of trainer Ted Walsh, placed third on joint favourite Seabass, the highest-ever finish by a woman.
Italian youth footballer Piermario Morosini, 25, died of a heart-attack during a Serie B game at Pescara in which his side, Livorno were leading 2-0.
- 15 Nico Rosberg took his maiden Formula 1 victory with a dominant drive in the Chinese Grand Prix in Shanghai. The son of Finnish 1982 Formula One World Champion Keke Rosberg, who races for Germany, his mother's country of birth, led all the way in his Mercedes finishing over 20 seconds ahead of second-placed Jenson Button who fell back after a pit-stop error.
- 21 Kenyans Wilson Kipsang (2:04.44) and Mary Keitany (2:18.37) triumphed in the men's and women's races as 35,970 runners took part in the 2012 London Marathon. Lee Merrien (2:13.41) was the first British man to cross the line and Claire Hallissey (2:27.44) the first British woman. Shelly Woods (1:49.11) triumphed in the women's wheelchair race, adding to her 2007 win. David Weir won the men's wheelchair race to equal Tanni Grey-Thompson's record of six London Marathon victories. He crossed the line in a time of 1:32:23.
- 22 The Bahrain Grand Prix was won by current world drivers champion Sebastian Vettel to give him the lead in the drivers table and his team, Red Bull, the lead in the constructors table.
- 28 A week after Claire Squires died during the London Marathon whilst running on behalf of the Samaritans, an avalanche of donations propelled her expected £500 pledge to more than £1m.
- 30 Manchester City beat local rivals and Premiership leaders Manchester United 1-0 at the City of Manchester Stadium (aka the Etihad Stadium) to return to the top of the table on goal difference with both teams having two matches remaining. Sir Alex Ferguson had a furious row with Roberto Mancini as the match ended, clearly upset that the City manager spent large portions of the match vociferously barking orders to his team and castigating the officials.

- Roy Hodgson, the 64-year-old West Bromwich Albion manager, became the England football boss, signing a four-year deal despite several of the players tweeting their preference for Spurs boss Harry Redknapp. The new manager, who has previously coached the Swiss, Finnish and United Arab Emirates national sides, would not be drawn on who will captain his team.
Seven-time world champion Stephen Hendry, 43, announced his retirement from snooker after a heavy 13-2 quarter-final defeat by Stephen Maguire at the World Championship at the Crucible in Sheffield. Stephen, who made a maximum 147 break during his first round match, apparently made the decision three months ago in order to spend more time with his family.

Hundreds of Atlético Madrid fans clashed with riot police after police prevented fans from celebrating their team's success at the Neptuno fountain in Madrid.
- 13
- Manchester City won the Premier League title for the first time since 1968. The Blues beat their great rivals Manchester United on goal difference, both clubs ending on 89 points over the 38 games of the season. The stats however cannot tell of the agony that both Roberto Mancini, 47, and then Sir Alex Ferguson, 70, experienced in the dying moments as United beat Sunderland 1-0 away from home and actually finished the game as champions elect only for City to strike twice in injury time to complete a 3-2 home win over Queen's Park Rangers who played most of the second half with ten men after their skipper, Joey Barton was sent off after elbowing Carlos Tevez in the face. Barton then kneed Sergio Aguero in the back and attempted to head-butt Vincent Kompany on his way off the pitch. At the bottom end of the table Bolton, Blackburn and Wolves were relegated.
- 19
- Chelsea beat Bayern Munich 4-3 on penalties in the Champions League final after the match ended 1-1 after normal time and no further goals were scored in extra time. Didier Drogba played a crucial part in the game, conceding a penalty and scoring the equaliser before slotting home the winning penalty. Chelsea goalkeeper Petr Cech also played an important role, saving a penalty in extra time before saving another three in the shoot-out.
Liverpool's David Price claimed the British and Commonwealth heavyweight titles after outclassing Sam Sexton before the referee stopped the fight in the fourth round after Sexton was sent crashing to the canvas.

- 10
- The WBO announced that Timothy Bradley's controversial split-decision win over Manny Pacquiao in Las Vegas the previous evening was to be reviewed by the World Boxing Organisation. One judge scored the world championship welterweight bout 115-113 to Pacquiao whilst the other two had the undefeated American ahead by the same score, prompting boos around the MGM Grand. It was a first defeat in seven years for Philippines' greatest fighter Pacquiao, who landed 94 more punches than Bradley.
The Republic of Ireland were beaten 3-1 by Croatia in their opening Euro 2012 encounter.
In one of dart's biggest shocks Robert Thornton of Scotland beat Phil Taylor 11-5 in the final of the UK Open.
- 11
- England began their Euro 2012 campaign with a 1-1 draw against France in Donetsk, Ukraine.
- 13
- Harry Redknapp agreed to leave Tottenham after a meeting with Spurs chairman Daniel Levy. A remarkable change of fortune in recent months has seen Redknapp vaunted as the next England manager before adverse results led to Roy Hodgson gaining the job. Despite Redknapp's fine record, billionaire owner Joe Lewis is thought to now want a younger manager.
Andy Murray's recent poor form continued with defeat at Queen's in his first grass court match of the year, 6-3, 6-7, 7-6 to Frenchman Nicolas Mahut.

- The world's highest rated racehorse, Frankel, trained by Henry Cecil and ridden by Tom Queally, won the Queen Anne Stakes at Royal Ascot by eleven lengths at the prohibitive odds of 1-10. Many good judges now believe the unbeaten racehorse is an even better miler than the great Brigadier Gerard, who beat Mill Reef by three lengths in the 1971 2000 Guineas.
- 21 A header by Cristiano Ronaldo gave Portugal a place in the Euro 2012 semi-finals after they beat the Czech Republic 1-0 in their quarter-final in Warsaw.
- 22 Germany reached the semi-finals of the European Championships for a record seventh time by beating Greece 4-2.
- 23 Spain beat France 2-0 to book their place in the semi-finals of Euro 2012.
- Australian wonder horse Black Caviar, ridden by Luke Nolen and trained by Peter Moody, won his 22nd consecutive race. The 18 August 2006 foal kept his unbeaten record in tact with a dramatic victory in the Diamond Jubilee Stakes at Royal Ascot after Nolen appeared to ease down on the mare and was almost caught on the line by French horse Moonlight Cloud. The world's second highest racehorse (after Frankel) was given a pat on the nose by the Queen in the unsaddling enclosure.
- Dwain Chambers won the 100 metres at the British Olympic trials in Birmingham to seal his place in the Olympic team if he runs the 'A' qualifying time of 10.18secs during the European Championships in Helsinki next week.
- 24 Ireland's Paul Beecher won Hickstead's Carpetright Derby on Loughnatousa WB, beating Derby specialist William Funnell and Dorada in a jump-off, both riders jumping clear in the first round and Beecher going clear for the second time against the clock. Only 55 clear rounds have been jumped in the Derby's 51-year year history and Beecher, uniquely, achieved the 54th from pole position.
- England lost on penalties in their quarter-final Euro 2012 clash with Italy after the game ended 0-0 after extra time despite the Italians dominating the match. Missed penalties by Ashley Young and Ashley Cole ultimately cost England a semi-final place.

- 6 Andy Murray became the first Brit in 74 years to reach a Wimbledon men's final as he beat France's Jo-Wilfried Tsonga 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5 in the semi-finals. The last British man to win the men's singles at Wimbledon was Fred Perry in 1936 but Bunny Austin lost in the final two years later to end the golden era of British tennis.
- 7 Jonathan Marray became the first Brit to win the Wimbledon men's doubles for 76 years after he and partner Frederik Nielsen of Denmark beat Romanian Horia Tecau and Sweden's Robert Lindstedt 4-6, 6-4, 7-6, 6-7, 6-3. The last successful British pair to win the doubles title were Raymond Tuckey and Pat Hughes in 1936. Frederik Nielsen is the grandson of Kurt Nielsen, who reached the singles finals of Wimbledon in 1953 (losing to Vic Seixas, having defeated Ken Rosewall in the quarterfinal) and 1955 (losing to Tony Trabert). Before this, he won the Boys' singles at Wimbledon in 1947 (defeating Sven Davidson). Besides his successes at Wimbledon, he won the Boys' singles at the French Open, and reached senior quarterfinals in the French Open (twice) and the US Open. With Althea Gibson, he won the US Open mixed doubles in 1957, thereby becoming the first Dane to have ever won a Grand Slam event as a senior. Serena Williams beat Agnieszka Radwanska 6-1 5-7 6-2 to claim her fifth Wimbledon singles title and later won the doubles with sister Venus, beating Czech pair Andrea Hlavackova and Lucie Hradecka 7-5 6-4.

August

- 1 Great Britain collected its first gold medal of the London Games after Heather Stanning and Helen Glover won the coxless pairs, the first British female rowers to win an Olympic title. On the best day for Team GB to-date Bradley Wiggins also won gold, in equally impressive fashion, in the men's cycling time trial with team-mate Chris Froome taking the bronze. Wiggins' feat took him past Sir Steve Redgrave's total of six Olympic medals. Scottish swimmer Michael Jamieson, 23, secured silver in the 200m breaststroke final and the men's coxed eight gained a bronze after a valiant attempt at overhauling the dominant German team but fading in the final 500m. On a more sour note, eight female badminton players were disqualified from the games. The players, from China, South Korea and Indonesia were charged with playing to lose to gain preferred opponents in the quarter-final draw.
- 2 Team GB won six more Olympic medals to rise to fifth in the league table. Tim Baillie and Etienne Stott claimed Britain's first ever gold in the canoe slalom C2 event at Lee Valley, with David Florence and Richard Hounslow taking silver. Dorset marksman Peter Wilson won Britain's fourth gold medal with victory in the double trap competition. After the disappointment of seeing the women's sprint team of Victoria Pendleton and Jessica Varnish disqualified for an infringement of the rules the men's sprint cycling team of Philip Hindes, Jason Kenny and Sir Chris Hoy twice broke the world record on their way to victory - a result that also saw Hoy equal Sir Steve Redgrave's British record of five Olympic titles. Earlier in the day, Britain won a rowing silver in the men's lightweight four at Eton Dorney and Gemma Gibbons gained a silver medal in the final of the 78kg judo competition, becoming Great Britain's first Olympic judo medallist since her coach Kate Howey also won silver 12 years ago.
- 3 Great Britain added three more gold medals taking their tally to eight. In the velodrome, Victoria Pendleton, 31, won the keirin event and Ed Clancy, Geraint Thomas, Peter Kennaugh and Steven Burke clocked three minutes 51.659 seconds to win the men's team pursuit in a world record time. Britain's eighth gold of the Games came in the women's double sculls with Katherine Grainger and Anna Watkins dominating the race from the start. British bronze medallists were Rebecca Adlington in the 800m freestyle, Alan Campbell in the single sculls, Karina Bryant in the +78kg judo event and George Nash & William Satch in the men's rowing pairs.
- 4 Team GB won three gold medals via Jessica Ennis in the heptathlon, Greg Rutherford in the long jump and Mo Farah in the 10,000m. Earlier in the day there was victory for the men's rowing four of Andy Triggs Hodge, Pete Reed, Tom James and Alex Gregory and the women's sculls pair of Katherine Copeland and Sophie Hosking plus the women's team pursuit cycling team of Dani King, Laura Trott and Joanna Rowsell who broke the world record on every ride in the competition culminating in a new mark of 3min 14.051sec. An emotional day also saw Zac Purchase and Mark Hunter gain silver in the lightweight men's double sculls although the British pair were inconsolable after the race as they led all the way only to be pipped on the line by the Danish pair. Team GB rose to third in the table with 14 golds, 7 silvers and 8 bronzes. On a momentous day in the pool Michael Phelps finished his career with an 18th Olympic gold, his 22nd medal, in the men's 4x100m medley relay final. The great American swimmer won four golds and two silvers at these Games and sits imperiously atop the all-time list of Olympic medallists.
- 5 Andy Murray added two medals to the impressive tally of Team GB, beating Roger Federer 6-2, 6-1, 6-4 in the singles final and less than an hour later partnering Laura Robson to a silver medal display narrowly losing the gold to Belarusian mixed doubles duo Victoria Azarenka and Max Mirnyi 10-8 in the champions tie-break after both couples won a set each. Ben Ainslie made it 16 Team GB golds after winning his fourth-consecutive Olympic sailing title in an epic battle at Weymouth, only taking the lead in the final race of the Finn class. Iain Percy and Andrew Simpson narrowly failed to defend the Star title they won in China four years ago, losing out on gold in the most agonising way imaginable, in the final few metres of the final leg. In the pommel horse discipline in the gymnastic arena Great Britain won two medals, a bronze by Max Whitlock and a silver by Louis Smith, who lost on countback to Hungary's Krisztian Berki after the two scored 16.066 for their flawless performances. On the athletics track Christine Ohuruogu was runner-up to American Sanya Richards-Ross in the 400m to narrowly fail to defend her title although running 49.7 secs, only the third time she has ever broken the 50-sec barrier. The only other two occasions were when she won World Championship gold in 2007 and her Olympic crown a year later. Ed Clancy won a bronze medal in the omnium after a magnificent final 1k time trial. Team GB maintained third place in the medals table with 16 golds, 11 silvers and 10 bronzes.
- 6 Great Britain won its first showjumping gold medal since 1952 with victory in the showjumping team event. Nick Skelton (Big Star), Ben Maher (Tripple X III), Scott Brash (Hello Sanctos) and Peter Charles (Vindicat Credit) gained victory over the Dutch team in a thrilling jump-off. The first three mentioned riders will be back in action at Greenwich Park for the individual competition. In the velodrome, Jason Kenny won gold in the men's sprint, defeating multiple world champion Gregory Bauge of France. Beth Tweddle ended her Olympic gymnastics career with a bronze medal in the uneven bars.
- 7 Team GB won four more Olympic gold medals via Laura Trott in the women's cycling omnium, Sir Chris Hoy in the men's keirin, Alistair Brownlee in the men's triathlon and Carl Hester, Laura Bechtolsheimer and Charlotte Dujardin in the team dressage competition. Victoria Pendleton bowed out of cycling with a silver medal in the women's sprint after being controversially disqualified in her first ride in the final for cycling out of her lane. Alistair Brownlee's brother, Jonathan Brownlee won bronze in the men's triathlon. Team GB's current medal total stands at 22 golds, 13 silvers and 13 bronzes.
- 9 After a blank Wednesday Team GB were back on track with gold medal victories by Jade Jones in the under-57kg featherweight Taekwondo category, Nicola Adams in the flyweight boxing final (the first woman ever to win gold for boxing), and Charlotte Dujardin in the dressage competition in which team-mate Laura Bechtolsheimer won bronze. On the day that Kenyan David Rushida broke the world record in the 800mts final in 1min 40.91secs, Usain Bolt confirmed his super superstar status by becoming the first man ever to successfully defend the 100mts and 200mts titles by again defeating his team-mate Yohan Blake in 19.32secs in a 200mt race which saw Jamaica make a clean sweep of the medals, Warren Weir taking the bronze.
- 10 Britain's sailing duos of Saskia Clark & Hannah Mills and Luke Patience & Stuart Bithell both took Olympic silver in the 470 class at Weymouth. There were also bronze medals for Anthony Ogogo in the middleweight boxing class, Lutalo Muhammad (replacement for the British and world No 1 Aaron Cook) in the under 80kg Taekwondo class, and the women's hockey team. Team GB's current medal total stands at 25 golds, 15 silvers and 17 bronzes.
- 11 Britain's gold rush continued with Olympic victories for canoeist Ed McKeever in the 200m K1 sprint, boxer Luke Campbell in the men's bantamweight (56kg) class, and distance runner Mo Farah in the 5,000mts. Team GB also secured bronze medals by Tom Daley in the 10m platform diving competition and Liam Heath & Jon Schofield in the K2 200m canoe sprint.
- 12 On the final day of Olympic competition Team GB gained eight more medals to finish their Games with 29 golds, 17 silvers and 19 bronzes, placing third in the table behind the USA (46, 29, 29) and China (38, 27, 22) but ahead of Russia (24, 35, 23). Super heavyweight boxer Anthony Joshua gained Britain's final gold and team-mate Fred Evans won silver in the welterweight class. Britain's final medal was won by Modern Pentathlete Samantha Murray who gained silver after passing two athletes during the final run/shoot stage.
- Rory McIlroy won the USPGA title at Kiawah Island by eight shots.
- 24 Lance Armstrong was stripped of his seven Tour de France titles and given a lifetime ban by the United States Anti-Doping Agency (USADA). The US cyclist opted not to contest USADA drugs charges, saying he is tired of fighting the allegations. He strongly denies doping. The International Cycling Union, the world governing body, is yet to say if it intends to follow USADA's lead.
- 25 Warrington Wolves brought the Carnegie Challenge Cup back to the town for the third time in four years with a 35-18 defeat of Leeds Rhinos in rugby league's annual Wembley showpiece. Brett Hodgson became the fourth Australian to win the Lance Todd Trophy for man-of-the-match.
- 27 European captain Jose Maria Olazabal selected Ian Poulter and Belgian Nicolas Colsaerts as his wild cards for the 2012 Ryder Cup at Medinah, Chicago.

29 Andrew Strauss resigned as England cricket captain and was immediately replaced by Alastair Cook.

September

- 2 Jenson Button led from start to finish to win the Belgian Formula One GP at Spa.
- 5 England lost the fifth one day international against South Africa at Trent Bridge to tie the series 2-2 and hang on narrowly to their No 1 world ranking.
- 7 England began their qualifying campaign for the 2014 World Cup with a 5-0 defeat of Moldova. In other World Cup qualifiers Wales lost 2-0 to Belgium and Northern Ireland lost 2-0 to Russia while the Republic of Ireland beat Kazakhstan 2-1.
- 9 Great Britain finished third in the Paralympic medal table behind China and Russia. Team GB's 120 medals included 34 golds, 43 silvers and 43 bronzes. Wheelchair athlete David Weir completed a Grand Slam by winning the 800m, 1500m, 5000m and marathon. Lewis Hamilton won the Italian Formula One GP at Monza. Welshman Luke Rowe won the first stage of the Tour of Britain in Norfolk after Team Sky team-mate Mark Cavendish crashed with victory in sight. Serena Williams came back from the brink of defeat to take her fourth US Open title, beating Victoria Azarenka of Belarus 6-2, 2-6, 7-5 in the final at Flushing Meadows.
- 10 Andy Murray became the first British man to win a tennis Grand Slam for 76 years, beating defending champion and world number two Novak Djokovic 7-6 (12-10) 7-5 2-6 3-6 6-2 at Flushing Meadows. The last British man to win a Grand Slam title was Fred Perry, who also won the US Open.
- 11 England drew 1-1 in their second Group H World Cup qualifier. In other qualifiers Wales were beaten 6-1 by Serbia and Scotland drew 1-1 with Macedonia, both in Group A, and Northern Ireland drew 1-1 with Luxembourg in Group F.
- 12 An independent panel chaired by the Bishop of Liverpool, James Jones, concluded that up to 41 of the 96 Liverpool fans who died during the Hillsborough disaster in 1989 might have been saved but for the failings of emergency services and public bodies. The report into the circumstances leading to the human crush which occurred during the semi-final FA Cup tie between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest football clubs on 15 April 1989 at the Hillsborough Stadium in Sheffield cleared Liverpool fans of any negligence and criticised police for allegedly covering up multiple failings. England beat South Africa by 28 runs in the third and final Twenty20 international to draw the series 1-1
- 15 Camelot failed in his bid to become the first Triple Crown winner since 1970 as 25-1 shot Encke, ridden by Mickael Barzalona and trained by Mahmood Al Zarooni, was the surprise winner of the St Leger at Doncaster.
- 16 The Tour of Britain cycle race was won by Jonathan Tieman-Locke, the first British winner since the present format began in 2004.
- 19 The British Horseracing Authority (BHA) announced that the Grand National will be run over 90 yards shorter from next April in an effort to slow down the field as it races to the first fence.
- 23 Sebastian Vettel won the Singapore Grand Prix after Lewis Hamilton failed to finish when leading the race. England suffered a 90-run defeat at the hands of India in the World Twenty20 group stage in Colombo. Chelsea captain John Terry announced his retirement from international football.
- 27 Chelsea star John Terry was given a four-match ban and fined £220,000 by the FA for a vile outburst aimed at black QPR player Anton Ferdinand
- 28 Lewis Hamilton announced he is to quit McLaren and join Mercedes as replacement for Michael Schumacher next year.
- 30 European golfers recovered from 10-6 down going into the final day singles to beat the USA by 14½-13½ in the Ryder Cup at Medinah Country Club, Chicago, Illinois. Martin Kaymer sank a five-foot putt on the 18th green to get his team to the 14 points needed to retain the trophy. Then a Tiger Woods bogey on the final green of the final match gifted Jose Maria Olazabal's side overall victory. The win matches the record recovery of Ben Crenshaw's US team in Brookline, Boston in 1999 and an emotional Olazabal paid a fitting tribute to his late friend Seve Ballesteros, the man who did so much to reinvigorate the competition and whose trademark navy blue and white the side wore on the final day in Chicago. Ian Poulter was in brilliant form all week and made it four wins out of four in typically indomitable fashion against Webb Simpson.

October

- 6 Australian Chris Holder was crowned speedway world champion after winning the Polish Grand Prix.
- 7 Solemia, ridden by Olivier Peslier and trained by Carlos Laffon-Parias, won the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe at Longchamps. A Marlon Samuels-inspired West Indies recovered from an awful start to beat Sri Lanka and win the World Twenty20 by 36 runs in Colombo. Sebastian Vettel moved to within four points of leader Fernando Alonso by winning the Japanese Formula One Grand Prix at Suzuka. Drew Brees made history when he threw a touchdown pass in his 48th consecutive game to break the 52-year-old NFL record set by Johnny Unitas. The New Orleans quarterback also led the Saints to their first win of the season, a 31-24 victory against San Diego, the team he began his career with.
- 12 England beat San Marino 5-0 at Wembley in World Cup Qualifier Group H. In other matches Wales beat Scotland 2-1 but the Republic of Ireland were beaten 6-1 by Germany in Dublin.
- 13 Audley Harrison was knocked out in 82 seconds by David Price in their British and Commonwealth heavyweight title showdown at the Liverpool Echo Arena.
- 14 Sebastian Vettel took a six-point lead in the drivers' championship after winning the Korean Grand Prix, beating Fernando Alonso into third place. Novak Djokovic beat Andy Murray in three sets to win the Shanghai Masters. Heather Watson saved four match points before beating Taiwan's Chang Kai-Chen 7-5, 5-7, 7-6 in the Japan Open final and thus become the first Briton to win a WTA singles title since 1988 when Sara Gomer won in Aptos, California.
- 15 Richard Hughes emulated Frankie Dettori by riding seven winners at one race meeting. Hughes was victorious on his first five rides at Windsor before Ever Fortune placed third in the sixth race. He then won on his final two rides, Mama Quilla bringing up the seven-timer.
- 16 England's World Cup qualifier against Poland in Warsaw was delayed a day in bizarre fashion after the roof of the stadium was not closed despite torrential rain. In other matches Northern Ireland drew 1-1 with Portugal in Porto, Wales were beaten 2-0 by Croatia, Scotland lost 2-0 to Belgium and the Republic of Ireland beat the Faroe Isles 4-1 in Torshavn. Richard Hughes won the first two races at Leicester to bring his tally to nine wins from his last ten rides. The champion-elect had a third winner later in the meeting. England Under-21 stars were embroiled in ugly scenes after the final whistle in an international against Serbia. Racist thugs made monkey chants at Danny Rose, who was subsequently sent off for reacting to the disgraceful abuse. Serbia skipper Slobodan Medojevic was also sent off after Connor Wickham scored the winning goal for England in injury time.
- 17 England drew 1-1 with Poland in the delayed World Cup group match.
- 19 Former England goalkeeper Chris Kirkland was shoved in the face by a Leeds Utd fan moments after the Sheffield Wednesday goalkeeper conceded a 79th minute equaliser. Trenton Oldfield, 36, a protester who swam in front of the two crews during the Varsity Boat Race on April 7 was jailed for six months at Isleworth Crown Court.
- 20 Frankel, the world's greatest-ever racehorse, was retired to stud after his 14th consecutive victory, winning the Champion Stakes at Royal Ascot watched by the Queen.
- 24 Rower Alex Partridge and hockey player Hannah Macleod had their Olympic bronze medals stolen as they partied at a London nightclub.
- 27 Hannah Macleod, 28, received her bronze medal back after it was posted anonymously to the England Hockey head office at Bisham Abbey in Buckinghamshire.
- 28 After a controversial Premier League match at Stamford Bridge which ended 3-2 to Manchester United, match referee Mark Clattenburg stood accused (but subsequently cleared) of racially abusing two Chelsea players. Sebastian Vettel won the Indian GP to consolidate his lead in the Drivers' Championship. Casey Stoner won the Australian GP at Phillip Island for the sixth year in a row as Spain's Jorge Lorenzo secured his second MotoGP world championship, finishing second behind the Australian. Briton Cal Crutchlow claimed third, his second podium finish of the season.

- 29 Bradley Wiggins was awarded third place in the 2009 Tour de France after Lance Armstrong's result was wiped out of the record books. Swede Peter Eriksson was named as replacement for Charles van Commenee as new coach of UK Athletics.
- November

4 Kimi Raikkonen won the Abu Dhabi Grand Prix from Fernando Alonso and Sebastian Vettel, who had been forced to start from the pit lane after his Red Bull was deemed to have had insufficient fuel in its tank after qualifying third.

7 Tour de France winner Bradley Wiggins was knocked off his bike and sustained bruised ribs while out on a training ride near his Ecclestone home.

11 Britain's Nathan Cleverly retained his WBO light-heavyweight title with an eighth-round stoppage win over American Shawn Hawk in Los Angeles.

14 Sweden beat England 4-2 in a friendly international football match in Stockholm; all four Swedish goals scored by Zlatan Ibrahimovic - the last an overhead bicycle shot from outside the box.

17 Carl Froch retained his IBF world super-middleweight title with a third round stoppage of American Yusaf Mack in Nottingham.

19 India defeated England by nine wickets in the first Test at Ahmedabad with Kevin Pietersen failing twice with the bat on his recall to the England team.

21 Chelsea manager Roberto Di Matteo was sacked and replaced until the end of the season by Rafa Benitez.

24 Ricky Hatton was stopped by Vyacheslav Senchenko in round nine of his comeback fight at Manchester Arena.

25 Sebastian Vettel was crowned the youngest Formula One treble championship winner after finishing sixth behind Jenson Button in the Brazilian GP at Sao Paulo. Vettel ended the season on 281pts, three ahead of Fernando Alonso.

England rugby union captain Chris Robshaw controversially asked Owen Farrell to kick a penalty in the dying moments of an international match against South Africa. The three points resulted in a 15-16 loss.

26 England beat India by 10 wickets in the second Test at Mumbai, Kevin Pietersen being named man-of-the-match for his breath-taking innings of 186 from 233 balls.

30 Former England cricket star Freddie Flintoff, 34, made a successful debut as a professional heavyweight boxer, beating American Richard Dawson on points at the Manchester Arena after being knocked down in the second of the four rounds.
- December

1 England beat the All Blacks 38-21 at Twickenham to go into the Six Nations as the favourites. David Beckham played his final game for LA Galaxy in their 3-1 victory over Houston Dynamo.

3 Australian cricketer Ricky Ponting was dismissed for eight in his final Test innings as the hosts slipped to a 309-run defeat to South Africa in Perth.

5 Frankie Dettori, 41, was banned from race-riding for six months by French racing authority France Galop after the popular jockey tested positive for cocaine after a race in Paris in September.

6 Alastair Cook set a record for England Test centuries with his 23rd as the tourists assumed control of the third Test against India at Eden Gardens, Kolkata. The opener passed the mark of 22 held by Wally Hammond, Colin Cowdrey, Geoffrey Boycott and Kevin Pietersen. Oxford beat Cambridge 26-19 in the annual rugby union Varsity match at Twickenham.

9 Manny Pacquiao was knocked out by Juan Manuel Márquez in the sixth round in Las Vegas to give the Mexican fighter his first victory over the Filipino boxer and politician - their three previous fights resulting in two wins for Pacquiao and a draw. Barcelona striker Lionel Messi grabbed the opener at Real Betis to equal Gerd Muller's record of 85 goals in a calendar year. Nine minutes later Messi struck again to take his tally to 86 and help his side to a 2-1 victory.

England beat India by seven wickets in the third Test in Kolkata.

11 League Two Bradford defeated a full-strength Arsenal side on penalties in the quarter-final of the Capital One Cup after the match ended 1-1 in normal time.

15 Chelsea were beaten 1-0 by the Brazilian side Corinthians in the final of the Club World Cup in Yokohama, Japan.

Amir Khan stopped Carlos Molina in the 10th round at the Los Angeles Memorial Sports Arena to get his career back on track after two successive defeats.

18 Following the recent closure of Hereford racecourse, Folkestone staged its last-ever horse racing meeting before the track becomes a housing development.

30 In the semi-final of the PDC World Darts Championship Michael van Gerwen threw 17 perfect darts to almost complete the first-ever successive nine-dart legs. The 23-year-old master threw 180 and 177 followed by two treble twenties and a double twelve before beginning the next leg with seven treble twenties, a treble nineteen and narrowly missing the double twelve. Despite losing the set Van Gerwen went on to win the match against James Wade 6-4.

Miscellaneous Information

Academies	Established by Tony Blair in 2000, academies are all-ability state-funded schools established and managed by sponsors from a wide range of backgrounds. They are required to follow the National Curriculum in core subjects but have a specialism relative to their community and circumstances thereof.
A-Level	Consists of six units of assessment (three AS and three A2).
Baker Days	Part of the controversial education reform bill, during Kenneth Baker's tenancy as Education Minister 1986–89. His legislation on the in-service training days for teachers came to be known as Baker Days.
Cambridge College: Former Name	Murray Edwards was formerly called New Hall until 2008 – along with Newnham it is women only.
City Technology Colleges	Set up in the 1980s in an attempt to widen the choices of secondary education in disadvantaged urban areas. The Learning and Skills Act 2000 introduced a similar type of school, now known as 'Academy'.
Dulwich College	Founded by the English actor Edward Alleyn in 1619 but a distinct school from Alleyn's School, founded in 1882. Old Boys of Dulwich College are however known as Old Alleynians.
GCSE	General Certificate of Secondary Education.
GNVQ	General National Vocation Qualification (Further Education).
Gordonstoun	Founded by Kurt Hahn in 1934.
Grant-Maintained Schools	Came into being as a result of the 1988 Education Act which permits schools with more than 300 pupils to opt out of local authority control if the majority of parents wish to do so. Grant-maintained status was abolished in 1998 and now only CTC and Academy schools are directly funded by central government.
Independent Schools	Receive no grants from Public Funds and are funded by fees and contributions, and run by trusts.

National Curriculum	Under the 1988 Education Act the National Curriculum was set out in four Key Stages of a child's development. Key Stage 1 and 2 concerned 5–11-year-olds and stated that Core Subjects would include English, (Welsh in Welsh-speaking schools) Maths and Science; and the Foundation Subjects would be Design & Technology, Information Technology, History, Geography, Art, Music and PE. Key Stage 3 caters for 11–14-year-olds and states that a Modern Foreign Language must be included. Key

	Stage 4 concerns 14–16-year-olds. The Act states that the child must be tested at the end of each Key Stage i.e. 7, 11, and 14-years-old. 16-year-olds only require testing if staying in education. See also Key Stages.
Newnham College: 1st Male Fellow Ofsted	Dr Rachel Padman (who had a sex change operation in 1982). The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills is responsible for inspecting the standards of both independent and state schools as well as local education authorities, child day care and childminding in England. Similar bodies exist in Scotland (HM Inspectorate of Education), Northern Ireland (The Education and Training Inspectorate) and Wales (Estyn). Ofsted's head office is in Holborn.
Parents Charter	Booklet informing parents about the education system.
Public Schools: Famous Founders	John Lyon (Harrow), Elizabeth I (Westminster), William of Wykeham (Winchester), Henry VI (Eton), Thomas Sutton (Charterhouse), Edward Alleyne (Dulwich College), Lawrence Sheriff (Rugby), John Colet (St Paul's), Edward VI (Shrewsbury).
Public Schools: Meaning	In recent years the term 'Public School' applies to those Independent Schools in membership of the Headmasters' and Headmistresses' Conference, the Governing Bodies Association or the Governing Bodies of Girl's Schools Association. Historically Public Schools were fee-paying private boarding schools, for pupils aged 13 years and above, which gained sufficient reputation to attract pupils from backgrounds of social worthiness. Public schools were contrasted with 'Private Schools' which were run for the profit of their proprietors. In Scotland, the term Public School refers to a free state school, open to all.
School Age Limits	In Great Britain schooling is compulsory between the ages of 5 and 16 (4 and 16 in Northern Ireland).
Scotvec	Scottish Vocational Education Council (Further Education).

Catchphrases and Slogans

NB: The list below shows a phrase and the most identifiable body to that phrase. In most cases the details are self-explanatory and where the phrase has actually been coined by a person then his information is given. Many phrases will be of doubtful origin and no attempt has been made to authenticate entries as original spoutings. To give Robert Walpole as an example from my list: the phrase 'every man has his price' is identified with the prime minister but the phrase was almost certainly used as a maxim centuries earlier, although impossible to research. Many more catchphrases associated with household products will be found in the TV Advert section.

Philosophers and Political Thinkers

Thales (c624–c545 bc)	Greek natural philosopher and astronomer, born in Miletus, traditionally seen as the founder of European philosophy. Thales identified water as the basis of the universe and also predicted the solar eclipse that took place in 585 bc. He was included in the traditional canon of 'Seven Wise Men' and allegedly once fell into a well whilst looking at the stars.
Anaximander (c611–546 bc)	Greek natural philosopher and astronomer, born in Miletus, and possibly a pupil of Thales. Anaximander is credited with producing the first maps. He was the second of the three great Milesian thinkers (the third was Anaximenes).
Pythagoras (c580– c500 bc)	Greek philosopher and mathematician, born in Samos, Ionia. He established his ethico-political academy at Croton (now Crotona) in southern Italy. Famous for his theorem concerning properties of right-angled triangles.
Heraclitus (554–483 bc)	Greek philosopher, born in Ephesus and nicknamed at various times 'the obscure' and 'the riddler'. Most famous doctrine is that everything is in a state of flux and that fire is the ultimate constituent of the world.
Confucius (551–479 bc)	Chinese philosopher, born in what is now Shantung province. His birthday is celebrated on 28 September and is an official holiday in Taiwan ('Teacher's Day'). Although Confucius was not greatly revered in his lifetime, Confucianism, as expressed in his Analects , subsequently dominated Chinese life as both a religious and philosophical way of life.
Parmenides of Elea (510–483 bc)	Greek philosopher from southern Italy and founder of the Eleatic school, which included his pupils Zeno and Melissus. His great work On Nature was written in hexameter verse.
Empedocles (c490–c430 bc)	Greek philosopher, poet, statesman, religious teacher and physiologist, born in Acragas in Sicily. Held that the world is composed of 4 elements – air, fire, earth and water – governed by the opposing forces of love and discord. Heralded by his followers as a god, he allegedly died by leaping into the volcanic crater of Mount Etna whilst attempting to prove his divinity.
Socrates (469–399 bc)	Athenian philosopher, held in such esteem that all earlier Greek philosophy is known as pre-Socratic. Little is known about him other than that he had an apparently shrewish wife, Xanthippe, and took part in military campaigns at Potidaea, Delium and Amphipolis. Socrates wrote nothing but was eulogised in the 'Dialogues' of his pupil, Plato. Socrates' approach was to question everything. He chose to pick holes in the deliberations of others and asked people to think for themselves. He was eventually charged with 'Impiety' and 'Corrupting the youth of Athens' and forced to die by drinking hemlock.
Democritus (c460–c370 bc)	Greek philosopher, born in Abdera in Thrace and known as the 'laughing philosopher' because of his wry amusement at human foibles. A prolific writer, he is best known for the atomistic theory he developed from Leucippus.

Plato (c428–348 bc) Athenian philosopher who related the story of Socrates' trial in three of his Dialogues: the Apology, the Crito and the Phaedo. In c387 bc he founded the Academy, which became a famous establishment for philosophical, mathematical and scientific research. His writings comprise around 30 dialogues and a series of letters (only the 7th and 8th likely to be genuine). The dialogue Symposium is an allegory of the search for love, and the Republic an allegory of the search for justice. Plato was the teacher of Aristotle.

Aristotle (384–322 bc) Greek philosopher and scientist, born in Stagira, son of the court physician to the King of Macedon. Aristotle is one of the two most important philosophers of the ancient world, and one of the four or five most important of any time or place. For twenty years he was a member of Plato's Academy. When Plato died, Speusippus became head of the academy and Aristotle left Athens and became tutor to Alexander the Great (then aged 13). He returned to Athens in 335 bc and founded his 'Lyceum', so called from its proximity to the temple of Apollo Lyceus. The 'Aristotelian corpus' (1,462 pages of Greek text, including some spurious works) is probably derived from the lectures he gave in the Lyceum. Aristotle's followers became known as peripatetics (from his habit of walking around whilst lecturing). There is no doubt that many of the sub-categories of modern philosophy were formulated by Aristotle. Some areas in which Aristotle made a fundamental contribution in the expansion of philosophy as a science include logic, the study of nature, metaphysics, philosophy of mind, ethics and politics, and literary criticism and rhetorical theory. His works include the Nicomachean Ethics, De Anima, Politics, Poetics, Metaphysics, and the Organon (treatises on logic).

Epicurus (341–270 bc) Greek philosopher, born in Samos. His ethical philosophy was based on simple pleasures, friendship, and reflection. When Epicurus came to Athens in 306 bc he bought a house and established a school in the garden which became known as Ho Kepos (The Garden), where men and women of any background could attend. Like many of his predecessors he wrote treatises 'On Nature' but his best works were his ethical and theological dialogues, which made him a revered figure long after his death.

Lucretius (c99–55 bc) Roman philosopher and poet whose great works are his hexameter poem De rerum natura and his treatises attempting to separate philosophy from religion, which he denounced as the one great source of man's wickedness and misery. He was said to have died mad from the effects of a love potion administered by his wife, Lucilia.

Plotinus (c205–70) Born in Egypt of Roman parentage. His prolific writings were posthumously edited and arranged by his pupil, Porphyry, into six 'groups of nine books' or Enneads. These established the foundations of Neoplatonism, which combined Platonic with Pythagorean, Aristotelian and Stoic doctrines.

St Augustine of Hippo (354–430) Born in Tagaste in Numidia (modern Tunisia) of Roman descent, he was converted to Christianity in 386 and described his conversion in his most famous work Confessions. His other masterpiece was The City of God.

Roger Bacon (c1214–92) English philosopher and scientist, probably born near Ilchester, Somerset. His soubriquet 'Doctor Mirabilis' was gained because of his learning in magic and alchemy and he was the first European to describe the process for making gunpowder. Bacon held radical philosophical views and was imprisoned by Franciscans for some time because of his suspected heretical teachings.

St Thomas Aquinas (c1225–74) Italian Dominican philosopher and theologian, born in the castle of Roccasecca, near Aquino, Sicily. His early education was at the monastery of Monte Cassino and then the University of Naples. He was a pupil of the Dominican scholar, Albertus Magnus, at the University of Paris and from 1256 began teaching there himself. In 1259 he was appointed theological adviser to the papal Curia. His two major works are Summa theologiae and Summa contra gentiles. Thomas was known as 'Doctor Angelicus' and canonised a saint in 1323 by Pope John XXII. Thomism was the standard teaching of the Dominican order.

John Duns Scotus (c1265–1308) Scottish scholastic philosopher who became a Franciscan and was ordained a priest in St Andrew's Church, Northampton in 1291. He taught at Cologne, where he died and was buried. Duns Scotus was known by contemporaries as 'Doctor Subtilis' because of his extremely nuanced and technical reasoning, but in the Renaissance the Scotists were dubbed 'Dunses' (hence the word 'dunce'). His important works include the Opus Pariense (Parisian Lectures), Opus Oxiense (Oxford Lectures, also known as the Ordinatio), Tractatus de Primo Principio and Quaestiones Quodlibetales.

William of Ockham (c1285–c1349) Philosopher, theologian and political writer, born in Ockham, Surrey. William entered the Franciscan order after studying theology at Oxford, although he failed to graduate, hence his nickname 'the Venerable Inceptor'. He was excommunicated by John XXII and fled to Bavaria where he died of the Black Death. His works greatly upset the papacy and included Summa Logicae, Quodlibeta Septem and commentaries on the sentences of Peter Lombard and Aristotle. His greatest philosophical contribution is 'Ockham's razor' or the 'Law of Parsimony', which states that entities are not to be multiplied beyond necessity. The principle was invoked previously by Durand de Saint-Pourçain but Ockham's frequent and sharp employment of the doctrine ensured that his name would be identified with the principle.

Nicholas of Cusa (1401–64) German philosopher, scientist and churchman, born in Cues, Trier. He studied at Heidelberg and Padua, was ordained in 1430 and subsequently became a papal diplomat and Cardinal. Nicholas stressed the incomplete nature of man's knowledge of God and the universe. His main philosophical work is De Docta Ignorantia (1440) but he was the precursor of Copernicus as regards his non-geocentric theories.

Niccolò Machiavelli (1469–1527) Italian political philosopher, statesman and writer, born in Florence. He rose to prominence after the demise of Savonarola's regime in 1498. He had a controversial career and was in and out of favour dependent on the political climate. His masterpiece, The Prince, was dedicated to Lorenzo de Medici and published 1532. This work epitomised his ethic of evil sometimes being necessary in order for good to prevail. Other works include The Art of War, and Mandragola, a comic play about seduction, as well as a discourse on Livy. He is buried in Santa Croce, Florence.

Giordano Bruno (1548–1600) Italian philosopher, born in Nola, nr Naples. Became a Dominican but came into conflict with the Inquisition due to his championing of Copernicus' heliocentricity theory, and his pantheistic views. He was eventually burned at the stake in Rome.

Sir Francis Bacon (1561–1626) English philosopher and statesman who became Viscount St Albans. He was a leading proponent of Empiricism and rejected Aristotelian deductive logic. His works include The Advancement of Learning, Novum Organum and The New Atlantis. Bacon was also a leading parliamentarian and his methodical and logical approach was not trusted by his uncle, Lord Burghley. An example of his political expediency was to try to convict his former friend, the Earl of Essex. He apparently died from hypothermia caused while carrying out food preservation experiments on chickens.

Thomas Hobbes (1588–1679) English political philosopher, born in Malmesbury (apparently prematurely, after his mother heard news of the approaching Spanish Armada). His first published work was a translation of Thucydides' History (1629); other works include Elements of Law Natural and Politic and his masterpiece Leviathan (1651), in which he argues that absolutist government is needed to ensure law and order. His later works, published in Holland, include Behemoth: a History of the causes of the Civil Wars of England.

René Descartes (1596–1650) French philosopher and mathematician, born near Tours in a town renamed Descartes in his honour. He is often called the father of modern philosophy. Descartes was in Germany with the army of the Duke of Bavaria when, on 10 November 1619 he had a visionary dream in a stove-heated room, which revealed a scientific postulate that would link all possible human knowledge together into an all-embracing wisdom. Most of his major works were published shortly after the death of his illegitimate daughter, Francine, in 1640, the most famous being the Discourse on Method which framed the basis for Cartesian philosophy, the phrase 'Cogito ergo sum' (I think therefore I am) encapsulating his rational methodology. He died of pneumonia and his last words were supposedly 'So my soul a time for parting'. He was buried in Stockholm but was later moved to Saint-Germain-des-Prés, Paris.

Baruch Spinoza (1632–77) Dutch philosopher, born in Amsterdam. He was expelled from his Jewish community for heresy in 1656 and made a living grinding and polishing lenses (the glass dust was to cause his untimely death from consumption). His Principia Philosophiae was the only book published in his lifetime with his name on it. His main work, Ethics, was published posthumously. Spinoza is also known for his contributions to the development of an historical approach to the Bible.

John Locke (1632–74) English empiricist philosopher, born in Wrington, Somerset. Locke's Essay Concerning Human Understanding was the basis for the resurgence of Empiricism as an alternative to Cartesianism. He believed the mind at birth was a tabula rasa, as opposed to the Cartesian view that knowledge is derived from first principles.

Gottfried Wilhelm von Leibniz (1646–1716) German philosopher and mathematician, born in Leipzig. His optimism and faith in enlightenment and reason was satirised by Voltaire in Candide ('all is for the best in the best of all possible worlds'). His most famous work is the Monadology, in which he argues that the world is made up of an infinite number of units (monads), the highest of which is God. Apart from his philosophical essays, Leibniz also invented differential calculus, although the Royal Society formally declared Newton as its inventor in 1711 (nowadays both are credited).

Giovanni Vico (1668–1744) Italian philosopher, born in Naples. His major work, Scienza Nuova (The New Science), is concerned with the differences between scientific and historical explanation.

George Berkeley (1685–1753) Irish Anglican bishop and philosopher, born at Dysert Castle, Kilkenny. Bishop Berkeley was Dean of Derry and then Bishop of Cloyne; in between he tried to establish a college in the Bermudas but only got as far as Rhode Island. His celebrated claim that 'to be is to be perceived', whereby the contents of the material world are 'ideas' that only exist when they are perceived by a mind, is set out in his Essay Towards a New Theory of Vision and A Treatise Concerning the Principles of Human Knowledge. His other major work is Three Dialogues Between Hylas and Philanous.

David Hume (1711–76) Scottish philosopher and historian, born in Edinburgh. Hume's life was dogged in its early stages with fits of depression which he came to terms with whilst tutoring the insane nobleman, the Marquis of Annandale. His major works, A Treatise of Human Nature and Dialogues Concerning Natural Religion had a profound effect on Immanuel Kant and provoked the Idealists to counter Hume's scepticism. Hume was a friend of Rousseau but became embroiled in a famously bitter quarrel with him.

Jean-Jacques Rousseau (1712–78) French political philosopher, born in Geneva (his mother died in childbirth). He worked as a secretary and music copier in his early life. After a brief affair with Mme Louise de Warens he formed a lifelong liaison with Thérèse le Vasseur, with whom he had five children and eventually married in 1768. In 1762 he published his masterpiece The Social Contract which begins, 'Man is born free; and everywhere he is in chains.' His text, with its slogan 'Liberty, Equality, Fraternity', became the Bible of the French Revolution. At the invitation of David Hume, he lived at Wootton Hall near Ashbourne in Derbyshire. Here he began his Confessions but became increasingly paranoid and returned to Paris where he completed the work. He became seriously insane and died in Ermenonville. His remains were placed alongside Voltaire's in the Panthéon in Paris.

Denis Diderot (1713–84) French philosopher and man of letters, born in Langres in Champagne, the son of a master cutler. He was a precursor of the Romanticists and was patronised by Catherine II, (the Great) of Russia. In 1743 he married Antoinette Champion, daughter of a linendraper, although his father disapproved. Diderot set out a philosophy of the arts and sciences which took the progress of civilisation to be a measure of mankind's moral improvement and perceived the Christian religion as morally harmful. From 1745 to 1772 Diderot served as chief editor of the Encyclopédie, one of the principal works of the Age of Enlightenment.

Immanuel Kant (1724–1804) German philosopher, born in Königsberg in Prussia (now Kaliningrad), the son of a saddler. He taught at the university and was known for his ordered way of life (locals allegedly set their watches by the time of his daily walks). Kant was a keen astronomer who predicted the existence of the planet Uranus before Herschel's discovery in 1781. Kant's most famous works, such as Critique of Pure Reason (1781), Critique of Practical Reason (1788) and Critique of Judgement (1790) were all published late in his life. Kant described his philosophy as 'transcendental' or 'critical' idealism.

Edmund Burke (1729–97) Irish philosopher and statesman, born in Dublin, and educated at a Quaker school and Trinity College. Burke's Thoughts on the Present Discontents and Reflections on the French Revolution were his masterpieces. Although a Whig all his life, Burke's political thought became, with Disraeli's, the philosophy of modern Conservatism.

Thomas Paine (1737–1809) Revolutionary philosopher and writer, born in Thetford, Norfolk, the son of a Quaker. He followed his father's trade as a corset maker before becoming, firstly a sailor, then a schoolmaster and ultimately an exciseman. It was during this period that he first showed his tendency to speak out against what he felt were injustices and was dismissed for disturbing the status quo by deriding the lack of pay increases. Benjamin Franklin helped him emigrate to America, where he settled in Philadelphia and became a radical journalist. He published a pamphlet Common Sense following the outbreak of the American Revolutionary War urging an immediate declaration of independence. He returned to England, after visiting France, and published The Rights of Man (1792) a reply to Burke's Reflections on the French Revolution. He was indicted for treason but fled to France whereupon he fell foul of Robespierre and was imprisoned but later freed on the grounds of his US citizenship (1795). His book The Age of Reason (1796) mostly written in prison, upset many of his American friends, including George Washington. He died alone and in poverty on his farm in New Rochelle, New York.

Jeremy Bentham (1748–1832) London-born philosopher, jurist and social reformer, best known as a proponent of Utilitarianism, as seen in his pioneering works A Fragment on Government (1776) and Introduction to the Principles of Morals and Legislation (1789), in which he argues that the proper objective of all conduct and legislation is 'the greatest happiness of the greatest number'. He developed 'hedonic calculus' to estimate the effects of different actions. Bentham became an honorary French citizen in 1792 and published treatises on social and penal reform. He also planned a special prison (Panopticon) and school (Chrestomathia), helped start the Westminster Review (1823) and founded University College, where his clothed skeleton is preserved.

Johann Fichte (1762–1814) German philosopher, born in Rammenau, Saxony, the son of a ribbon weaver. In 1793 Fichte married Johanna Maria Rahn and in the same year published two anonymous works, the most important being Contribution to the Correction of the Public's Judgments Regarding the French Revolution. He developed Kant's critical philosophy into a system of his own, which he named 'Theory of Science' (Wissenschaftslehre).

Georg Hegel (1770–1831) German Idealist philosopher, born in Stuttgart. After studying theology he became a lecturer at Jena but Napoleon's victory there in 1806 interrupted his career. Hegel worked temporarily as a newspaper editor at Bamberg and then headmaster of the gymnasium at Nuremberg. Hegel's first great work was The Phenomenology of Mind (1807), which describes the human mind's progression from mere consciousness through self-consciousness, reason, spirit and religion, to absolute knowledge. His second great work was The Science of Logic which gained him the chair at Heidelberg in 1816. Hegel's dialectic method of reasoning involved a sequence of thesis, antithesis and synthesis, and his doctrines influenced Karl Marx and contributed to the development of 'Modern Totalitarianism'. In 1818 he succeeded Fichte as professor in Berlin and remained there until his death from cholera.

Charles Fourier (1772–1837) French philosopher and social theorist, born in Besançon. He published a number of utopian socialist works including The Social Destiny of Man; or, Theory of the Four Movements (1857). Fourier argued for the existence of a natural social order corresponding to Newton's ordering of the physical universe, claiming that both evolved in eight ascending periods. In Harmony, the highest stage, human emotions would be freely expressed. Fournier declared that this stage could be attained by dividing society into phalanges, each comprising a commune approximately 1,800 people within which all property would be collectively owned. His other works include Treatise on Domestic Agricultural Association and The New Industrial World.

Friedrich Schelling (1775–1854) German idealist philosopher, born in Leonberg in Württemberg. His early work was influenced by Kant and Fichte, and included On the Possibility and Form of Philosophy in General and Of the Ego as Principle of Philosophy in which he discusses the theological concept of the 'Absolute'. Schelling's major work System of Transcendental Idealism was an attempt to unite his concept of nature having a spiritual separateness from man, with Fichte's philosophy that nature is merely a tool of man. Schelling spent time in Jena, where he replaced Fichte in his teaching post, and in 1803, married Caroline Schlegel, a leading German Romanticist. A disagreement with Hegel concerning the dispute with Fichte caused him to retreat to Munich. After the death of Caroline, he married her friend, Pauline Gotter.

Arthur Schopenhauer (1788–1860) German philosopher, born in Danzig, whose metaphysical doctrines of the will were in contrast to Hegelian idealism. He was strongly influenced firstly by Plato, and then by Immanuel Kant, and also became friendly with the playwright and poet Goethe, who invited his assistance with some problems concerning his ‘Farbenlehre’ (theory of colours). After finishing On Vision and Colours, Schopenhauer began his masterpiece, The World as Will and Idea, which expounds his pessimistic and atheistic views. The premise being that man's nature as willing beings inevitably leads to suffering and such a life is worse than non-existence.

Auguste Comte (1798–1857) French philosopher and social theorist, born in Montpellier, and usually considered the founder of modern sociology and Positivism. Comte was nicknamed the ‘Thinker’ and was rebellious by nature. He was the first thinker to advocate the use of scientific procedures in the study of economics and politics. In a typical non conformist act he married a prostitute, Caroline Massin, in 1821. He then became increasingly depressed and mentally disturbed culminating in a suicide attempt in the Seine which seemed to bring him to his senses. His wife, however, resorted to her previous occupation and Comte formed an alliance with Clotilde de Vaux which lasted for two years until her death in 1846. Comte's major work was The Positive Philosophy of Auguste Comte, which became the bible for students of Positivism.

John Stuart Mill (1806–73) English philosopher and social reformer, born in London, the son of Scottish philosopher James Mill. He began publishing in The Traveller in 1822 and helped form the Utilitarian Society, which met in Jeremy Bentham's house, and he ultimately modified some of Bentham's doctrines. As with many philosophers, both before and after, Mill endured a phase of severe depression but in 1830 met and eventually married the bluestocking, Harriet Taylor, who influenced his future works. Mill's works include System of Logic, On Liberty, Principles of Political Economy, Utilitarianism, as well as a celebrated autobiography.

Søren Kierkegaard (1813–55) Danish philosopher, born in Copenhagen, the son of a Jewish merchant. Kierkegaard is considered the founder of Existentialism. His most famous work is probably Either-Or, in which he opposes Hegel by arguing the importance of individual choice. He was a convert to Christianity, although he fought against the formal structure of religion and believed that God and some special disciples were above moral laws as we know them. His other works include The Concept of Irony, Christian Discourses, Fear of Trembling, and The Sickness Unto Death.

Karl Marx (1818–1883) German social, political and economic theorist, born in Trier. His Jewish parents converted to Protestantism out of political expediency. Marx became the inspiration for international Communism. He studied at Bonn and then Berlin University, where he met the ‘young Hegelians’ who were chiefly concerned with the critique of religion. His doctoral dissertation was on ‘The Difference between the Philosophies of Nature in Democritus and Epicurus’. Marx worked firstly as a journalist and then editor of the liberal Cologne paper Rheinische Zeitung but after the paper was suppressed by the government, Marx emigrated to Paris and became a communist. It was here that he first stated his belief that the proletariat must itself be the agent of revolutionary change in society, and wrote his first critique of capitalism, ‘Economic and Philosophical Manuscripts of 1844’ (not published until 1932). Marx had by now become friendly with Friedrich Engels and under political pressure they moved to Brussels, where they wrote German Ideology and the famous Communist Manifesto (1848) which ends with the Communist rallying cry: ‘The workers have nothing to lose but their chains. They have a world to win. Workers of all lands, unite!’ Marx moved to London in 1849 and wrote the first volume of his most famous work, Das Kapital, in 1867 (future volumes followed in 1884 and 1894) where he forecast the classless society. Marx is buried in Highgate cemetery, London.

Wilhelm Dilthey (1833–1911) German philosopher, born in Biebrich, Hesse. His central theme was the radical distinction between the natural sciences (Naturwissenschaften) and human sciences (Geisteswissenschaften). He also developed a theory of hermeneutics for the interpretation of historical texts and wrote biographies of Hegel, Lessing, Schleiermacher, and Goethe.

Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche (1844–1900) German philosopher, scholar and writer, born in Röcken, Saxony, son of a Lutheran pastor. He was seen by Nazi ideologists as a precursor of Nazism due to his doctrine of the superman (Übermensch) expounded in Thus Spake Zarathustra and Beyond Good and Evil. Nietzsche rejected Christianity by arguing that ‘God is Dead’. His first work was The Birth of Tragedy, which compared Dionysian and Apollonian values, and was dedicated to Richard Wagner, whose operas he regarded as the true successors to Greek tragedy. Other works include On the Genealogy of Morals, Beyond Good and Evil, Untimely Meditations and his autobiography Ecce Homo (published posthumously in 1908).

Henri Bergson (1859–1941) French philosopher, born in Paris, son of a Polish Jewish musician and an English mother. Bergson claimed that time (which he calls duration), cannot be analysed as a set of moments, but is unitary. He claimed the same distribution between movement and the trajectory it covers. This became known as ‘process philosophy’. He won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1927. His major works include Time and Freewill, Matter and Memory and Creative Evolution.

Edmund Husserl (1859–1938) German philosopher, born in Prossnitz in the Austrian empire, of Jewish parentage. He studied mathematics at Berlin and psychology at Vienna, under Franz Brentano, a leading Aristotelian scholar. Husserl taught at Halle, Göttingen and Freiburg. He was the founder of the philosophical school of phenomenology which gave rise to Gestalt psychology. Works include On the Goals and Problems of Metaphysics, Logical Investigations (in which Husserl employed his Phenomenological methods) and Ideas: General Introduction to Pure Phenomenology.

Nishida Kitarō (1870–1945) Japanese philosopher, born near Kanazawa, Ishikawa, son of a school teacher. Nishida is considered Japan's first original modern philosopher and his work typifies Japanese attempts to absorb Western philosophy into the oriental spiritual tradition. His memoirs were entitled A Certain Professor's Statement upon Retirement from Kyoto Imperial University, December 1928.

Bertrand Russell (1872–1970) Philosopher, mathematician and author, born in Trelleck, Gwent, and brought up by his grandmother (the widow of the Liberal PM) following the death of both his parents in his youth. Russell was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge and became British Embassy attaché in Paris. He married Alys Pearsall Smith in 1895 and wrote his first book, German Social Democracy, soon after. Russell's first major philosophical work was The Problems of Philosophy (1912), which is often heralded as the perfect introduction for students of the subject. His pacifism caused the loss of his Trinity fellowship in 1916 and his imprisonment in 1918, after which he visited the Soviet Union and met Lenin, Trotsky and Gorky. He subsequently wrote Theory and Practice of Bolshevism. Russell's philosophy was now based on the premise that scientific knowledge was the only factual knowledge. His other major philosophical work was A History of Western Philosophy. Russell was also the co-author (with AN Whitehead) of Principia Mathematica.

Otto Neurath (1882–1945) Austrian socialist philosopher, economist and historian. Neurath was famous for creating the Isotype language for visual education. He was a founder member of the Vienna Circle.

György Lukács (1885–1971) Hungarian Marxist philosopher and critic, born in Budapest, of a wealthy Jewish family. Early works include Soul and Form, and Theory of the Novel. He joined the Hungarian Communist Party in 1918 but after the defeat of the uprising in 1919 travelled to Vienna and then Moscow. His major work on Marxism, History and Class Consciousness (1923), was condemned by the Russian Communist party as heretical.

Ludwig Wittgenstein (1889–1951) Austrian-born British philosopher, born in Vienna, son of an industrialist. Wittgenstein studied mechanical engineering at Berlin but became increasingly interested in mathematics and went to Cambridge to study under Bertrand Russell. He served in the Austrian army in WWI and was captured and held as a POW near Monte Cassino. Here he wrote Tractatus Logico Philosophicus, which expounded his ‘picture theory’ and the nature and limits of language whereby the deep truths of the nature of reality and representation cannot properly be said but can only be shown. Wittgenstein became a naturalised British citizen in 1938 and spent much of his time in Cambridge, although he worked as a porter in Guy's Hospital during World War II. Wittgenstein is undoubtedly one of the pre-eminent philosophers of the twentieth century.

Martin Heidegger (1889–1976) German philosopher, born in Messkirch in Baden, son of a Catholic sexton. He was appointed rector at Freiburg in 1933 and pledged support for Hitler in his inaugural address. His writings concern the predicament of human existence, the search for ‘authenticity’ and the distractions of Angst (anxiety). His major work, Being and Time (1927), although considered a masterpiece, is often misunderstood in philosophical circles due to its complexity. The essence of the work as a description of a fundamental ontology where he names the human entity 'Dasein' (the being) and argues that Dasein's own being is intrinsically temporal in an existential sense.

Rudolf Carnap (1891–1970) German-born US philosopher of Logical Positivism. He was a prominent member of the Vienna Circle and made significant contributions to logic, the philosophy of science, model theory and probability. He was viewed as an 'enfant terrible' in his early career but became one of the most respected philosophers of C20. Carnap was a great advocate of international languages.

Hans-Georg Gadamer (1900–2002) German philosopher, born in Marburg, Hesse. A pupil of Heidegger, his major work, Truth and Method, expounds his hermeneutic beliefs.

Karl Raimund Popper (1902–1994) Austrian-born British philosopher. Popper's greatest contributions are in philosophy of sciences and in political and social philosophy. His 'falsificationism' reverses the usual view that accumulated experience leads to scientific hypotheses. He was a member of the Vienna Circle.

Jean-Paul Sartre (1905–80) French philosopher, dramatist and novelist, born in Paris. He studied at the Sorbonne with Simone de Beauvoir, with whom he had a lifelong relationship. He taught philosophy at Le Havre, Paris and Berlin but joined the French army in 1939 and became a POW in 1941. On his release he became a key member of the French Resistance. In 1946, Sartre and De Beauvoir founded the avant-garde monthly Les Temps Modernes and Sartre began to develop his Existentialist doctrines. He declined the 1964 Nobel Prize for Literature and campaigned against American involvement in Vietnam. Sartre's major works were Being and Nothingness and his semi-autobiographical work Nausea, and a later more detailed autobiography, Words (Les Mots).

Maurice Merleau-Ponty (1908–61) French philosopher, born in Rochefort-sur-Mer, Charente-Maritime. Helped Sartre and De Beauvoir found Les Temps Modernes in 1945 but his philosophy was more akin to that of the German phenomenonologists Husserl and Heidegger. His major work was The Phenomenology of Perception.

Willard Quine (1908–2000) American philosopher, born in Akron, Ohio. He was professor of philosophy at Harvard from 1948 to 1978 and was much influenced by Carnap, the Vienna Circle and Empiricism. His major works include Two Dogmas of Empiricism, Word and Object and The Roots of Reference.

Sir Alfred Jules Ayer (1910–89) English philosopher, born in London. Ayer was educated at Eton and Oxford and served in the Welsh Guards in World War II before becoming a professor at University College London in 1947 and professor at Oxford in 1947. His major work, which was also his first, was Language, Truth & Logic (1936), which reflected the views of the Vienna Circle and established him a the leading English representative of logical positivism. It was dubbed 'The Young Man's book'. Ayer was knighted in 1970. His other major work was The Problem of Knowledge.

Albert Camus (1913–60) French writer, born in Mondovi, Algeria, son of a farm labourer. After studying philosophy at Algiers, Camus became an actor, schoolmaster, playwright and journalist before World War II, and subsequently became a French Resistance activist. He then became co-editor of the left-wing newspaper Combat and wrote his Existentialist novel The Stranger, and became identified with 'the absurd'. His other great work was The Plague, in which a plague-stricken city, Oran, symbolises man's isolation. He was awarded the 1957 Nobel Prize for Literature for having 'illuminated the problems of the human conscience in our times.' He died in a car accident.

Michel Foucault (1926–84) French philosopher, born in Poitiers. Foucault argued that social attitudes are manipulated by those in power, so that areas such as criminality, illness, sexuality and insanity have changing levels of acceptability dependent on the aims of those in positions of influence. His major works are Madness and Civilization, The Order of Things, and The History of Sexuality.

An Explanation of Some Philosophical Terms

Dialectics	The philosophy of metaphysical contradictions and their solutions.
Empiricism	The belief that all knowledge derives from experience and that the mind cannot postulate in advance.
Existentialism	Modern philosophical movement that stresses the importance of personal experience and responsibility and the demands that they make on the individual, who is seen as a free agent in a deterministic and seemingly meaningless universe. Although Jean-Paul Sartre is often accredited as being the first person to name himself an existentialist, the works of Søren Kiekegaard have retrospectively been attributed as existential.
Hermeneutics	The art of interpretation of human behaviour and social institutions. Originally the theory and method of interpreting the Bible and other theological texts but Wilhelm Dilthey extended it to the interpretation of all human acts.
Marxism	Broad term covering many different philosophical doctrines but ultimately relating to the various schools of thought flourishing since the death of Karl Marx in 1883. Western Marxism usually includes those thinkers that were influenced by the Hegelian idea of dialectics and who focused on the cultural as opposed to the economic aspects of capitalism.
Metaphysics	The branch of philosophy concerning first principles, especially of being and knowing. It is the study of the nature of reality and deals with such questions as the existence of God and the external world.
Nihilism	Philosophy of negation, rejection, or denial of some or all aspects of thought or life. An example would be moral nihilism, whereby any possibility of justifying or criticising moral judgements is rejected because morality is a cloak for egoistic self-seeking and therefore a sham. Nihilism is an extreme form of scepticism.
Ontology	The branch of metaphysics that deals with the nature of being.
Pascal's Wager	The postulate that it is better to wager that God does exist rather than on his non-existence.
Phenomenology	Movement founded by Husserl that concentrates on the detailed description of conscious experience without recourse to explanation, metaphysical assumptions or traditional philosophical questions.
Positivism	Extreme form of empiricism that rejects metaphysics and theology as seeking knowledge beyond the scope of experience and holds that experimental investigation and observation are the only sources of knowledge.
Scepticism	The view that we fail to know anything and the rejection of the postulate that some term of positive epistemic appraisal applies to our beliefs.
Solipsism	The extreme form of scepticism which denies the possibility of any knowledge other than of one's own existence.
Sophist	Pre-Socratic itinerant teacher of oratory and argument who was prepared to debate any matter however specious.
Stoicism	Philosophical system founded by Zeno of Citium (334–262 bc) in Athens c300 bc, viewing the world as permeated by rationality and divine planning. Moral goodness and happiness are achieved by replicating a perfect rationality in oneself, and by enacting one's own assigned role in the cosmic scheme of things.
Thomism	The name derives from Thomas Aquinas and relates to a body of philosophical and theological ideas that seek to articulate the intellectual content of Catholic Christianity.
Totalitarianism	Term adopted in the 1920s by the Italian Giovanni Gentile to describe the ideal fascist state. Totalitarianism has attracted the attention of philosophers because a number of classical philosophical systems have been suspected of harbouring totalitarian aspirations.
Vienna Circle	Group of thinkers drawn from the social and natural sciences who met regularly in Vienna between the two world wars to discuss philosophy. Its manifesto was published in 1929 The Scientific Conception of the World: The Vienna Circle by Carnap, Hahn and Neurath. The inner sanctum of the group organised by the physics professor Moritz Schlick in 1924, included Carnap, Neurath, Philip Frank, Kurt Gödel, and Edgar Zilsel. The likes of Ludwig Wittgenstein and Karl Popper often joined discussion groups. The public profile of the circle was provided by the Ernst Mach Society, but in 1934 the society was suspended for political reasons, and in 1936 Moritz Schlick was murdered. The circle disintegrated when many of its members were forced to leave Austria for racial and political reasons.

FAMOUS PEOPLE

Real Names: By Assumed Name

NB: This is not intended to be a comprehensive listing of pseudonyms but a selection of some of the best-known and most intriguing examples. It is an area that is surrounded with much uncertainty and potential for error. Generally the 'Assumed Name' is the more familiar, but not always (for instance when authors adopt a pen-name for a particular kind of writing). For people who have acquired titles, the title is given as the 'Assumed Name', although in such cases the 'Original Name' is of course equally valid.

Crime and Punishment

Dr John Bodkin Adams (1899–1983) Physician who was tried in 1957 after one of his patients, Edith Morrell, died suspiciously. Like other elderly patients before her, Edith had made Adams a beneficiary of her will before dying by morphine overdose. On acquittal Adams was struck off but continued to treat private patients and was in fact reinstated by the General Medical Council in 1961. Whether he merely practised euthanasia or killed for personal gain will never be proven and the secret died with him.

Susan Barber (1956–) In May 1981 Susan Barber placed half a teaspoonful of weedkiller in her husband Michael's steak-and-kidney pie after he caught her in bed with her lover and threw him out of the window. Michael Barber was diagnosed with Goodpasture's syndrome, a rare nervous condition, but died shortly after. The cause of death was recorded as pneumonia and kidney failure. His wife gained £15,000 from her husband's pension fund and set up home with her defenestrated lover, Richard Collins. David Evans, the pathologist who conducted the post mortem, began to have a few doubts and sent organs from Barber's body to ICI, the manufacturers of the weedkiller Gramoxone, and sure enough, traces of the poison were detected. Barber and Collins were arrested in April 1982 and he was sentenced to two years imprisonment for conspiracy while Susan Barber was jailed for life.

Anne Bonny (1692–?) Irish pirate who lived in the early 18th century. Anne showed her fiery temper at an early age and is thought to have killed a servant girl with a case-knife. She was disinherited by her lawyer father and sailed to the Bahamas with her husband, the cause of the disinheritance. Bonny fell in with Captain John Rackham, the notorious Calico Jack, and sailed with him disguised as a man. Bizarrely enough another member of Jack's crew was Mary Read, who was also sailing under the guise of a man, and an amusing incident whereby Read tried to seduce Bonny proved to be the unveiling of both. In October 1720 Calico Jack's ship, The Revenge, was captured by a sloop on the orders of the governor of Jamaica and Jack was hung and Read and Bonny imprisoned. Mary Read died of a fever but Bonny managed to escape and her whereabouts remained a mystery.

Charles Bronson (1952–) Born Michael Gordon Peterson and first imprisoned in 1974 for robbing a jeweller of £35, but his aggressive behaviour has added an extra 25 years to his sentences and he has experienced only a total of 69 days of freedom since then. Bronson has shown some ability as a cartoonist and poet. He married Miss Saira Rehman in June 2001 at Woodhill Prison and Lord Longford was best man.

Burke and Hare William Burke (1792–1829) and William Hare (1790–c1860) met at Logue's lodging house, Edinburgh, in 1818. Sharing the same building was an army pensioner known as Old Donald, who died in 1827 owing Hare £4. Burke and Hare opened his coffin and substituted a sack of bark for his body and sold it for £7 10/- to Dr Robert Knox of Edinburgh's Anatomy School. Over the next 10 months Dr Knox became a regular customer of the pair, who at first produced a legitimate supply of corpses, but then began to create their own by foul means. Burke's common-law wife, Helen McDougal, or Hare's, Maggie Laird, would lure a victim back to the lodgings and then ply them with drink, Burke would then kneel on their chest, while stopping their breathing by placing his hands over their nose and mouth. This method became known as 'burking'. Victims included Mary Paterson, a local prostitute, and a local idiot called Daft Jamie, both of whose murders were suspected by Knox, who remained quiet. Eventually they slipped up by leaving the body of Margaret Docherty where other lodgers could find it. Hare and Laird escaped prosecution by turning King's evidence and the case against McDougal was unproven, but Burke was publicly hanged on 28 January 1829.

Capital punishment Relevant dates in the history of capital punishment in Britain are as follows: In 1868 public execution was abolished, Michael Barrett (26 May) being the last victim. On 13 July 1955 Ruth Ellis was the last woman to be hanged in Britain. On 13 August 1964 Peter Anthony Allen and Gwynne Owen Evans were the last victims of a British hanging. On 9 November 1965 the death penalty was suspended for a trial period of five years, but in December 1969 Parliament confirmed the permanent abolition.

Mary Ann Cotton (1832–73) District nurse from West Auckland, County Durham, who killed at least five people including her second husband Frederick, his two stepsons, and two lovers, a local excise officer named Quick-Manning and her lodger Joseph Natrass. She was suspected of killing many more, possibly 30. Her motive was invariably either to collect insurance money or to pave the way for a new liaison. Her chosen method of disposal was arsenic. She was eventually tried and sentenced to death in 1873. The hangman bungled the execution, causing her to take three and a half minutes to stop convulsing before dying at the rope's end.

Dr Hawley Harvey Crippen (1862–1910) Crippen, a patent medicine salesman and physician, poisoned his second wife, Cora Turner, a would-be music-hall artiste working under the name of Belle Elmore, after becoming infatuated with his young secretary Ethel Le Neve. After the murder at their home at 39 Hilltop Crescent, Islington, North London, Ethel, who was privy to the murder, became anxious of its detection so the couple fled to Canada aboard the SS Montrose under the names of Mr Robinson and his son (Ethel). The ship's captain became suspicious and contacted Scotland Yard by radio telegraphy and the couple were arrested. The case was famous for being the first example of a successful conviction by use of radio. Crippen was tried for murder at the Old Bailey on 18 October 1910, found guilty and hanged at Pentonville on 23 November. Neve was tried separately but ably defended by FE Smith and acquitted. She lived till 1967.

DNA DNA provides the building blocks of life – the unique gene code that makes us what we are. In 1985, Sir Alec Jeffreys developed the system, first discovered by Crick and Watson in 1953, so that police could take an individual's genetic 'fingerprint' to establish guilt. Colin Pitchfork was the first person to be convicted using DNA evidence when he was jailed for life in 1988 for murdering two schoolgirls. Pitchfork murdered 15-year-old Lynda Mann in 1983 in Narborough, Leicestershire. Three years later he killed Dawn Ashworth, also 15. A 17-year-old confessed to killing Dawn, but a DNA test proved his innocence, and the screening of 5,000 locals showed Pitchfork to be the culprit. DNA has also been used retrospectively, and James Hanratty, hanged for murdering civil servant Michael Gregston and raping and maiming his mistress, is the most famous example. Hanratty hijacked the couple in their car off the A6 in Berkshire, then attacked them near Bedford. He denied the crime, and family members battled for 40 years to prove his innocence, but his body was exhumed in 2001 and DNA tests proved his guilt.

Ruth Ellis (1927–55) Model and nightclub manageress, Ellis shot and killed her lover, racing driver David Blakely, outside the Magdala public house in Hampstead on Good Friday 1955. She was tried and convicted at the Old Bailey in June and hanged at Holloway prison on 13 July 1955, the last woman to be hanged in England.

Helen Duncan (1897–1956) Scottish medium, best known as the last person to be imprisoned under the British Witchcraft Act of 1735. Duncan was arrested in 1944 after a seance in Portsmouth in which she told a couple that their son, who was serving on HMS Barham, had appeared from the spirit world to let them know his ship had sunk. The 1941 sinking with the loss of over 800 lives had been kept secret to maintain wartime morale. She served nine months in Holloway Prison and there is a present campaign to grant her a pardon.

John George Haigh (1910–49) Whilst living in a small hotel in Kensington, Haigh became friendly with Olive Durand-Deacon, a wealthy 69-year-old widow, who told him of her ideas for the marketing of cosmetics. Haigh invited her to his factory in Crawley, West Sussex, where she was shot and her body disposed of in a vat of sulphuric acid. On 20 February 1949 he then presented himself at Chelsea police station and reported her missing. Police became suspicious and checked his factory where they found the murder weapon and Mrs Durand-Dickson's plastic dentures. Haigh made a statement admitting to eight other murders, including three members of a family called McSwann, a Dr and Mrs Henderson and three other people whose identities he had never established. He was tried at Lewes Crown Court in July 1949 and was executed at Wandsworth Prison on 10 August 1949.

Hangmen The most famous British public executioner was probably Albert Pierrepoint, who notched up 700 victims before his retirement. Albert died in 1982, leaving Syd Dernley as the last hangman to die since hanging was abolished. Dernley aided in the execution of 20 criminals between 1949 and 1953 but was removed from the register in 1954. He died in 1994. William Calcraft (1800–79) was the last to perform in public as hangings were held in prisons after 1868. James Berry (1852–1913) is probably the second most famous hangman after Albert Pierrepoint, although John Ellis became a celebrity after becoming the executioner of Dr Crippen and Sir Roger Casement. Ellis (1874–1926) was haunted by the aftermath of his career and eventually cut his own throat with a barber's razor. Other famous hangmen include Richard Arnett (1674–1728), Edward Dennis (1717–86), Jack Ketch, byname of John Ketch (d.1686), the Billington family, James (1847–1901), Thomas (1872–1902), William (1873–1934) and John (1880–1905), William Marwood (1820–83), George Smith (1805–74), Henry Pierrepoint (1874–1922) and Thomas Pierrepoint (1870–1954).

Jack the Ripper Unknown murderer of five prostitutes between August and November 1888 in Whitechapel, London. The five unfortunate victims were Mary Ann 'Polly' Nichols (42), Dark Annie Chapman (47), Elizabeth 'Long Liz' Stride (45), Catharine 'Kate Kelly' Eddowes (43) and Mary Jane Kelly (25). The inspector who initially investigated the murders was George Frederick Abberline (1843–1929).

William Kidd (1645–1701) Originally a respected sea captain in New York when hired by a Whig syndicate in 1695 as a government-commissioned privateer authorised to seize pirates, freebooters and sea-rovers in the name of the British government, Kidd decided to turn pirate himself. During an angry exchange with a crew member in 1697 he shot and killed his gunner, William Moore. On 9 May 1701 Kidd was found guilty of the murder of Moore and on five indictments of piracy. He was hanged immediately at Execution Dock, Wapping. Unfortunately for Kidd the rope broke the first time, he fell to the ground in his drunken state, and had to be strung up a a second time.

Kray Twins Reggie Kray (1933–2000) and his twin brother Ronnie (1933–95) established a grip on the criminal underworld in the 1960s through their protection rackets and frauds. They opened a club, the Double R, in Bow Road, east London, which soon became popular with a showbiz clientele. Ronnie, a closet homosexual, was the dominant twin, and earned the nickname 'The Colonel', Reggie had more of a business brain. In 1965 Reggie married Frances Shea, but she committed suicide in 1967. The Firm, as they became known, became increasingly involved in hostilities with Charlie Richardson's south London gang, and they arranged the escape from Dartmoor of Frank Mitchell, the so-called Mad Axeman, whose murder they subsequently ordered. On 8 March 1966 Ronnie Kray shot dead George Cornell, a Richardson henchman, in the Blind Beggar public house on the Mile End Road. Cornell's offence had been to call Ronnie 'a fat poof'. In October 1966 Reggie Kray fatally stabbed a small-time thief called Jack 'the Hat' McVitie in a borrowed flat in Stoke Newington. Jack's crime had apparently been to show disrespect to the boys by wearing Bermuda shorts in one of their clubs. Detective Superintendent Leonard 'Nipper' Read eventually established a case against the twins and they were brought to trial at the Old Bailey in January 1969, after a member of the 'Firm', Albert Donaghue, had turned Queen's evidence. They were acquitted of the Mitchell murder but were convicted of murdering Cornell and McVitie.

Lord Lucan (1934–?) John Bingham, the 7th Earl of Lucan, an inveterate gambler and merchant banker, inherited a quarter of a million pounds on the death of his father. By 1974 he was almost bankrupt. On the night of 7 November 1974 he killed Sandra Rivett, the nanny of his two children, in his house in Lower Belgrave Street, London, in mistake for his wife Veronica. After attacking his wife too, but failing to kill her, he drove to the house of his friend, Susan Maxwell-Scott, at Uckfield in Sussex. His car was discovered at Newhaven but he was never seen again. He was declared legally dead in October 1999.

Donald Merrett (1910–54) At the age of 17 Merrett murdered his mother for the price of a motor bicycle. Twenty-five years later, and now calling himself Ronald Chesney, he murdered his wife and her mother. The first murder was in 1927, and although he claimed she shot herself in the neck, it became apparent over the course of her surviving 15 days that he murdered her for money, as he repeatedly forged her cheques during this period. He was charged with murder and forgery after her death, but due to the defence testimony of the eminent pathologist Bernard Spilsbury, who was appearing for the only time as a defence witness, was acquitted and served only twelve months on the forgery charge. On his release Merrett changed his name to Ronald Chesney and lived a life of petty crime until in 1954 he called on his wife, whom he had married when first released from prison, and knocked her out with drink before drowning her in the bath. He also killed her mother, who had intercepted him on leaving the house. He flew back to Germany but had been seen at the scene of the crime, an old people's home in Ealing, and before Interpol could arrest him he shot himself in the head in a wood near Cologne. Before he died he confessed to his German girlfriend that his real name was Donald Merrett and that when he was 17 he had killed his mother.

Moors Murderers On 28 October 1965, Ian Brady, a 27-year-old stock-clerk, and Myra Hindley, a 23-year-old typist, were charged with the murder of ten-year-old Lesley Ann Downey at Chester Assizes. Lesley's body was found on Saddleworth Moor 13 days earlier. Police were subsequently alerted by a call from Hindley's brother-in-law, David Smith, who had witnessed the killing of 17-year-old Edward Evans with an axe. Police searched Brady's house and found Evans's body in a blanket. The police subsequently found a left-luggage ticket in Hindley's prayer book which led them to a suitcase containing tapes and pornographic photographs, one of which showed Hindley posing with a dog at what turned out to be the grave of a third murdered child, John Kilbride, aged 12. On 6 May, 1966, Brady was sentenced to three concurrent terms of life imprisonment for the murders of all three children while Hindley received two concurrent life sentences for the murders of Edward Evans and Lesley Ann Downey. Hindley died of lung cancer on 15 November 2002.

Donald Neilson (1936– 2011) Born Donald Nappey in Dewsbury, West Yorkshire, the diminutive builder changed the family name to Neilson after the birth of his daughter. Neilson began his criminal life as a house burglar before progressing to post office robberies and ultimately to murder, killing three post office workers in 1974. The media had by now dubbed Neilson 'The Black Panther' due to his dark clothing and speed of movement. In January 1975 Neilson kidnapped 17-year-old Lesley Whittle, the daughter of a transport magnate, from the family home in Highley, Shropshire and asked for a £50,000 ransom. Two months later, after a series of police bungs Lesley's body was found hanging from a wire at the bottom of a drainage shaft in Bathpool Park, Kidsgrove, Staffordshire. In December 1975 Neilson was apprehended by two policemen in Mansfield for acting suspiciously when passing their panda car. In his panic Neilson produced his sawn-off shotgun and entered the car and ordered the men to drive. The driver eventually swerved and ground to a halt outside The Junction Chip Shop in Rainworth where he managed to attract the attention of several men in the queue who helped to overpower Neilson. In July 1976, at Oxford Crown Court, Neilson was convicted of the kidnapping and murder of Lesley Whittle, and three weeks later he was convicted of the murders of two postmasters and the husband of a postmistress. In total Neilson received five life sentences plus 21 years for kidnapping Lesley Whittle, 10 years for blackmailing her mother and 10 years each for the burglary charges from which he stole guns and ammunition and for possessing a sawn off shotgun with intent to endanger life. All the sentences were to run concurrently. In 2008, Neilson was diagnosed with motor neurone disease and he died three years later.

Dennis Nilsen (1945-) Born in Fraserburgh, Aberdeenshire, to a Scottish mother and a Norwegian father (Olav Magnus Moksheim) who adopted the surname Nilsen. The so-called Muswell Hill Murderer began his working life as an army cook before briefly becoming a policeman and, from 1974, a civil servant in a jobcentre in Denmark Street, London. A homosexual, Nilsen committed the murders of 15 young men in London, between 1978 and 1983. The majority of Nilsen's victims were homeless or homosexual men whom he would typically meet on the streets or in bars and lure back to his home (firstly in Cricklewood but more infamously 23 Cranley Gardens, Muswell Hill) with an offer of refreshments or shelter. The victims were invariably strangled and drowned during the night (a method Nilsen thought most humane; hence his other nickname of the 'Kindly Killer'). He used his butchering skills to dismember the bodies (which were sometimes kept for months in various locations in his home). Nilsen later admitted to having engaged in sexual acts with the corpses. Nilsen sometimes flushed parts of his victims down the toilet which eventually led to his capture and arrest after Dyno-Rod were called out by neighbours for blocked pipes and found human remains in the system. Nilsen's trial began at the Old Bailey on 24 October 1983. He was convicted of six murders (several victims were unidentified) and two attempted murders and sentenced to life imprisonment on 4 November 1983. The Home Secretary later imposed a whole life tariff, which meant he would never be released.

Charles Peace (1832–79) Born in Manchester, the son of an animal trainer, Peace suffered an accident in childhood that left him crippled. To hide the loss of one finger he wore a false arm made of gutta-percha with a steel plate and a hook at the end of it. In 1876 he shot and killed a policeman whilst burgling a house. Two brothers were arrested for the murder and Peace attended the trial at which one of them, William Habron, was sentenced to death. Peace's next victim was a Mr Dyson, whose wife had formed a loose liaison with Peace, although it was to soon become a stalking situation. As a result of this murder, Peace became a wanted man and moved to London, where he rented a villa in Peckham. He now changed his name to John Ward and lived with his wife and his mistress, Susan Thompson, maintaining his lifestyle by a series of burglaries that he would attend in his pony and trap, carrying his tools in a violin case. He was eventually caught after wounding a policeman in Blackheath. He was sentenced to life imprisonment for wounding the policeman and then taken to Sheffield to stand trial for the murder of Arthur Dyson. On the way to Sheffield he managed to escape from the train, but was injured in the fall and was soon recaptured. He was tried for murder at Leeds assizes, found guilty and hanged by William Marwood after being refused a last drink. William Habron was released with a full pardon and awarded £1,000 compensation.

Peter Reyn-Bardt (1919–93) In May 1983 two peat-cutters working at Lindow Moss, near Wilmslow, Cheshire, dug up the skull of a middle-aged woman. Police reported the find to Peter Reyn-Bardt, a former executive with BOAC, whose wife Malika had disappeared in 1960, and under interrogation he confessed to her murder. He had strangled his wife, chopped up her body and buried the remains in the peat bog. He was tried and found guilty at Chester Crown Court and sentenced to life imprisonment. Subsequently the skull was sent to Oxford University for radiocarbon dating and was found to be dated circa 410 AD. The following year another skeleton was found in the bog with more obvious evidence of a violent death. However, this one turned out to be the remains of a man who had been killed in a ritualistic death circa 300 BC. The whereabouts of Mrs Reyn-Bardt's body remain a mystery.

Harold Shipman (1946–2004) Harold Frederick Shipman studied at Leeds University medical school and eventually achieved a mediocre degree. His mother had died of lung cancer in June 1963 and it is believed it was seeing her daily morphine administered by the local GP that led to his compulsion to set himself up as an angel of mercy, albeit in some cases for personal gain. Shipman married his fiancée Primrose and took up his first practice in 1974 at the age of 28 in the small Yorkshire town of Todmorden. In 1975 a suspicious receptionist, Marjorie Walker, noticed some peculiar entries in the controlled substances ledger of a local pharmacist whereby large quantities of pethidine, a morphine-based painkiller had been ordered by Dr Shipman. His explanation was that he was injecting the drug himself and he was fined £600 and booked into a drug rehabilitation centre without being struck off. In 1977 Shipman began working at the Donneybrook Medical Centre in Hyde, Manchester, and proceeded to rebuild his career. Despite doubts by several people over the years it was not until the death of Mrs Grundy, an 81-year-old former mayor of Hyde, on 24 June 1998, that questions were asked by Mrs Grundy's daughter Angela Woodruff, a solicitor by profession. Mrs Grundy had made a will in 1986 and lodged it with her daughter's law firm but now she was asked to believe that her mother had made another one without her knowledge and left £386,000 to Dr Shipman. Detective Superintendent Bernard Postles investigated and on reviewing the will came to the conclusion that Kathleen Grundy's signature had been forged and began to build a solid case against Shipman with the help of several interested parties who now came forward and expressed their own doubts about him. His trial began in October 1999 at Preston Crown Court and on 31 January 2000 Shipman was found guilty of 15 counts of murder. The Department of Health estimates that Shipman may have killed 236 patients between 1974 and 1998.

George Joseph Smith (1872–1915) Perpetrator of the Brides in the Bath Murders. In 1898 Smith married 19-year-old Beatrice Thornhill, his only legal wife. In 1910 he met and bigamously married Bessie Mundy in Weymouth calling himself Henry Williams. He eventually murdered Bessie by drowning her in a tin bath and attesting that she had a fit and drowned by misadventure. Smith subsequently gained from a trust fund set up in Bessie's name. He then bigamously married Alice Burnham in Southsea in November 1913 and then 'married' Margaret Lofty, a clergyman's daughter at Bath in 1914. In both cases he took his wives to the doctors before dispatching them, to show that they suffered from fits. A newspaper report of Margaret Lofty's death was seen by Alice Burnham's father, who alerted the police. The police soon realised that Smith was a murderer, and with the help of Bernard Spilsbury he was tried and found guilty, sentenced to death and hanged at Maidstone Prison on Friday 13 August 1915.

Peter Sutcliffe (1946–) Between 1975 and 1980 Sutcliffe murdered 13 women in the north of England. Many of his victims were prostitutes and were invariably banged over the head with a ball-pein hammer before being stabbed and mutilated. He was eventually caught during a routine check when he was found in a car with a prostitute. He asked the police if he could relieve himself and unknown to them at the time he hid his murder weapons behind an oil storage tank. The police ran a routine check on his car and found it had false plates. Sutcliffe was arrested and while in custody was found to be on the list of possible suspects. Sutcliffe, now nicknamed the Yorkshire Ripper, made a full confession and on 22 May 1981 was sentenced to life imprisonment. He began his sentence at Parkhurst but after being attacked was transferred to Broadmoor High Security Mental Institution, where he resides today. Sutcliffe often refers to himself as Peter William Coonan (his mother's maiden name).

Michel Bourdin	Cooking is a way of giving and making yourself desirable.
Mel Brooks	Where you eat is sacred.
George Burns	Actually, it only takes one drink to get me loaded. Trouble is, I can't remember if it's the thirteenth or the fourteenth.
Robert Byrne	Anybody who believes that the way to man's heart is through his stomach flunked geography.
Lord Byron	Let us have wine and women, mirth and laughter, Sermons and soda water the day after.
Titus Lucretius Carus	What is food to one man is bitter poison to others.
Malcolm de Chazal	Women eat when they talk, men talk when they eat.
Winston Churchill	[of champagne] In victory you deserve it, in defeat you need it.
Shirley Conran	Life is too short to stuff a mushroom.
Alexandre Dumas (Père)	Le Montrachet [a top Burgundy] should be drunk on the knees with head bared.
Edward VII	One not only drinks wine, one smells it, observes it, tastes it, sips it and – one talks about it.
William M Evarts	It was a brilliant affair – water flowed like champagne. (Description of a dinner given by teetotal President Rutherford B Hayes.)
Clifton Fadiman	Cheese – milk's leap towards immortality.
Sir Alexander Fleming	If penicillin can cure those who are ill, Spanish sherry can bring the dead back to life.
Clement Freud	If a bird says, 'Cluk bik bik bik bik' and 'Caw' you may kill it, eat it or ask Fortnum's to pickle it in Napoleon brandy with wild strawberries. If it says, 'tweet' it is a dear and precious friend and you'd better lay off it if you want to remain a member of the Boodles.

Gail Greene	Great food is like great sex, the more you have the more you want.

Deserts: World’s Largest

Based on the definition of a desert as an area receiving less than 10 inches (250 mm) of precipitation per year, the world's largest desert is the continent of Antarctica at 13,829,430 sq km. The Arctic polar region at 13,726,937 sq km (5,300,000 sq miles) is therefore technically the second largest desert. The third largest desert after Antarctica and the Arctic, and the world's hottest desert, is the Sahara at more than 9,000,000 sq km (3,500,000 sq mi) and covers large parts of Algeria, Chad, Egypt, Libya, Mali, Mauritania, Morocco, Niger, Western Sahara, Sudan and Tunisia. The world's fourth largest desert at 2,330,000 sq km (900,000 sq miles) is the Arabian, which covers parts of Iraq, Jordan, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates and Yemen. Other deserts over 520,000 sq km (200,000 sq miles) include the Gobi (China and Mongolia) at 1,300,000 sq km (500,000 sq miles); the Kalahari (Angola, Botswana, Namibia and South Africa) at 900,000 sq km (360,000 sq miles); and the Patagonian Desert (Argentina and Chile) at 670,000 sq km (260,000 sq miles) although the desert region of Western Australia and surrounding area, sometimes called the Australian Desert (including the Great Victoria, Great Sandy, Tanami, Simpson, Gibson and Little Sandy Deserts) is collectively larger than the Gobi.

NB: The estimated deaths caused by these earthquakes are listed purely to indicate the devastation. It is very hard to draw accurate conclusions, as government statistics are in some instances based on bodies recovered. To give Tokyo 1923 as an example, the official death toll was 99,330, but that figure does not take into account the deaths caused by fire, famine, pestilence, and shock in the aftermath or the persons missing presumed dead.

NB: What is the largest island in the world? This is the subject of constant frustration to the more enlightened quiz player. In fact, the answer is very simple when one understands that the dictionary defines an island as a body of land, smaller than a continent, that is wholly surrounded by water. The dictionary defines Australia as the smallest continent and consequently, although it is surrounded by water, it clearly should not be included in geographical listings of islands. If an island was to be considered any area of land wholly surrounded by water then the whole of mainland Eurasia would in fact be far larger than Australia!

NB: A definition of a mountain is an upward projection of the Earth’s surface with an altitude of at least 600 m (about 1,968 ft), often having a rocky surface.

Mountains that are not part of a designated range, e.g. Kilimanjaro, are known as monarchs.

The list of mountains and ranges that follows is a fair representation of the major peaks and systems in the world, but more information can be found in the World Geographical Gazetteer (see below). The list also contains details of the major volcanic mountains. A few general terms are listed below.

The highest points of various countries can be difficult to determine and in some cases controversial. To give India as an example, K2 could be considered its highest mountain as it lies in a territory disputed since 1947. Nanda Devi is the highest peak wholly within the boundaries of India, but Kanchenjunga, although on the border with Nepal, would lay claim to being considered most worthy of the title.

GPS systems have enabled more accurate height readings, meaning some alterations of heights since the last edition.

NB: A usual definition of a river might be ‘a freshwater channelled body of water that flows from its source into another river, a lake, the sea, or an inland desert’, in which case the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers would make the above listing as separate entries. However, the table above includes the system as a whole and both the rivers are dealt with individually below. The alphabetic listing is for ease of reference, as in many of the sections, but is in no way an attempt to be fully comprehensive; it is merely a useful gazetteer of some interesting rivers.

NB: The areas given for the above seas, as well as the following gulfs, straits and bays, are as produced by the latest world statistics, which are open to interpretation because it is not always clear at what point the waters merge. Most lists of seas only include those recognised by the International Hydrographic Bureau, and this is a controversial area as, although the reasoning is that seas not recognised are either parts of larger seas or oceans, in fact many of the seas that are recognised – e.g. the Caribbean – are also part of larger sea areas. Surely the Panama Canal links the Atlantic to the Pacific and not merely the Caribbean to the Pacific! The criterion used by the Bureau appears to be that a sea must be surrounded by large areas of land to enable it to be separately identifiable from the oceans but, apart from the inland seas noted above, all other seas are purely geographical markings. In order not to be too controversial I have given the best judgements possible of the areas usually considered as seas by cartographers in the list above, but have remained true to tradition when listing the seas by size elsewhere in this section. This will mean that although the South China Sea will be listed as the world's largest sea in the relevant section, this is inconsistent with the above table which shows the Coral Sea as the largest. If the question is asked, 'What is the largest sea in the world?' then the safe answer would be the South China Sea, which is part of the much larger Malay Sea, no longer recognised by the Bureau, but one has to be aware that large sea areas such as the Coral Sea and Arafura Sea are, rather ambiguously, classed as parts of oceans.

Seas: World's Largest

		Area (Sq Miles)
1	South China	1,148,500
2	Caribbean	971,400
3	Mediterranean	966,500
4	Bering	875,750
5	Gulf of Mexico	582,100
6	Okhotsk	537,500
7	Sea of Japan	391,100
8	Hudson Bay	281,900
9	East China	256,600
10	Andaman	218,100
11	Black	196,100
12	Red	174,900

NB: The Malay Sea, which embraced the South China Sea and the Strait of Malacca, is no longer recognised by the International Hydrographic Bureau. Similarly, many other large seas (e.g. the Coral and the Arafura) would normally be included in the list but are also not recognised by the Bureau.

Straits of the World

Bass	Named by English navigator Matthew Flinders after the surgeon-explorer George Bass, the strait is 180 miles in length with an area of 28,950 sq mi; it separates the Tasman Sea area of the Pacific from the Indian Ocean. Technically it is the Tasman Sea that separates Victoria from Tasmania, but the whole of the northern coast of Tasmania borders the waters of the Bass Strait.
Belle Isle	Links the Atlantic to the Gulf of St Lawrence between Newfoundland and Labrador; it is 90 miles long.
Bosporus	Links the Black Sea and the Sea of Marmara, and separates part of Asian Turkey from European Turkey. The strait is 19 miles in length. Aka Bosphorus
Cabot	A 60-mile-long channel linking the Gulf of St Lawrence to the Atlantic between Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.
Cook	Links the Tasman Sea to the South Pacific between North Island and South Island, New Zealand. The Cook Strait is 14 miles wide at its narrowest point.
Dardanelles	Formerly called the Hellespont, they are 38 miles long and link the Aegean Sea with the Sea of Marmara.
Davis	Links Baffin Bay and the Labrador Sea between Greenland and Baffin Island, part of the Northwest Passage linking the Atlantic to the Pacific, it is approximately 400 miles long and wide.
Denmark	Links the Greenland Sea to the North Atlantic between Greenland and Iceland. The British battleship Hood was sunk by the German battleship Bismarck in the strait on 24 May 1941.
Dover	Links the English Channel (Fr. La Manche) to the North Sea. Its width is approximately 20 miles. The French refer to this stretch of water as the Pas-de-Calais.
Florida	Links the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic between Florida and Cuba; it is 110 miles in length. The Spanish explorer Ponce de León was the first European to navigate the strait, in 1513.
Foveaux	Links the Tasman Sea to the South Pacific between South Island and Stewart Island, New Zealand.
Gibraltar	Links the Mediterranean Sea to the Atlantic Ocean. The western extreme is 27 miles wide between the capes of Trafalgar and Spartel and the eastern extreme is 14 miles wide between the Rock of Gibraltar (Pillars of Hercules) and Mount Hacho. The length of the strait is 36 miles and it is also known as Fretum Herculeum.
Hormuz	Links the Persian Gulf to the Gulf of Oman between Iran and the Arabian Peninsula.
Hudson	Links Hudson Bay and the Labrador Sea between Baffin Island and Quebec and is approximately 500 miles in length.
Johore	The northern arm of the Singapore Strait between Singapore Island and Johor State, Malaysia, it is 30 miles in length.
Kattegat	Links the Baltic to the North Sea (Skagerrak inlet) and separates Denmark and Sweden; it is 137 miles in length.
Magellan	Links the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, between the mainland southern tip of South America and Tierra del Fuego. It is 350 miles in length.
Makassar	Links the Celebes Sea to the Java Sea between Borneo and Celebes; it stretches for approximately 500 miles.

Malacca	Links the Andaman Sea to the South China Sea between Sumatra and the Malay Peninsula; it is 500 miles in length and has an area of 25,000 sq miles.
Messina	Links the Tyrrhenian Sea and the Ionian Sea between Sicily and mainland Italy; it is 20 miles in length and ranges from 2 to 10 miles in width.
North Channel	Links the Irish Sea and the North Atlantic Ocean and washes the shores of Northern Ireland and Scotland. The minimum width of 13 miles lies between the Mull of Kintyre and Torr Head; it is 52 miles long.
Otranto	Links the Adriatic Sea and the Ionian Sea between Albania and Italy. Capo d'Otranto is the most easterly point in Italy and from that point the width of the strait is 40 miles.
St George's Channel	Links the Irish Sea to the Celtic Sea in the North Atlantic, its minimum width of 47 miles lies between Camsore Point, near Rosslare, Ireland and St David's Head in Dyfed, Wales. It is 100 miles in length.
Singapore	Links the Strait of Malacca and the South China Sea between Singapore Island and the Riau Islands of Indonesia; it is 65 miles in length and 10 miles in width.
Taiwan (Formosa)	Links the South China Sea and the East China Sea between Fukien Province of China and Taiwan; its former name of Formosa means 'beautiful' in Portuguese.
Torres	Links the Coral Sea and the Arafura Sea between New Guinea to the north and Cape York Peninsula, Queensland, Australia, to the south. It is about 80 miles wide between these points. The many islands in the Torres Strait may be remnants of a land bridge that once linked Asia and Australia.
Yucatán Channel	Although not actually called a strait, it links the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea between Cuba and Mexico, and is 135 miles in length.
